TEACHERS WILL RECEIVE TRAINING FOR VACATION BIBLE SCHOOLS

Department of Religious Education of Portland Council of Churches to Open Institute Tomorrow, Continuing Instruction Tuesday—Work Planned by A. F. Bittner, Chairman of Body—Many Features Discussed.

AN institute for training teachers in daily vacation Bible school work will be conducted under the department of religious education of the Portland council of churches, tomorrow and Tuesday. The institute has been planned by A. F. Bittner, director of religious education at Westminster Presbyterian church, and chairman of the department of religious education of the council.

In view of the fact that there will be a much greater number of daily vacation Bible schools held in Portland this year than any previous summer, a large attendance is expected at the institute for training teachers in this work. These meetings will be held in the church house of the Centenary-Wilbur Methodist church, and are open to all interested in this work.

The general meeting tomorrow night will begin at 7:45 o'clock and will consist of group meetings for primary, junior and intermediate departments, under the leadership of Mrs. S. Earl DuBois, Miss Martha Buck and Mrs. J. J. Handsaker, all of whom have had experience in this work.

Preceding this meeting there will be a supper for the principals of the schools and heads of departments, at which time discussion of the length of school hours, cost of equipment and other matters of interest to the leaders will be considered.

Tuesday night the meeting will begin at 7:30 and group meetings will again be held and the full daily programme will also be considered.

This will be an exceptional opportunity for those not familiar with this work to learn regarding methods, course of study, etc., from those who have had actual experience in this work, which is only in its infancy in Portland.

Daily vacation Bible schools have been conducted in the east for many years and have long ago passed the experimental stage. They are welcomed not only by the busy mother, who is glad to have her children in this helpful environment, but also by the children, who are really sorry when the sessions close. At one of the schools in Portland last year the boys, who are usually hard to hold in Sunday school, were so interested they expressed their desire to continue for several weeks longer.

The Portland District Epworth league unites the 31 local chapters of the Epworth league in the Portland district, Oregon conference of the Methodist Episcopal church. Geographically the district embraces Multnomah, Columbia, Clatsop and portions of Clackamas and Washington counties. Affiliated with the organization also are leagues in the Southern, Swedish and German Methodist churches.

In addition to maintaining these connectional relations, which have been such a mighty factor in the aggressive movements of the churches of the Methodist group, the district officers render aid to local work by personal contact with chapter officers having supervision of corresponding departments. The district organization maintains the "Friendly Center mission" at Russell street and Albina avenue in the city of Portland, where Miss Martha Warrington, a deaconess, ministers to an important community. The largest single activity at the mission is a Sunday school with an average attendance of about 80. Other features of the mission work include two campfire groups, a large boys' club, and a music class for children who would otherwise have no opportunity for such instruction.

A feature of Epworth league connectional work which is growing in favor and importance from year to year is the summer institute. These "training camps" are situated where they will best serve the greatest body of young folk. One of them, on an attractive site at Falls City, Or., will draw its student body from the Portland, Salem, The Dalles and northern end of the southern districts, and possibly from the Vancouver, Wash., district. The Portland district expects to register 200 there during the last week in July.

DES MOINES, Ia., May 20.—Adoption by affiliated Protestant churches of a declaration of international ideals which would place them on record in favor of a permanent associations of nations, of the universal use of courts of justice and boards of arbitration and of sweeping reduction of armaments, was recommended by the Federal Council of Churches in its report to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States, in session here.

Publications of the council, according to this report, have been credited "on high authority" with having had "no small part in creating that public sentiment which alone made possible the results which the international conference on limitation of armament achieved." Robert E. Speer is president of the council.

The report represented the council as convinced that its work in behalf of Christian international relations "must go on with unabated energy until war has been outlawed." The proposed declaration of international ideals follow:

"We believe that nations no less than individuals are subject to God's immutable moral laws.

"We believe that nations achieve true welfare, greatness and honor only through just dealing and unselfish service.

"We believe that nations that regard themselves as Christian have special international obligations.

"We believe that the spirit of Christian brotherhood can remove every barrier of trade, color, creed and race.

"We believe that Christian patriotism demands the practice of good will between nations.

"We believe that international politics should secure equal justice for all races.

"We believe that all nations should associate themselves permanently for world peace and good-will.

"We believe in international law and in the universal use of international courts of justice and boards of arbitration.

"We believe in a sweeping reduction of armaments by all nations.

"We believe in a warless world and dedicate ourselves to its achievement."

The council also reported the creation of a commission on the church and race relations and of a committee on mercy and relief. The report stated that in several of the larger cities "the pastors have been brought into conference with Christian employers and employes to consider the application of Christian principles to industrial life and to promote co-operation between the parties to industry in the place of self-seeking and strife"; that a research department on the relation of the church to social questions has been developed and that the work of engineers and other industrial experts has been interpreted and made available through a fortnightly information service.

"More than any other year," the report asserted, "the evangelistic mission of the churches has been at the heart of the council's activities. The co-operation of the evangelistic agencies of the denominations in the commission on evangelism has been more hearty and complete than ever before."

The report recorded "steady and solid gain in the development of the co-operative work of the Protestant churches."

Women to Discuss Share in Campaign for Asia.

Meeting at Library Will Consider Educational Drive.

REPRESENTATIVE Portland women will meet tomorrow in the central library to discuss this city's share in the national campaign now being waged for the education of women in Asia. This work is under the direction of the woman's board of foreign missions of the Presbyterian church in the United States. The executive secretary for the north Pacific district is Mrs. Charles W. Williams, who has headquarters in the Fliedner building.

"An appeal is before our American womanhood now to serve oriental girls," said Mrs. Williams. "Seven great women's union colleges in Asia are asking to be put into condition for helping to train the young womanhood of Japan, India and China—to train them that they may teach their own women, capturing the newly rising national consciousness in these lands and channeling it by means of Christian education.

"On Monday a committee of women representatives of some 25 women's organizations in Portland will consider this matter and our relationship to it. The group will include college women, sorority girls, business women, political leaders and church women; confederating all, on this common task suitable to the American woman's abilities and intensely appealing from every angle you approach it."

Mrs. Williams came to Portland last July from the twin cities of Minnesota, where she was dean of women and professor of religious education at Macalester college for a number of years.

For the benefit of the Union Christian colleges, "college days" have been planned in 100 cities in America. The colleges will reach and train 400,000,000 oriental women.

Successful oriental functions have been held in Washington, New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Minneapolis and St. Paul. California women have made a great success of their campaign and Seattle and Spokane are planning autumn functions.

The Union colleges are: Yenching college, Pekin, China; the North China Medical college for women at Pekin; Isabella Thoburn college at Lucknow, India; Women's Christian college in Tokio, Japan; Ginling college in Nankin, China; Union Missionary Medical school at Vellore, Women's Christian college at Madras, India.
