FARM RELIEF PLAN AIM OF CONFERENCE

Policy for Developing Agriculture Expected.

BUSINESS TO BE AIDED

Growers and Men in Associated Industries to Meet in Washington Probably January 15.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 31.—Remedial measures to meet the farm situation and laying down of a permanent policy for development of a self-sustaining agriculture are expected to result from the national agricultural conference to be called by Secretary Wallace, at the request of President Harding. The conference, it was indicated today, probably would meet here about January 15.

Farmers and representatives of lines interested in farmers' products will make up the personnel of the conference, which, it was said today, would number between 100 and 150. Farmers' organizations, manufacturers of farmers' products, transportation interests, marketing agencies, shipping interests, fertilizer makers, farm implement manufacturers, packers, state agricultural college representatives, cotton, grain, livestock, fruit commission men, experts on rural social problems and bankers are expected to attend.

Conference to Aid Business.

An official of the agricultural department today asserted that the conference in finding measures for relieving distress of the farmers will be reviving business of all lines through restoration of the farmers' purchasing power.

The conference, it was indicated authoritatively, will first meet and map out its programme. It was suggested that the members probably would then divide into committees along lines of production, transportation, manufacturing and marketing, and these would have sub-committees on wheat, corn, cotton, tobacco, fruit and the like.

Questions of transportation, agricultural financing, utilization of land resources, forestry, policies on land leasing which would include contracts and rents, marketing, including statistics, warehousing and terminal developments and rural social life, in the opinion of agriculture department officials, probably would be on the programme.

Policies to Be Formulated.

Policies respecting more efficient production and involving control of animal and plant diseases, it is thought, will evolve from the deliberations. This would include a new national policy for fighting the boll weevil and the corn-borer.

The conference, it was explained, will work in the fullest harmony and co-operation with the joint congressional committee which has been investigating agricultural problems.

The farmers' national council issued a statement today, saying:

"The president's proposed conference of farming interests plus the interests related thereto, that is, interests which have exploited agriculture, will doubtless be the same sort of a bluff and a fraud as the president's conference on unemployment and the president's conference to limit the limitation of armaments."

PROSPEROUS YEAR AHEAD

erally speaking, I think we are going to have a wonderful year of progress, in building, improvements and a forward movement all along the line. When spring opens, I look for great changes for the better."

A. L. Barbur, city commissioner of public works, under whose supervision comes building and improvements, yesterday expressed himself as of the opinion that 1922 will be Portland's banner year in home and other construction. He said he and his assistants had tried to reach a conservative estimate as to the outlay in this line and had reached the conclusion that it would run to approximately $21,000,000, thereby outdoing the city's record year to date, when about $20,000,000 was the figure.

"There seems to be no let-up to building operations and the outlook is very good, indeed," said Mr. Barbur. "We believe the city will witness an expenditure of approximately $21,000,000 in construction work in 1922."

As to improvements, such as sewers and pavements, Mr. Barbur said his force can handle up to $1,500,000 worth. Had he the personnel, he said, he would be called upon to supervise $4,000,000 worth and on account of lack of help has had to adopt a policy of declining to accept any more petitions.

Three Projects to Be Completed.

The department over which Mr. Barbur has control will complete three great sewer projects in 1922, these being the Lents trunk, Foster road and Oregonian street. These are three of the largest ever installed here. In the paving line and other general improvement work there are many contracts to be finished.

The principal building projects which have been announced include the Elks' temple, $1,000,000; Scottish Rite cathedral, $1,000,000; Swetland hotel, to be built at Fifth and Washington streets, $750,000; Emanuel hospital, $350,000; Ambassador apartments, $300,000; Italian Gardeners' association building, $250,000, and University of Oregon medical school, $225,000.

Coupled with one of the large and very significant features of the year's prospective activity is the dredging of a portion of Swan island by the harbor authorities and the use of the dredgings for filling in ground upon which the great "break-up" yards of the Northern Pacific, Southern Pacific, Great Northern, Union Pacific and Spokane, Portland & Seattle roads are to construct on Guild's lake. This combination will effect two much-needed improvements in the city's business life, namely, the straightening of the so-called west channel of the Willamette river, greatly facilitating the passage of the shipping of the port, and the providing of a modern freight terminal for use by the railroads entering the city.

