COUGARS DEFEATED BY TROJANS, 28-7

Repulse Worst of Season for Pullman Team.

LONE SCORE IS ON PASS

35-Yard Hurl Is Made in Two Minutes After Fourth Period Is Put Under Way.

TOURNAMENT PARK, Pasadena, Dec. 3. — Washington State college football team received its worst defeat of the season here today, losing to the University of Southern California, 28 to 7. The Cougars were unable to present a consistent attack or defense and were outplayed in nearly every department. About 12,000 saw the game.

Believing that on their showing against Washington State depended their chance of being selected to oppose Center college at San Diego, December 26, the Trojans opened wide the throttle, used their every play and executed each with a drive the Cougars could not stop or even delay except at times.

Determined Thrust Made.

On one occasion, the early part of the fourth period, Coach Gus Welch's athletes made a determined and sustained thrust which took the ball from their own 20-yard line to a touchdown, a succession of long gains by Zaepfel, Skadan and McIvor culminating in a 35-yard forward pass from Skadan to Hanley, who caught the oval across the goal line and was downed on the spot.

U. S. C. scored after about seven minutes of play in the first period, a fumble by Sax on his own 25-yard line paving the way. During the early part of the game, a strong dust-laden wind made the catching of punts difficult and Sax was not entirely to blame for dropping Leadingham's long, twisting spiral, which Paul Greene recovered. Two plunges by Kincaid advanced the oval 18 yards and after two more short gains by Dean and Kincaid Leadingham went through the line for a touchdown. Evans kicked goal.

The game play by play:

First Period.

Evans kicked off to Sax, who returned the ball ten yards to W. S. C.'s 24-yard line. On the second formation Dunton punted and Leadingham carried the ball back ten yards to the Trojans' 40-yard line. University of Southern California failed to gain and Leadingham punted to the Cougars' 25-yard line. On the second play Sax fumbled and Green, the Trojans' right end, recovered. On a double pass Kincaid went 12 yards through left tackle. Kincaid gained six yards through right tackle. Dean and Kincaid gained a few feet and on the next play Leadingham went through the line for a touchdown. Evans kicked goal.

Second Period.

The Cougars elected to receive again. The Trojans recovered a Washington State college fumble on the latter's 25-yard line. Leadingham went 10 yards. Tiernan gained 10 around right end and on the next play Dean went through guard for a touchdown. Evans kicked goal.

The Cougars were unable to gain after receiving Evans' kickoff and Dunton punted. Line plunges took the Trojans to the Cougars' 30-yard line, where Sax intercepted a forward pass thrown by Tiernan.

After an exchange of punts Sax fumbled on being tackled by Greene and Smith, Greene recovering on the Cougars' 45-yard line. Sandberg intercepted Tiernan's forward pass on his 45-yard line. Sandberg gained eight yards through left tackle. Sandberg went 11 yards through right tackle. Triesby, Sax, Melvor and Winans failed and the Trojans took the ball on their 33-yard line.

Leadingham punted to the W. S. C. 20-yard line and Sax returned the ball five yards. Winans made first down on an eight-yard run off left tackle. The half ended with the ball on the W. S. C. 45-yard line.

Third Period.

Evans kicked off over the Cougars' goal line and the ball was brought to the 20-yard line. Plunges by Winans gave W. S. C. two consecutive first downs.

Dean intercepted McIvor's pass on W. S. C.'s 40-yard line and ran 15 yards before being downed. Dean gained 10 yards around right end. Dream gained eight through right tackle and fumbled, but Leadingham recovered.

Two plunges by Dean took the ball over. Evans kicked goal.

Evans on the next kickoff shot the ball over the Cougars' goal line. The Cougars carried the ball to the Trojans' 20-yard line, where Dean intercepted Dunton's pass. The teams exchanged several punts.

One of Leadingham's long spirals rolled to the Cougars' 10-yard line. Evans blocked Dunton's kick and fell on the ball behind the line for a touchdown. Evans kicked goal. Evans kicked off once more. Long runs by Zaepfel, Skadan and McIvor took the ball to U. S. C.'s 35-yard line, where the quarter ended.

Fourth Period.

