

PITTAUDITORIUM RECORD IS MAILED
Surplus of $3000 in Prospect for Year's Operation.

HIGH COMMENDATION WON
 City and County Consolidation Is Discussed at Tax Conservation Commission's Session.

Felicitations over the fine record made by the municipal auditorium as a means of attracting large affairs to Portland and its communities for general excellence by notable men and companies of public performers were coupled with a discussion of the advantages and disadvantages of city and county consolidation as the outstanding feature of yesterday's session of the tax conservation commission.

The commission is to close its public hearings Tuesday. It still has the budgets of the city auditor, the civil service board and the items of special appropriations and revenues to consider. At 2 o'clock Monday afternoon will take up the matter of finance other than for city parks.

At yesterday's session, attended by Mayor Baker and City Commissioners Beslow and Mann, the board considered the budgets of the police court, city attorney, the censorship board of motion pictures and the municipal auditorium.

Auditorium Self-Sustaining.
 "Only one other large municipal auditorium in the United States, that of Milwaukee, classes with that of Portland in having a self-sustaining character," declared Harold M. White, manager of the municipal auditorium, in connection with discussions of its budget.

"Each of these institutions this year will be able to carry its operating expenses from its revenues," said Mr. White, but this does not provide for the interest and sinking fund in the auditorium bonds.

Mayor Baker was enthusiastic in his praise of the municipal auditorium as a large factor in obtaining for Portland gatherings of national importance.

"Numerous times the auditorium has proved its great worth to this community in landing large gatherings for Portland," said Mayor Baker. "And it has been most highly commended for its convenience and general excellence."

CLAY OF PHILLIPS SENTENCED TO HANG
Dan Casey Must Pay Penalty on January 26.

ROBBER GETS 25 YEARS
 William Cosby, ex-Convict Who Got Valuable Loot From Portland Citizens, Stunned by Sentence.

For 20 seconds, Dan Casey stood before Circuit Judge Kavanaugh yesterday chewing gum with a meditative air. He had just been asked if he had anything to say before sentence was pronounced in line with the verdict of a jury which had found him guilty of the murder of James H. Phillips.

"No, I have nothing to say," he finally drawled in a low tone which scarcely could be heard across the courtroom.

Judge Kavanaugh thereupon sentenced Casey to be hanged on Thursday, January 26, and concluded, "And may the infinite Father of us all have mercy on your soul."

Casey was remanded to the custody of the sheriff to be delivered to the Salem penitentiary within 20 days. His attorneys were given ten days in which to file a motion for a new trial.

Companion on Trial.
 Casey was one of a pair of box-car bandits who shot and killed Phillips, night watchman in the Albina railroad yards, in a revolver duel. John L. Burns, alleged companion of Casey, is on trial for his life in the circuit court. The jury in his case viewed the premises yesterday and the hearing was adjourned until Monday morning.

Twenty-five years in the state penitentiary was the sentence passed by Presiding Circuit Judge Morrow yesterday on William Cosby, alias J. P. Cooper, holdup man, who was arrested after being recognized on the street, November 14, and pursued by one of his victims of the night before, Mrs. H. Y. Freedman. Cosby pleaded guilty to a charge of assault and robbery, being armed with a dangerous weapon.

Cosby was an automobile bandit, operating with a man supposed to be R. E. Asplund, in a stolen automobile. Asplund also was charged when recognized with Cosby but escaped. In two active nights, Cosby and Asplund collected several thousand dollars' worth of jewelry and money from Portland victims, according to police records.

Cosby recognized by victims. Though only 23 years old, Cosby is not a novice in crime. He was sentenced to five years in San Quentin by a Los Angeles court about 18 months ago, but was admitted to parole last July.

LABOR SUPPORTS WOMEN
Proposal to Oust Married Teachers Is Protested.

The Central Labor council is opposed to any effort to remove from the Portland schools married women teachers who have other means of support, according to a statement issued yesterday by W. E. Kimsey, secretary. The statement was inspired by rumors that organized labor was behind the movement to oust such teachers from the public schools.

"One of the fundamental things," said Mr. Kimsey, "always striven for by organized labor has been the establishment and proper maintenance of public schools presided over by efficient, unhampered instructors, so that our children may receive the greatest possible benefit for the time they spend in school."

"While the council is in hearty sympathy with and will lend its unqualified support to any reasonable effort to relieve the unemployment situation, it realizes that there is in reality a shortage of efficient teachers and is therefore opposed to the removal of any who happen to be married."

HEALTH TESTS STUDIED
NORMAL HAS PLAN FOR INCREASING PUPILS' EFFICIENCY

Teachers Taught How to Detect Defects in Children Quickly. Surveys Are Planned.

OREGON NORMAL SCHOOL, Monmouth, Nov. 26.—(Special).—Plans for increasing the efficiency of pupils and to enable early detection of physical defects are being emphasized by the normal school in its programs for supplying teachers for Oregon grade and rural schools.

Emphasis is being placed on health inspection tests, which are studied especially by prospective teachers specializing in physical education. Measurements of the pupils, relative to growth and vitality, are taken and a study is made of the physiology of exercise and its application in children's plays and games.

Normal students are planning to make health surveys in the actual field of teaching to include: Posture training, methods, devices and helpful exercises; playground supervision, games, athletics, self-testing stunts and contests, and activity, discovering natural forms, modifying these for schoolroom practice, habituating their use, noting physical defects for the purpose of physical education.

Another feature is first aid, which is being learned to meet responsibilities of caring for injuries and emergency conditions.

An extensive and varied training is to be given pupils, according to the normal programme. Gymnasium work will include postural exercises, club swinging, wand and dumbbell drills, marching, relay suspension exercises on horizontal ladder and rings, rope climbing and rhythmic movements.

Practice in physical instruction is given practically teachers in the rural centers of Oak Point, Elkton, Mountain View and Eola.
