TRADE SUBSIDES

Market Continues Strong but Clip Is Nearly Gone.

CHOICE LOTS ARE SOLD

Top Price Paid in Cregon Is 39 Cents-Most Remarkable Season Growers Have Known.

Excitement in the wool trade has subsided, so far as the Oregon market is concerned, as the season here is nearly at 1922 ellp having passed into second hands. It is likely, too, that the top prices of the season have been paid to growers, as the last clips and practically all of these have been disposed of.

have been disposed of.

Small lots remain here and there and there are clips of lower grades yet to be sold. Some sheepmen of this class seem anxious to get connected up with buyers.

"Wool men here say that the operations for manufacturers' account are responsible for the boost that has been given to wool values in the west. According to leading wool men, it is a topsy-turvy market here and in the west. Tariff complications have created shormal conditions everywhere. This market is bare of all desirable grades of domestic wool, except possibly a moderate supply of fleenes. This cast the apple markets continued full and narrow. Northwestern Winesaps sold at $3.25$\@ 4.25$ in New York while barreled Baldwins moved at $5$\@ 5.50$.

The local wheat washinge. the stirred both manufacturers and dealers to reach out for a share of the new clip. The race is evidently now on in the west. Conflicting stories are heard here in regard to the attitude of the growers. Some any that the growers are disposed to hold their wools, and that they are being supported in this attitude by their banks. Other statements, equally emphatic, say that many growers are not in favor of making consignments this year, but want to sell cutright, and that their banks are urging them to do so and get in some money.

The local wheat market was weak and inactive at the close of the week. Export wheat was available at $1.25 but the demand appeared indifferent. At the Merchant's Exchange session bids were rechants' Exchange sessio no early settlement of the tariff question be expected. That being the cast the emergency tariff must remain in for the emergency tariff must remain in force indefinitely. The earliest date suggeste on Summer street for the probable passage of the permanent tariff measure is August 1. Others still believe that in tariff legislation is possible before election, and some stoutly maintain that it idle to expect anything this year. If the mergency tariff remains the property tariff emergency tariff remains in force, the on smergency tariff remains in force, the only source from which can come additional supplies of fine wools must be the new demestic cilp. Scattering lots are being taken out of bond, but the goods marked is too dull and the price question too unsettled to allow this to be done, except in either than a very few emergency cases."

Bankers' Acceptances. POTATOES ARE CLEANING UP SLOWLY

Demand From California Points Is Temporarily Quieter.

The potato market was slower at the lose of the week, but prices were steady at $1.15@1.25 to growers, Buying by San Francisco firms was lighter, owing to the accumulation of stock in the south. Dealers believe supplies here will clean up New polators were more plentiful New polatics were more plentiful and sold generally at 5 cents for Garnets and 10 cents for whites. The eastern market for old potatoes shows improvement. The demand during the week continued active, especially in the Atlautic and mid-file western regions and prices tended gen-erally upward with sharp advances in the middle west. The oils were sluggish and some selling was precipitated in this group by a sudden break in Mexican Petroseum, which, however, recovered fairly well before the close.

The outstanding feature among the specialities was J. Kayser, which reached a new high level on active trading.

One of the weak features was Barnesdall A, which broke several points between raies. There appeared to be nothing to account for the decline saide from the weakened technical position.

The market showed a much steadler tone between 11 and 12 octock and many of the leaders added to their gains during the period. Steel common was the leader in this raily, and advanced to 96, closing at the high for a met gain of 1% points.