Two minutes after the fourth period openen, Skaden hurled a 35-yard pass to Hanley, who caught the ball across the Trojans' goal line, scoring a touchdown. Skadan kicked the goal.

Evans kicked off. Smith recovered a Cougar fumble on the W. S. C. 30-yard line. Lockett gained 12 around left end. Lockett gained three yards, then four yards. The Cougars held the enemy for downs on the 20-yard line.

W. S. C. punted to midfield. Dean gained 25 on two plunges. Leadingham gained six yards and Dean made eight. Dean made first down on the Cougars' eight-yard line. U. S. C was penalized five yards for offside play.

The game ended on W. S. C. 20-yard line with the Cougars futilely attempting to forward pass.

2 SOCCER GAMES TODAY

CANADIAN VETS TO MEET HONEYMAN TEAM.

Macleay Scots Will Have No One to Play Since Withdrawal of Peninsula From League.

Portland Soccer League Standings.

	P	W	L	T	Pts
Macleays	6	4	1	1	9
Canadian Vets	6	3	1	2	8
Cameronx	6	0	4	2	2
Honeyman	5	0	2	1	1
Kerns	5	0	2	1	1

Two points for a win, one point for a draw.

Two games will be played in the Portland soccer league today. The Canadian Vets will play the Honeyman team at the Franklin bowl, while the Camerons and Kerns will tangle on the Jefferson high school grounds. Both games will start at 2:30 o'clock. Donald Harris will referee the Vets-Honeyman contest, while Ed Michelson will officiate in the other meeting.

Owing to the withdrawal of the Peninsula soccer club from the league last Monday night, the Macleay Scots will remain idle today, being opponentless. The Peninsula team protested its game with the Scots at last Monday night's meeting of the soccer association on the ground that full time was not played. When the game ended in a turmoil the Macleays were leading, 1 goal to 0. The rivalry was intense and caused some pent-up feelings to burst. At the Monday night meeting the Peninsula representatives thought that their protest was not being received with enough enthusiasm by the other delegates and left the gathering before any decision had been reached.

A picked team of Portland soccer team stars will journey to Corvallis for a game with the Oregon Aggies' soccer team within the next two weeks. The Aggie team has not been defeated this season.

At the meeting of the soccer association it was announced that no player would be permitted to conduct himself in a disorderly manner. So far each player has been on his honor to conduct himself like a sportsman and some have failed to do so. The tone of the meeting was that the referees would be empowered to put any player off the field who misbehaves himself. The association clearly indicated that any player who violates the rules must be suspended from playing.

The English association only recently suspended one of the finest players who ever kicked a ball, Andy Wilson, center forward for the Middlesborough team, was suspended for three months for razzing the umpire, with the loss of pay during that time.

WELCOME GIVEN AGGIES

GREAT CROWD OF STUDENTS AWAITS RETURNING TEAM.

Breaks of Game With Southern California All Go to Opponents and College Disappointed.

OREGON AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE, Corvallis, Dec. 3.—(Special.)—Several hundred students were at the depot to welcome the fighting Aggie football team upon their return from Pasadena, where they played the University of Southern California November 26.

The team naturally is disappointed with the result of the game. With Powell out and the team on a hard turf field during an unusually hot afternoon, the team started the game under a great handicap

Every break in the game went against the Aggies. When Evans of Southern California broke through and blocked the Aggies' punt, which resulted in the victory for the Los Angeles school, there was considerable argument as to whether or not Evans was off-side. Then on top of it, the Aggies received the only penalty of the game, which placed the ball down within scoring distance for their opponents.

Another break of the game was after Kasberger had intercepted a forward pass and had run 30 yards down the field, only to be brought back because both teams were off-side.

The real breaks, which prevented the Aggies from scoring were two fumbles, both of which were made because the Aggies men were tackled in such a way that the ball was knocked out of their hands before the runner left his feet.

With the exception of these breaks the game was exceptionally close and hard fought by both sides. Those who saw the game in the south are exceptionally well pleased with the showing made by the team under the conditions they were playing.

