

HOPE IS TO WIPE OUT DEFEAT OF LAST YEAR BY BEARS.

TEAMS MEET OCTOBER 29

Portland to Be Scene of Gridiron Contest Between California and Washington State.

WASHINGTON STATE COLLEGE FOOTBALL SCHEDULE. October 1—Alumni at Pullman. October 8—Camp Lewis at Tacoma. October 15—Gonzaga university at Spokane.

WASHINGTON STATE COLLEGE. Pullman, Aug. 20.—(Special).—A veteran coaching staff plus a veteran eleven is the combination counted upon by Gus Welch and Doc Bohler of Washington State to wipe out last year's 49-to-0 defeat by the University of California.

To fill the place of Lloyd Gillis, all-northwest and all-Pacific coast full-back for the last two years, Coach Welch will have Durrwachter, sub full of the '19 varsity, who is returning to school after a year's absence. Durrwachter is a hard-hitting individual and averaged well in his one year on the squad.

Home Left by Hamilton. Captain Fred Hamilton, also an all-coast man, leaves a big opening in the back field. The most likely candidate to succeed him is his younger brother, Arthur.

Jenne Should Be Star. Eldon Jenne at right half should be a star at punting this year. His season's average for the last year was 52 yards. Mike Moran will fill the other half, with Skadan and Moe Sax fighting it out for the back.

Local Yachtsman Enters Craft in Elimination Speed Tests for Harmsworth Trophy.

DETROIT, Aug. 20.—The 1921 Harmsworth trophy race in the Detroit river here September 3 and 5 will be the 11th contest for the international power boat championship title. It will be the fifth time the trophy has been contested for in American waters and the eighth time in which the United States has been a contender.

ROY HANLEY IS TO COACH Washington State Star to Be With Spokane High School. Roy Hanley, captain of the Washington State college football team last fall and ex-North Central high school star, will coach football at Spokane high school, Spokane, Wash., this fall.

BOXING LICENSE FEE IS CUT Sport Expected to Take on New Life at Albuquerque.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Aug. 20.—Boxing is expected to take on a new life here as the result of a recent city ordinance reducing the license fee for bouts from $100 to $50 and providing strict regulations for keeping the sport clean.

Slap Starts Tender on Career. It was seven years ago that Lew Tender, a slim, anemic-looking 90-pound kid 16 years old, participated in his first rink battle. It was a grudge fight with another newboy who had slapped Tender in the face one afternoon in front of Broad-street station in Philadelphia.

ARMY HOMING PIGEONS FOR SALE. RIVERSIDE, Cal., Aug. 20.—Thirty pigeons, ready to be released from government service here at once on the recommendation of their sale recently by Washington, D. C. English bird breeder, connected with the aviation school at Riverside, had been abandoned. A lot of the birds are English stock bred from birds that participated in the world war, according to Lieutenant Charles A. Hora, signal officer at March field.

defend the "B. I. T." as it is termed by powerboat men. The elimination trials will be held September 1 and 2. The nominees for the elimination races are Miss America, Gar Wood's new defender; the first Miss America, owned by G. A. Wood Jr. and entered by the Miss America powerboat association; Vogler Boy IV, owned by E. W. Vogler of the Portland, Or., Boat club; Miss Chicago, owned by Sheldon Clark of the Chicago Yacht club; and Distributer IV, owned by F. E. Distributer of the Chicago Yacht club.

WASHINGTON DARK HORSE

CONFERENCE FOOTBALL TEAMS RESPECT COACH BAGSHAW.

Northwest Elevens All to Be Stronger This Year—California to Have Tough Opposition.

All four northern members of the Pacific coast conference college football teams, University of Oregon, University of Washington and the Oregon Agricultural college—association, are expected to have a football field this year teams stronger than in 1920, when they were defeated by the southern elevens of the University of California and Stanford university.

Washington State's team this year will be made up almost entirely of the men who played last year and forged to the top of the northwest conference percentage ladder. One hole, caused by the loss of Bill Parsons, will be filled, it is planned, by a lad named Hickey, now being groomed for the position Coach Welch has made vacant by having nearly 11 varsity veterans, has a strong squad of last year's "frosh" from which to pick.

Both Oregon schools will be turned into a "wonder team" here October 29, when they meet the University of California "wonder team" at Corvallis. Both Oregon schools will be turned into a "wonder team" here October 29, when they meet the University of California "wonder team" at Corvallis.

TRAP COMMITTEE TO MEET Amateurs to Have Chance to Unload Their Chests.