Water Supply to Be Increased.

Portland's water supply, while adequate for a city much larger than Portland now is, will be augmented as soon as the city constructs the new conduit, authorized by the council. The first unit of this is to be put in this year, according to present plans.

H. B. Van Duzer, president of the Portland Chamber of Commerce, declared himself an optimist, in the following language:

"Even in the face of the great period of slacking during the past year, Portland has made material progress. The same lack of factionalism that has of recent years been in evidence, continued in the future, will, in large degree, assure her continued prosperity and advancement.

"Portland's future material growth can only be maintained by the development of the country behind her. Minor controversies will naturally always arise, but the citizens of Portland and, in a broader sense, the citizens of Oregon, must realize their future is interlocked; we must approach in a definite way the problems that face an undeveloped empire. Problems of irrigation, drainage, logged-off lands and land settlement are as much problems of Portland as they are of the various sections of the state.

"May this sentiment grow in 1922."

State Aid for Fair Urged.

That the entire state should be unified and solidified on the 1925 exposition project and that 1922 should see every section of Oregon energetically and enthusiastically backing it, is what should be one of the great realizations of the new year, according to Julius L. Meier, chairman of the temporary board of directors.

"The outline of the exposition programme includes every section of the state," said Mr. Meier. "Far from being a Portland project, it seeks to promote the prosperity and to advertise to the whole world the resources and advantages of every section of Oregon. Plans include features such as showing to the best advantage possible in the latest and most comfortable manner the beauties of Crater Lake park, our beaches, mountains, Klamath lake, Coos bay, where a national regatta could be held, and Astoria, which could put on an international regatta; many very large things like stock shows, horse and dog shows could be worked into the scheme.

People Believed to Favor.

"I have faith that the exposition project will be successful, and I still believe that the rank and file of the people want it; that they will have it and that it will prove to be the most beneficial feature ever undertaken in this state. We have no idea how large and wonderful will be the blessings from it, but suffice it to say that they will be most helpful to the whole state and to the entire northwest."

"The churches of Portland have reason to face the work of 1922 with enthusiastic hopefulness," said Dr. Edward Constant, president of the ministerial association. "The task awaiting them may tax to the utmost their faith and patience, but it is also one of splendid opportunity.

"If the conditions of the times be deemed peculiar, it must be remembered that Christianity has a message for every phase and emergency of life. That message is for the uplift of men, the healing of the world's ills and the promotion of friendliness. Therefore, the mind of the churches should be practical, sympathetic, courageous and spiritual. Only then can they be true representatives of the Christ; he is their light and inspiration. The more they imitate his spirit, the closer will they get together and the greater will be the influence they make upon society."

CHOICE LIQUORS SEIZED

FINE BRANDS OF WHISKY ARE TAKEN FROM VESSELS.

Collector of Customs' Force Gets Large Haul in Making Several Raids Aboard Ship.

To steal a march on another column—Do you remember when on New Year's eve all the saloonkeepers presented their best friends and customers with small individual bottles of choice whisky and brandy? Well, George U. Piper, collector of customs, yesterday seized a box containing 12 dozen of these choice bottles filled with Three-Star Hennessey brandy, which his special agents found on the good ship Las Vegas.

Large quantities of choice liquor also were found on the West Keats and cases of other brands of fine stuff came off the Las Vegas at the same time as did the coveted individual bottles, which probably were intended as fine New Year's gifts.

The haul made by customs searchers included a number of cases believed to contain genuine Sunnybrook. This came off the West Keats, while off the Los Vegas came an unusually large consignment of Johnny Walker, both black and red labeled, some Haig & Haig and smaller amounts of other precious liquor.

All of the seizure was consigned to the safe in the collector's office, beyond the reach of New Year's revelers.

The two ships had been in the harbor several days. When they entered the Columbia the usual customs officials boarded each and came up the river. At the dock, these officials were relieved by others who were stationed on the ships in three eight-hour shifts until the searching parties reached them yesterday.

