dinner, complimenting Miss Alger. Covers were laid for 12, which included Miss Alger, Mr. and Mrs. Cameron Squires, Mr. and Mrs. David T. Honeyman, Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton F. Corbett, Mrs. Henry F. Chaney, Lee Hawley Hoffman, Prescott Cookingham and the hosts.

Miss Anna Ellis Barker, a gifted pianist, was honored at a musicale and tea, given by Mrs. Gilbert Durham. The guests received an exceptional treat when Miss Barker played several selections. At the tea table were Mrs. M. L. Holbrook, Mrs. Arthur Sherwood, Mrs. Stanley Jewett and Mrs. J. D. Hart.

One of the brilliant social gatherings of the year will be the ball at which the officers and army women of Vancouver post will be hosts on May 26 in the post gymnasium. About 500 invitations have been issued. The function is in compliment to the Association of the Army of the United States.

On the afternoon of May 26 there will be a regimental parade, to which representatives of the Portland Chamber of Commerce and the cadet officers of Hill Military academy have been invited.

The army officers and women of the post are enjoying golf now and many are taking a keen interest in horse-back riding. Major Inglis has been instructing several of the society girls of Portland who ride with the army women each week.

Several dinner parties will precede the officers' ball to be held Friday night.

General and Mrs. Blatchford will receive the guests at the ball and will be assisted by some of the officers.

Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Fleischer presided over an attractively appointed dinner Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Max S. Hirsch were hosts at a dinner party Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hill will entertain today from 4 to 6 o'clock at 115 North Twenty-fourth street, corner of Johnson street, at Daniels hall.

Miss Fay Alger was the inspiration for a bridge party on Tuesday afternoon, at which Mrs. Henry Green Reed was hostess.

Several Portland society folk plan to attend the concerts on Tuesday and Friday at Vancouver post, from 2:30 to 4:30 o'clock. These concerts will be before the regimental parades.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Adams entertained informally at dinner last night for Mrs. A. S. Kerry.

Mrs. George Boyd, sister of Mrs. Lucius Allen Lewis, is an interesting visitor here.

At the luncheon at Waverley Country club yesterday Mrs. A. D. Norris and Miss Lucia Morris entertained for Miss Ruth Small, bride-elect, and her sister, Mrs. George R. Sallor.

Harriet's Romance

A Novelle in Eight Chapters.

The Pleasant Lady Behind the Counter

CHAPTER VI

THE matchless beauty of Harriet's golden hair was still further enhanced by the cheery morning sun shining upon it through the open window. She was studying a card upon which were listed "things to be done" in connection with her wedding. Many of them were already crossed off, and Harriet's spirits rose as the list grew smaller. "I see the announcements are next on the list, and most important, look at wedding announcement samples. These events passed quickly in the order mentioned and soon the two girls were looking over a counter full of samples. "If I may suggest it, Miss Hewitt ventured the pleasant lady behind the counter, "I think you will do well to take this Penntext style, since it matches your invitations, and to let us plan your announcement as follows."

Mr. and Mrs. James Byron Hewitt announce the marriage of their daughter, Harriet Louise, to Mr. Chester Dyer Converse, on Thursday, June the first, nineteen hundred twenty-two, in the city of Portland.

"All my worry settled in a moment," exclaimed Harriet. "Right," answered Phyllis. "If I ever marry, which, of course, I won't." "Yes, yes," broke in Harriet impatiently. "What you mean to say is that when you finally decide to take Jack, which thing you'd better do in a hurry—he's so attractive—that you'll have your engraving done at