The new amateur committee representing the trappers of the eastern, southern, prairie, Great Lakes and Pacific states will meet with the executive committee of the American Trapping association Tuesday evening, August 22, at the Morrison hotel, Chicago. Every trapper, amateur and professional in attendance at the big annual convention interested are invited to attend. The rules and regulations and the trapping game in general will be discussed at this meeting.

SAILING CRAFT MAKES EXCELLENT SHOWING IN REVIVAL OF YACHTING ON THE WILLAMETTE RIVER.

SLOOP ALBATROSS.

When the sloop Albatross, owned by George S. Shepherd and sailed by Captain H. F. Todd, crossed the finish line a winner over Frank Butler's Virginia in the yacht race held on the Willamette river last Saturday, new interest in the game was stirred up, and it is considered probable that before long other craft will be added to the local sailing fleet of the Oregon Yacht club.

An effort will be made in the near future to get a fleet of smaller boats together. The two sloops are too large for this river, which is not wide enough to give the boats a chance to set off on a long reach. The Oregon Yacht club, which has sponsored yachting on this river, will soon get behind the move and see what can be done in the way of new boats here.

YOUTHS TO VIE ON TRACK INTER-PLAYGROUND MEET IS SET FOR SATURDAY. Boys and Girls to Be Divided Into Three Groups for Competition. Program Is Complete.

The seventh annual inter-playground track and field meet will be held at Peninsula park next Saturday. Races for both boys and girls are featured in the programme and will keep the youngsters busy throughout the day.

There will be three groups of contestants: Group 1, children 12 years and under; Group 2, 13 to 15, inclusive; and Group 3, 16 years and over. This will be the same for both boys and girls.

All events in the girls' programme will take place at the morning session, starting at 10 o'clock. The boys' events will be run off in the afternoon, starting at 2 o'clock. A complete programme and list of officials for the girls' meet follow:

TEAMS TO USE SAME SIGNALS AND SAME SYSTEM OF PLAY.

COACH TO HAVE MATERIAL

Veterans and Freshmen of Last Year Give Oregon Formidable Prospects This Fall.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Aug. 20.—(Special).—Shirley Har, head coach, will direct his efforts towards developing two teams of equal caliber with the opening of the 1921 gridiron season, September 15. Huntington has long planned the development of the two teams, but until this year has had no opportunity to put his plan into operation.

The two teams will use the same signals and the same systems of play so that the substitutions will be back and forth from one team to the other will not demoralize the machine. And from present indications there will be little difference in the strength of the two elevens.

As a nucleus on which to build his gridiron eleven of veterans, Huntington has Spike Leslie, left tackle for the last two years, Mart Howard, who will begin his third season on the left end; Rudd Brown, who won his letter last year at right end; Neil Moritz, who played right end last year; and Scotty Strachan, last year's right guard, and Bark Laughlin, utility center, who alternated when Brick Leslie was out of the lineup.

Back-Field Material Scarce. In the back field the veteran material will not be so extensive. Bill Reinhardt and George King, probably will be the foundation of a machine. Skeet Manerude, sensational 125-pound quarterback in the 1919 season, will play center. The line against Harvard, not to mention his work against the University of Washington last year, may be expected to be in uniform this fall. Skeet did not attend school last year. Brandy Brandenberger, captain and halfback of the team that lost to Harvard, may return this fall. In this case Huntington will have his nucleus of four letter men to work from as a back field prospect.

From his utility men of last season who did not make their letters but who got into part of the game, Frank Hill and Ducky Holmes will try for the back field, while the line position will be contested by Carl Von der Ahe and Floyd Shields.

Prospects Are Formidable. This gives Huntington a formidable prospective eleven without mentioning the reserves of the freshmen of 1921. Among these who will fight for the back field are Ken Burton, Ward Johnson and Hal Chapman, the back field quartet for the first-year men. Ken Burton, who played last year under the coaching of Ken Bartlett and Baz Williams and walloped the Oregon Aggie rooks, 13 to 0, is a 130-pounder, declares his own opinion as being that he will be back for the fall football season.

Practice Time Short. With the opening of fall practice the Oregon squad will pitch squarely into hard work for the first month to get into shape for the first year. One of Huntington's chief concerns will be to develop a punter. The loss of Bill Steers means that an educated punter will be developed to fill Bill's shoes. Huntington has his eye on Tiny Shields, an amateur, who may become a real punter, though at present he hasn't much in that line. Tiny is heavy, but may be shifted to the back field whether he can kick or not. Spike Leslie will be available as a punter, but he is a good kicker. He averaged nearly 60 yards last season, but Huntington which it is impossible to obtain a punting prospect. Ken punted for the frosh in 1920, but he is not a possibility that a kicker may be discovered among the veterans after the fall practice opens. This is Huntington's hope now.