Collector Piper said his force had been unusually busy during the past week, there having been more foreign vessels in the harbor than at any time during several years. He praised his men and the work they were doing. Several of these, he said, were familiar with every nook and crany of big boats and even dragged oil vats and scraped out places beneath machinery.

The force of special inspectors includes several men who have been naval officers, graduating from Annapolis, and a number of ex-service men. Some of these Mr. Piper said he had recruited from among disabled veterans and they were proving very valuable to his force.

ITALIAN LANDS RESTORED

Government to Rebuild Villages in Julian Venetia.

ROME, Dec. 31.—Senator Mosconi, commissioner-general for the region of the Julian Venetia, which Italy has redeemed at the cost of so much blood and treasure, has given some particulars of the cost to Italy of the reconstruction and organization of these newly acquired lands.

Besides the ordinary civil and military expenses for governing the country, extraordinary administrative expenses amount to more than 1,500,000,000 lire (about $75,000,000) and it is hoped that within the year the towns and villages destroyed or damaged in the war will have been reconstructed.

The shipping of Trieste has all been returned to her, and it is hoped very shortly to start her traffic again with Czecho-Slovakia, Germany, Poland, Hungary and Jugo-Slavia.

Navy Deserter Surrenders.

ROSEBURG, Or., Dec. 31.—(Special.)—Eric A. Sommers, who says he deserted the United States navy at Mare island more than a year ago, surrendered himself to the local police officers late this evening. He was destitute and hungry, he said, and asked to be returned to the navy-yard. The officers here have telegraphed the navy-yard for instructions.

RUSSIA HELD KEY TO THRIFTY YEAR

World Must Open Doors of Nation, Says Harden.

ECONOMIC PIVOT MOVING

Vast Territories of Soviet Country and China Holding Attention of Internationalists.

BY MAXIMILIAN HARDEN.

(Copyright, 1921, by The Oregonian.)

BERLIN, Dec. 31.—(Special Cable.)—Let us give the old year an appropriate farewell, remembering that if it failed to bring the longed-for earthly paradise, it at least was not as ugly as it was expected to be. Despite gloomy prophecies, the world has not come to an end, and we poor descendents of Cain and of the ape should not ask more than that when we are living on three years after the most destructive of all wars.

What will the new year bring? It probably will not bring wine and whisky back to America, nor make Lenine a junior partner in the Standard Oil company, nor Trotzky commanding officer of the Salvation Army, nor Foch a propagandist for the Einstein theory, nor will it make Charlie Chaplin a great Hamlet. These are certainties, but it is difficult to be sure of much more than that. It is easier to outline what 1922 ought to accomplish if it is to go down in history as a year of prosperity.

Economic Pivot Moving.

The political and economic pivot of the world is moving eastward. The vast territories of Russia and China will hold the attention of those who are seeking international economic reconstruction. The most important international frontier of the future is that separating the Asia of the Russia, Mongol, Chinaman and Mussulman Turk from Germanic central Europe. We must not close the door of the world's greatest market, east Europe and Asia Minor, whose fertile lands have never been properly cultivated. Nor must we close the doors of the German machine shop, which, after America, is the most efficient in the world.

The United States needs a convalescent, renaissant China, not a China held sterile by foreign guardianship. The British empire needs a friendly Islam in Arabia and India. France needs a physically capable and a willing Germany for reparations. All three, therefore, have a direct interest in keeping Russia's three doors open.

Treaty Is Necessary.

As there is no present hope of a speedy fusion between Woodrow Wilson's league of nations and the one planned by President Harding, a treaty patterned after the Washington four-power agreement, guaranteeing for ten years the inviolability of the possessions of the United States, the British empire, France, Germany and Russia, would be useful. Each power should pledge itself to consult the other signatories if its vital interests were threatened and in any dispute between two of them the other three should be consulted.

Such a pact would not burden the United States with European entanglements but would control bolshevik agitation and obviate the increasing danger of a revival of the Anglo-French enmity. It would make world disarmament possible. It might civilize and modernize Russia, a huge undertaking which ought to begin this spring with a system of world-wide volunteer labor service in Russia, using those in every land who learned so well how to command during the war.

Working Russia Needed.