TOO MUCH WRIST IN SHOTS MAIN CAUSE OF "PRESSING"

Jock Hutchison Says Importance of Wrists in Making Golf Shots Has Been Much Over-Emphasized.

BY JOCK HUTCHISON,
Only American to win British open championship.

I WANT to warn the golfing public, or that part of it which is interested in learning to play a better game, that making the shots is not simply a "twist of the wrist."

This mistaken belief has led more good golfing prospects into oblivion than any other one thing that has been whispered about the links or commented upon in the instruction books.

Often one will hear another golfer say: "It was only a little wrist shot," or, "You didn't get that one away properly because you didn't get your wrists into it."

This leads the golfer to believe that hitting the ball with a wrist movement is all there is to the game. He tries to get his wrists into every shot in some awkward manner and the result is that he is getting further and further away from the correct principles of the game.

After all what part do the wrists play? They have their part to perform to be sure, but it is a very small and insignificant part. When one is told to get the wrists into the drive he naturally thinks that the time to do this is at the moment of impact.

When about to hit the ball, the golfer so instructed tries something unusual at this instant and the club head swerves from its proper path.

The wrists come into use at the very beginning in starting the club head. They come into use again at the top of the swing, where they must be placed just right to insure holding the club to the line. They might be said to start the club downward also.

Wrists Don't Do Much.

In nearly every instance, when the word "wrist" is used the word "forearm" should be substituted. The wrists have practically no power at all. The wrist is necessary because it connects the forearm with the hand and its use is not of much consequence in making a shot.

If one will hold out the arm and try to make the hand do some stunt by working the wrist alone it will easily be seen just how little it can make without the assistance of the forearm. If you will place your hand on your forearm and then try to work the wrist you will feel the forearm muscles come into play.

With a better understanding of the limited use of the wrists in the shot and the actual work that the forearms are called upon to do, one can correct many faults.

One of the easiest faults to acquire in trying to snap the wrists into the shot, is that of "pressing" or hurrying the swing. Putting the wrists into a shot really is no more than rolling the forearms, which is a very simple and natural thing to do and something that requires but little effort.

Large hands are useful in golf and a strong forearm of the greatest importance, but one need not have a large wrist. A large wrist with a small hand and an undeveloped forearm would not help the golfer to get any power into his swing.

There is a great difference in the distance that a good man golfer gets with his wood and irons and the distance from a first-class woman player obtains.

Most women golfers, true to their sex, do not have well developed arms. I think that Miss Hollins, the new American woman champion, and Miss Cecil Leitch, the British champion, are an exception. Both these girls use their irons well, which is usually the supreme test. The distance from the tee takes care of itself. If you can hit a proper iron shot you can most certainly get all the distance from the tee that is necessary.

Women Afraid to Hit.

A great fault with women golfers, that is the majority of them, is that they do not hit the ball very hard. It is not because they do not have the necessary strength. Most of them do not use all the power they have at their command.

They appear to be afraid to let out at the ball for fear of missing it altogether or not hitting it properly. There is a way to hit hard without pressing.

When you are at the top of your swing and about to descend on the little white globe there is a temptation to start putting the power into the blow too soon. This is especially true of most duffers when they want to gain extra distance. They cannot wait for the club head to come around.

Hard hitting comes from proper timing and the harder we strive to hit the more we must be certain of waiting for the club head. No move forward must be made with the body until the club has connected with the ball. Then is time enough to put all you have into the blow.

In connecting with the ball there must be a tightening of the grip, which also means a tightening of the forearms. Up to this point the hands and forearms have been supple. The tightening must not come all at once. It must be accomplished gradually, so as not to cause any jerky movement. As I said before, in another article, it is fatal to attempt to hit the ball without a firm grip on the club. The hands are a sort of hinge in one long drive reaching from the shoulder to the club head. If it is a weak hinge all of the power in the long shaft of half arm and half hickory is lost. It is like the chain which is no stronger than its weakest link.

Y. M. C. A. SCHEDULE OPENED

Colonials Defeat Olympians and Victorians Nose Out Columbians.

The young men's division of the Y. M. C. A. had started its interclub league basketball schedule. The Colonial club defeated the Olympians, 15 to 4, in the opening contest. The Olympians had one of their best men on the shelf. The Victorians nosed out the Columbians, 15 to 12. This was a surprise as the Columbians had won most of their practice games.