IGNORANCE OF LIFE SAVING IS Blamed for Many Deaths. Every Swimmer Declared to Be Potential Life Saver—Approach of Drowning Persons Not Hard to Learn. IGNORANCE on the part of many swimmers in the fundamentals of life saving has caused the death of thousands of healthy men and women every year, according to Y. W. Yates, member of the local board of examiners of the American Red Cross life-saving corps. Every swimmer is a potential life saver, declares Yates, and it is not hard to learn how to approach a drowning person, and, should he grapple, to break his holds, even though he be strong, and the best methods of artificial respiration.

Notwithstanding the enormous increase in the number of swimmers, canoeists and power boatmen, the yearly number of deaths by drowning has actually decreased. This is partly due to the work of the many members of the American Red Cross life-saving corps throughout the country. The objects of this corps are to give first aid to drowning persons, to safeguard human life from drowning, to teach members and non-members the precautions that should be observed on water and preventive measures necessary to avoid accidents, such as the wearing of life jackets, and to rescue those in peril of drowning, and to resuscitate the apparently drowned. Every swimmer should make himself familiar with the theory and practice of the following tests that he may help his friends when in danger: Never enter the water to help a drowning person if you can reach him by a rope, stick, boat, oar or anything that he can take hold of, as the best swimmer is to himself familiar with the water and Don't swim farther than is necessary. If you can run to a point nearer the shore, do so. Do not get into the water unless you are sure you can get to the shore. Do not swim too fast; you may be too tired to help when you get there. If possible, always approach a

AGGIE VETS TO RETURN NEARLY ALL OLD-TIMERS TO ANSWER FIRST CALL.

Capitan Powell, Injured in Game Last Year, Anxious to Lead Team to Championship.

OREGON AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE, Corvallis, Aug. 20.—(Special).—Coach Rutherford's call to arms of the Oregon Aggie's gridiron grenadiers for September 15 will be answered by virtually all the moleskin warriors eligible for this year's varsity squad. This is the information that prevails around headquarters here in Corvallis, anxious to do his regarding prospects for the 1921 orange and black team.

Rutherford is now on his second year of Pacific Coast conference athletic tutoring. While not predicting any championship, he is confident if all of the eligible men return to school this fall that the "Fighting Aggies" will be hard to beat. New to the style of football played on the Pacific coast and with no previous knowledge regarding the ability of the players, Rutherford was at sea during the 1920 gridiron season. With a full knowledge of the quality of the players, he is confident that he will be able to lead the Aggies to a championship.

Capitan George ("Gap") Powell, all-Pacific coast fullback in 1919, who was injured in the first conference game of the 1920 schedule and forced to retire for the season, is pulling at the reins in Portland, anxious to do his football garb again. The coming season will mark Powell's last in intercollegiate football, as he has low wants to lead the Aggies to a championship. "Championship" will be taboo in the Aggie camp. Nevertheless the fighting spirit which predominates in the Aggie team will be rampant in the eleven.

The linemen who have been requested to report for early practice are: McFadden, last season's captain and Tousey Taggart and Luke Gill, also ends; Crowell, Campbell, Heyden and Taylor, tackles; Christiansen, Daigh, Clark and Micklewail, guards, and Stewart, center.

A large delegation of backfield men will invade camp, consisting of Powell, Summers, Kaesberger, Johnson, Hughie McKenna, Harold McKenna, Woods, Richard, Hagerdorn, Jenson, Geraghty, Miller, Garber, Loyce and Simons.

Rutherford is busy mapping out his offense and defense for his early practice games. Mike Butler, trainer; Nathan and Hager, assistant coaches, will be on hand September 1. Equipment is arriving daily, and the Aggie as usual will be one of the best equipped elevens in the conference.

Secrecy at Yale May Be Abolished. Secret practice for the Yale football squad this fall will probably be abolished, with the exception of a short period just before the Princeton and Harvard games. Head Coach Howard, in a statement, declared that he was in favor of having the "closed gate" system all season, as prevailed last year. Captain Howard is understood to be interested in the matter, and to promote better attendance at the early-season games.

Track Sold at Sheriff's Sale. The Mineral Springs race course at Porter, Ind., was sold recently at sheriff's sale to Charles L. Pierce of Valparaiso. It is understood Pierce purchased the property for Charles Crum packer of Valparaiso. The 120 acres brought $9000. The race course was established about seven years ago and was closed by the militia on account of gambling. A lumber company brought suit for lumber furnished about 20 creditors filed liens against the property.
