One of the most attractive of the holiday bazaars will be that at which the women of the Elks' club will preside, December 2 and 3, in Elks' temple. The booths and tables are to be gaily decorated and a general atmosphere of hospitality will prevail. Mrs. Harry D. Green, who was elected to the Presidency of the Women's Elks' card club, has been named chairman of the entire committee of arrangements and she will be assisted by several women who are prominently identified with the club. Mrs. Green has had considerable experience in arranging social and club affairs, and is an excellent executive. Mrs. M. I. Hoehfeld will direct the fancy work booth. The flower booth will be in charge of Mrs. J. B. McFiggens. Mrs. George Littleton will have the country store. Cooked foods and cakes will be found at the booth over which Mrs. George Zellar will preside. The men will find a booth to their liking. Tobacco in its various forms will be found at the department over which Mrs. E. L. Hoehfeld will be hostess. The little girls will be fascinated with the doll booth, which will be in charge of Mrs. David Smith. A room of all styles will be found in the booth over which Mrs. W. G. Hoggie will preside. "The Midnight Shift"

A Play in Three Acts
 By the author of "Henry's Christmas Saved"

Time: 11:30 P. M., Christmas eve.
 Place: Inside a U. S. mail car.

ACT I
 The curtain rises and the audience finds itself inside a U. S. mail car dashing over the tracks. Just a half hour remains before the midnight shift starts and "Red" MacDonald challenges "Buck" Leary to a game of checkers until that time. "Red," with whom we are most concerned in this play, succeeds in jumping three of his partner's men at one time, and amid his shouts of glee, the curtain falls.

ACT II
 Curtain! "Clang" goes the bell announcing the midnight shift as the men reluctantly saunter to their places. After sorting a while, "Red" remarks, "Here's a nice mess. I have just room for 50 packages of this size on that last cart at Portland and there's over 150 here. If they don't get on that cart they won't be delivered tomorrow, and they are probably all Christmas packages. How can I decide?" "Flip a coin," suggests Buck as the act ends.

ACT III
 The act opens with "Red" considering the advisability of flipping a coin. "No, I have a better plan," he remarks suddenly as the train is pulling into Portland. "I will send the packages that have Christmas seals, stickers, etc., on them first, for I know that they contain gifts. If people realized how much these things help the postal clerks, they would use more of them. My wife always buys her Christmas seals, stickers, ribbon, etc., early from the complete stock at
