

COLONEL BROOKS DEAD

SON OF OREGON PIONEERS
BURIED AT WASHINGTON.Military Service Began in 1882 at West Point, Where High Honors Were Won in Test.

Word has been received in Portland of the death at New York city of Colonel Edwards Cranston Brooks, son of a pioneer Oregon family, and himself a resident of this state during his early childhood. He died January 14 of pneumonia and was buried at Arlington cemetery, Washington, D. C., last Tuesday.

Colonel Brooks entered the military academy at West Point in 1882 as a cadet from Oregon after passing a competitive examination with high honors. He was graduated with the rank of second lieutenant in 1886. Shortly after his graduation he married Margaret Gray of Chicago.

He was the son of Major Quincy Adams Brooks, one of the early settlers of Oregon. His father took a leading part in the development of the northwest during the pioneer days and served in the Modoc Indian war. On his mother's side he was of the Cranston family, early settlers of the Willamette valley, near Salem.

Colonel Brooks was with General Leonard Wood in the Spanish-American war and did notable work in cleaning up Santiago and Havana during the reconstruction period. Later he was auditor for the United States of Cuba. He likewise served for some time in the Philippines.

About 1904 Colonel Brooks resigned from the army and went into business in Ecuador. He was there for several years and then became a traveling representative of the American Bank Note company, devoting much of his time in South and Central American countries because of his knowledge of the Latin-American people. He was associated with the company at the time of his death.

Colonel Brooks is survived by his widow at Washington, D. C., and by two daughters, both married.

STILL FOUND IN HOME

WIFE CAUGHT AS HUSBAND
MAKES DELIVERIES.

"I've Gone to Jail, Dear," Is Note
Guilty, Fined $250.

"Sorry, gentlemen, but my husband is out making his morning deliveries," was the greeting of Mrs. Lucile Bowe, aged 24, to Deputy Sheriff Schirmer, Beaman and Wolfe when the officers rapped on the door of her home at 4908, Fifty-eighth street, Southeast. She said she had no list of her husband's moonshine customers.

Evidence unearthed in the house, which was found a 12-gallon still, three gallons of finished product and 350 gallons of mash, convinced the officers that Mrs. Bowe was quite as much implicated as her husband in the manufacture of liquor during the past two months at that address and she was taken to court. "I've gone to jail, dear," was the brief note she left on the kitchen table for her absent spouse.

Mrs. Bowe was not held in custody for long. She pleaded guilty for herself and husband and was fined $250 by District Judge Bell, who pronounced a jail sentence for a second offense.

WORK FOR JOBLESS FOUND

NOVEL MEANS EMPLOYED BY VARIUS CITIES AND TOWNS.

Reports Collected by Organization
Started by Recent National Conference on Unemployment.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 21.—Novel means are being employed by various cities and towns throughout the United States to provide work for the jobless, according to reports collected by Colonel Arthur Woods, head of the organization charged with carrying on work started by the recent national conference on unemployment.

Summaries of these reports show means used to be as follows: Chicago has made a house-to-house canvass under the direction of 25 battalions, first chiefs, to compel householders to remove from their premises all combustible material and refuse, as a fire prevention measure. This campaign has created many short-time jobs.

Aples, Tex., took a church census of its population and each household was asked if some special odd job, painting, carpentry, gardening or cleaning, could be furnished the unemployed and a record was kept of the replies and addresses, with the result that a large number of days of work were secured for the most needy.

In Fort Wayne, Ind., advertisements were published in the newspapers and the unemployed were asked to fill out and send in blanks. These were turned over to the local employment agency and local industries secured the help they needed. Kearney, N. J., has an agent out every afternoon to solicit work for the jobless in automobiles. They visit buildings under construction, look over streets being paved and call at all industrial plants and railroad shops, offering the co-operation of the local employment bureau and ascertaining exactly what kind of help is needed.

In New York city 103 social agencies have co-operated in relief work for the unemployed and have established a central bureau of registration to act as a clearing house.

Pittsburg contractors and employers have been urged to keep one or two men in each family on the payroll and to hire to a large extent those living in the city who have dependents.

Each ward in Rockford, Ill., has a committee with the two aldermen as chairman. These committees in turn have organized precinct committees with a member in charge of each city block. Personal contact like this has resulted in a very successful campaign to provide jobs and relieve distress, the report said.

Schenectady, N. Y., has taken care of its own problem by bond issues for public improvements, and the city officials are enforcing rigidly such ordinances as snow removal which is done under city supervision and charged on tax bills of all delinquent property owners.

Atlanta has formed a club of 500 citizens each of whom has pledged the building of a dwelling to be rented at a reasonable figure, thus giving employment to many and also helping the housing situation.

Seaside, has asked all employers to increase the number of their employees by at least one, and as many more as is possible.

New London, Conn., runs special entertainments in the theaters with local talent. The unemployed were allowed to sell tickets and retain a good percentage of the proceeds. Civil service rules are suspended in Cambridge, Mass., so that many persons can rotate in the same jobs.

Houston, Tex., maintains a gang of laborers, ranging in number from 200 to 400, paying them $1.25 a day, and if they have dependents supplementing this by charity. Employers are urged to apply to the city for labor, which is supplied from this gang.
