LITTLE LAUNCH IS RESCUED

Fishing Boat Brought Ashore by Life Savers of Bar View.

BAR VIEW, Or., Aug. 20.—(Special.)—Residents along the beaches last week were greatly interested in a tiny vessel which seemed to be creeping along under two small reefed sails about half a mile beyond the breakers. At Bar View the ever-watchful life-saving crew had seen the craft and the power boat was run out to see if assistance was needed.

After some time the stranger came in over the bar under its own sails but convoyed by the life-savers. It turned out to be a small fishing launch which had been operating off Destruction island. Its skipper had intended to enter the Columbia, but finding a heavy fog there had continued southward. His engine broke down and for two days and two nights, alone on the boat, he had steered along the shore without relaxation. On board was a large catch of salmon which was disposed of at Bar View.

The cottage camps and auto camping grounds were kept busy during the week caring for the crowds of visitors arriving. Auto parties from the Willamette valley are beginning to watch the tide tables and appear at times when sea food is easily obtainable.

R. N. Magness was a visitor from Amity enjoying an outing at the Clam Diggers cottage in Villa camp.

A group of about 20 people, made up of residents of Carter camp and their friends, enjoyed a party given last week by Mrs. E. P. Carter, C. A. Parker and Captain Farley at Farley's Log Cabin. A taffy pull was staged and afterward singing and story-telling about the great fireplace filled out a delightful evening.

Mrs. F. A. Reid of Portland is a guest of Mrs. R. R. Poppleton and Mrs. M. Lincoln at the Hillcrest cottage.

F. M. Pliter and wife of Portland are established at Dr. Wise's tent ground.

A motoring party reaching Bar View last week was made up of Dr. Phil A. Parsons of the University of Oregon, his wife and two children, Katrine and Helen, and their guests, Mrs. G. M. Parsons of Syracuse, N. Y., and Fred J. Stahlberger of Auburn, N. Y.

C. A. Parker and family of West Linn, Or., are spending two weeks at Camp Carter.

Mrs. Edna L. Slocum is at Bar View for the season and has with her in the Slocum cottage Mr. and Mrs. C. Crass and daughter, Stella Crass, for a ten days' visit.
