

SEMI-OFFICIAL REPORT FOR MURDER CASE

Senator Borah Says Evidence Is Clear Enough.

KILLING SOLDIERS CHARGE

Ishoan Telegraphs New York to Ask if Formal Complaint May Not Be Filed.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 15.—Boris Bakshmetoff, the accredited Russian ambassador, to the United States, was subpoenaed today to appear before the senate labor committee in its investigation of the presence in this country of General Gregorie Semenov, formerly chief of the Russian Cossacks.

Although the Kerensky provisional government by which Mr. Bakshmetoff was appointed was lost sight of long ago in the Russian political tangle, the United States has not recognized the bolshevik regime which succeeded it, and the ambassador's name never has been taken from the official list of foreign diplomats accredited here.

In explanation of the message, the committee chairman said that in his opinion the evidence collected by his department during his hearing was sufficient to warrant an indictment for murder if there was any way by which the evidence could be obtained.

SEMENOFF HOOTED IN JAIL

Ex-Ataman of Cossacks Refuses to Go Out for Exercise.

NEW YORK, April 15.—General Gregorie Semenov, formerly ataman of the Siberian Cossacks, now the butt of east side hooters and catcallers, spent another day in Ludlow street jail, where he is held in default of bail on a civil warrant, while crowds milled about outside his cell.

Most of the day the general showed no sign that the crowd's presence disturbed him. But he refused to exercise. To do so meant he would have to go into the courtyard, while hundreds of persons on nearby roofs shouted at every move he made. He sat alone on a bench under a wall.

C., April 15.—A heavy oversubscription to the new treasury issue of 2 1/2 per cent six months' certificates bearing the lowest government interest rates since 1917 was announced tonight by Secretary Mellon. Preliminary reports he said, indicate that the total subscriptions will aggregate more than $200,000,000 for the issue, which was for about $150,000,000.

CURT ORDER GIVEN REDS

Mr. Lloyd George Summed up this afternoon what appears to be the general view of the progress of Russian negotiations, employing one of the similes he so frequently uses.

"We are building a bridge across the stream," he said. "We have driven some of the piles. We are now in the deepest part of the current, and are driving them into the mud at the bottom. Although the bridge is not yet above water, the piles are firmly fixed, and we are still hammering at them."

GENOVA CONFERENCE NOT BOLD ENOUGH

GENOVA, April 15.—(Special Cable.)—The curricula and exchanges of Europe fall into two distinct groups, those which in spite of wide seasonal fluctuations, no longer suffer progressive depreciation and those which are still chaotic. Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium, Czechoslovakia and all the neutral states might claim a first place in the first group.

The conference might very well declare that for the first group a return to the gold standard at an early date is worth attempting, provided that those of them whose exchanges are more than 20 per cent below pre-war parity, are given the aid of regaining the former parity.

Obstacles Are Encountered. I would like to go further and draw up an actual scheme, but the discussions at Genoa have already shown that when we try to go further we meet with three chief obstacles.

First: It is difficult for Great Britain to enter any general scheme immediately because, whilst she is not ready to re-establish her gold standard on its pre-war parity, yet she isaverse to re-establishing it upon any other parity, whilst the neutrals, some of whom are more nearly ripe for pre-war parity, are afraid to allow free exchange of gold until Great Britain allows them also.

Listening in.....

"Don't wait up for me!" . . . . .

It doesn't matter what she said. Her reply was inaudible. And she knew that he knew it had been so. Inside the air was oppressive, the walls even of their home gave out a feeling of closing in on her, while outside all nature seemed gloriously in tune.

The fancies, the fears, the misgivings beseeching her brain during the next few hours transformed her usual calm into a state of mental perturbation. For never within the course of her happily married life had he, in his quiet emphatic tone, said, "Don't wait up for me!"

It was long past midnight when the latchkey turned in the door. Carefully he entered, lest he should awaken her. The light which she had thoughtfully left burning in the bathroom showed a smile on his face as he passed through the door. Yes, . . . clearly he had had a pleasant evening, and with mixed companions, no doubt!

A tear, indicative of her suffering, glistened on her prettily flushed cheek and coursed its way to the pillow. She could see him where he stood. Happiness alone shone out on his face. And then he began moving about . . . stepping, no he was gliding. . . . why, he was actually dancing. And then like a flash she knew—he was practicing the new dance steps.

Slowly her disfigurement gave way to determination, and within her brain there sprang a great light. Tomorrow she would purchase their own phonograph, the latest "dance" records would be theirs, a cosy little nook she would plan, new draperies, new pieces, new decorations, and with colorful touches here and there she would effect a complete rejuvenation throughout the house.

A tender kiss, though bestowed in silence, thrilled her heart with a secret gladness. And she knew that all was well.