A double-header is set for Tuesday night at 8 o'clock. The Excelsior club will meet the Iroquois and the Victorians will play the Colonials.

SIX BOYS TRAINING IN WINGED M TANK

Divers Get Ready to Participate in Meets.

NEW RULES CRITICISED

National Amateur Athletic Union Is Said to Have Made Mistake in Adopting Regulations.

Jack Cody, swimminginstructor of the Multnomah club, has some wonderful prospects for diving honors in a group of six boys who are in training for future meets at the club tank. The list includes Weldon Hyde, Dave Fall, Gurtin Carroll, Frank Lasiter, Warren Lasiter and Lloyd Beverly, the largest number of boys who have been in training for aerial honors at Multnomah club in some time.

They are all showing up like future champions. The first indoor meet of the season is the city championships, to be held at Multnomah club probably in January, and the aquatic fans will have a chance to look Cady's youngsters over at that time.

Blackie McFadden, who won two third places in the last Pacific coast driving meet and holds the Pacific Northwest association title, has signified his intention of joining the Winged M team of divers. McFadden has had more experience than the Multnomah youngsters, and will make a valuable addition to the club string.

Rudiments Are Mastered.

The divers are working out four times a week from the club springboard. They have mastered the rudiments of the diving game and are now working to polish up the technique of their dives.

Cody is up in arms over the new ruling regarding diving which was put over at the recent meeting of the National Amateur Athletic union in Chicago. The diving rules have been changed to conform to a great extent with the international rules. This, according to Cody, might work out all right when the boys went to Europe, but will upset the diving world considerably on this side of the water.

Instead of the four compulsory and six optional, as was the rule before, there will be four compulsory, four optional and two post dives. This means that a diver will make his first four compulsory dives, then select his four voluntary dives, and then draw for the other two dives. The two post dives must be drawn by lot from a list of about 24 voluntary dives, and the contestant will have no idea beforehand what the two post dives will be.

Objection Is Made.

Right there is where the rub comes in, according to Cody. It means that every diver going into competition will have had to master at least 24 dives, of which he will use only two. Getting 10 or 12 dives down so that they can be performed with any amount of skill is hard enough, declares Cody, but when it comes to mastering 24 dives to such a degree that a high rating will be gained on the score sheets is almost out of the question. According to Cody, many of the dives on the list are freak dives which the divers are rarely called upon to perform. But under the new system the diver would have to be prepared for any emergency, for if he fell down on one dive it would put him out of the running in the meet.

Cody is not the only one who does not favor the change in the diving rules. T. Morris Dunne, secretary-treasurer of the Pacific Northwest association, the governing body in amateur athletics in the northwest, does not see where the diving game will benefit from the radical change.

Olympic Rules Used.

Evidently those who had the change put through had in view the Olympic games, where the diving is held under the international rules. Inasmuch as two Pacific coast boys, Louis Kuehn of the Multnomah club and Clarence Pinkston of the Olympic club, San Francisco, carried off the lion's share of the honors in diving at the last Olympic games, there cannot be anything very radically wrong with the system now in vogue in this country.

Pole-Vaulter Rhodes Entrant.

WASHINGTON STATE COLLEGE, Pullman, Dec. 3.—(Special.)—Eldon Jenne, holder of the northwest conference pole-vault record, will be the lone Washington State entry in the Rhodes scholarship competition. After an unsuccessful attempt last year, Jenne was advised by F. D. Metzger, state chairman of the Rhodes committee, to try again. He will be in competition with men from the University of Washington and Whitman.

Gibbons to Box O'Dowd.

ST. PAUL, Dec. 2.—Mike Gibbons and Mike O'Dowd, St. Paul middleweights, will box a ten-round no-decision bout here December 16, it was announced tonight. Each boxer will receive 35 per cent of the gross receipts.

Washington and Jefferson Wins.

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 3.—Uncovering speed and consistent driving power, Washington and Jefferson's football team defeated the University of Detroit today, 14 to 2. It was the first time this year that Detroit has been beaten.