With Russia once more at work, equipped with railroads and machines, the bulging warehouses of the exporting nations can be emptied of their goods. With a far-sighted credit system, the factory fires throughout the world could be relighted, the unemployed put back to work and Russia's neighbors would be strengthened and enabled once more to purchase goods abroad. A quarter of a billion white people who want goods from overseas now can't buy them. An export industry in metals, chemicals, textiles, etc., one-third as large as Germany's has been built up in the western countries as a result of the war and so the potential supply of such goods is almost unlimited, but the demand has fallen off to one-fourth of the normal.

This situation is not helped by so-called conferences which really are nothing but junkets arranged by versatile ministers who enjoy a game of golf on the azure coast of the Mediterranean during the foggy months of winter. Nor is it improved by the childish belief of the French chamber that the Germans pay only one-half as much in taxes as the French—if they paid double what they now pay they would be paying more than their total incomes.

Financial Danger Looms.

Even those who are ignorant of public economics should comprehend that a relatively small land, exhausted by years of war with a superior force can't pay billions year after year without wrecking the world's financial structure by inflation and loans, or destroying its economic fabric by forced mass exportation of cheap goods.

The quadruple Pacific agreement and the limitation of navies are steps along the stony path towards international community. If 1922 is to bring a desire to look forward more than in the past, then indeed, it should be hailed joyfully.

DEMOCRATS PLAN FEAST

Battle of New Orleans to Be Celebrated on January 7.

Plans are being perfected for the 107th anniversary of the battle of New Orleans, the annual rallying day of democrats throughout the nation. A banquet will be held on Saturday night, January 7, at 6:30 o'clock at the Benson hotel. The event will be a social as well as a political affair for Oregon democrats.

Messages are being received by Harvey G. Starkweather, president of the Jackson club from democrats of national repute bearing on the significance of the day. The programme will be announced later. Mr. Starkweather has named 107 democratic men and women to act as a committee on reception as follows:

Messrs and Mesdames B. F. Irvine, Richard W. Montague, L. L. Langley, A. F. Flegel, R. A. Miller, W. T. Slater, Elton Watkins, Paul C. Belt, J. W. Morrow, W. N. Gatens, John H. Stevenson, C. J. WORK MORE, SAYS GARY

MORE ECONOMY ALSO DECLARED NEEDED.

Enforcement of Law and Order Also Considered to Be Prime Essential of Day.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—More work, economy and enforcement of law and order are prime essentials of the day, in the opinion of Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel corporation, who today issued this statement:

"Readjustments and reconstructions are not complete. Difficulties still embarrass and industrial disturbances threaten.

"Extravagance and indolence are prevalent. Crimes and misdemeanors are common. Profiteering still exists.

"There is urgent need for more work, economy and saving. Stricter observance and enforcement of law are demanded.

"Even though the present is somewhat critical, it is certain the opportunity for established peace, progress and prosperity is better than ever.

"The signs which are apparent indicate that conditions, industrial, commercial, financial, social and political, are improving and will be more satisfactory during the present year than during 1921. Of course, the situation may be changed by failure of the Washington conference by unfavorable legislation or by neglect thoroughly and continuously to maintain law and order. We have no present reason for expecting either of them."

BOY, 15, KILLED BY CHUM

Gun Is Discharged Accidentally While Pair Are Hunting.

ABERDEEN, Wash., Dec. 31.—(Special.)—James B. Russell, 15, was shot and killed instantly about 10 o'clock this morning when a gun in the hands of his chum, Calvin Fix, 15, was discharged accidentally.

The two boys had gone hunting and had sat down on the bank of the Chehalis river, about a mile from Elma. A flock of ducks rose from the water and both boys reached for the gun. Young Fix obtained it after a scuffle, but as he wrested it from his friend's hands it was fired, the charge entering Russell's head. Russell was the son of Mrs. Naomi Grantier of Elma. Fix is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fix, also of Elma.

The coroner's jury, sitting at Elma, found that Russell's death was due to "the accidental discharge of a shotgun through the careless handling of it by both Russell and Calvin Fix."

ELKS SANTA TO ORPHANS

Baskets of Toys and Candy Taken to Beaverton Institution.

The Portland order of Elks played Santa Claus to the orphan children at St. Mary's home at Beaverton yesterday, a committee from the local order taking out baskets of toys and candy for the children and aiding them in a big Christmas and New Year's celebration.

The committee in charge of this feature of the Elks' Christmas work consisted of Frank B. Hennessy, H. D. Hansen and George Siebels, and the three men took 75 Christmas baskets and a large box of toys to the home by motor truck. The baskets, one for each of the orphan youngsters, contained Christmas candy, nuts and fruit and were similar to the boxes given away on Christmas day at the Elks' entertainment here.

BARON ROSEN IS DEAD

EX-RUSSIAN AMBASSADOR SUCCUMBS TO TAXI INJURIES.

Diplomat Once World-Famous for More Than 4 Years Exile From Native Land.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—Baron Rosen, ex-Russian ambassador to the United States, who was recently knocked down by a taxicab here, died today. With him at the end was his wife, who hastened to his bedside from Paris on receiving word of the accident.

Baron Rosen, formerly Russian ambassador to the United States, and one of the peace envoys who settled the war between Russia and Japan, for more than four years had been an exile from his native land.

A one-time world-famous diplomat, he spent the last years of his life in the United States, where he engaged in writing for magazines and newspapers. He came of very old Swedish stock, was born in 1849 and educated at the University of Dorpat and the Imperial Academy of Laws in Petrograd. His ancestors followed the banner of Gustavus Adolphus in the invasion of Muscovy 300 years ago and settled in Lithuania, where the family maintained a vast estate. The Rosens gave Russia many distinguished generals, diplomats and writers. A brother of Baron Rosen achieved eminence in science. He was a member of the Russian Academy of Immortals, and was, perhaps, at one time the greatest authority on Arabia.

Baron Rosen, because of his scholarship and desire for world peace, was a trusted adviser of the late Emperor Nicholas. He had been a state councillor, chamberlain of the imperial court and a knight of the Order of St. Vladimir, St. Ann and St. Stanislaus.

A talented musician, he spoke English, French, German, Italian and Japanese. For many years he was in the foreign service of Russia.

STILLMANS STILL APART

Efforts of Would-Be Peace-Makers Fruitless.

(Copyright, 1921, by The Oregonian.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—(Special.)—Everybody except the Stillmans are trying to bring about a reconciliation. Christmas week brought its large crop of rumors, but they ended abruptly when Mrs. Stillman and James R. Jr. took a train for Canada to trek the frozen wilderness interviewing witnesses for the defense up to the time the Canadian hearings begin early in the month.

Everybody except the Stillmans had been a good deal perturbed over why Mr. Stillman cancelled a luncheon engagement with his children the other day and whether Anne Stillman made her unexpected Christmas trip home from Paris for the purpose of effecting the much-talked-of reconciliation.

A number of people, too, were worried because the banker did not send holiday gifts to Anne and Guy, though he did send them to the other two young people. Exactly why Mr. Stillman fell down on his luncheon engagement is not yet known, but when James Jr. was asked if he expected to dine with his father, he replied:

"Gosh, no!" Which, all things considered, did not sound like the forerunner of a reconciliation.

SLAYER'S FORTUNE TOLD

French Woman Says Letter "G" Was Fatal to Henri Landru.

PARIS, Dec. 31.—The letter "G" was fatal for Henri Landru, who was convicted of murdering his ten fiancees, in the opinion of a French fortune teller. She pointed out that G was the initial letter for Gambais, the villa where Landru's fiancees met their untimely end, and also for Gilbert, president of the court before which Landru was tried and, for Godefroy, advocate-general of the court.

This fatal letter, the fortune teller predicted, was leading Landru inevitably toward the instrument of justice, the guillotine, the name of which also begins with G.

Railway Fare Is Reduced.

OLYMPIA, Wash., Dec. 31.—(Special.)—The Seattle & Rainier Valley railway has filed with the department of public works a supplement to its tariff, which in effect reduces the fare between Renton from 20 to 15 cents. The supplement provides for the issuance of commutation ticket books, 26 tickets to the book, for $3.90, to replace the present through cash fare of 20 cents. The supplement becomes effective January 15.
