DISABLED MEN SPEND THEIR SPARE MOMENTS IN LEARNING THE VOCATION OF BASKET-MAKING. With the idea of bringing one of the proposed government hospitals for disabled veterans of the war to Portland. The Chamber of Commerce, through a special committee, is making a determined fight. The committee is headed by Dr. A. E. Rockey, who has compiled a report forwarded to the United States veterans' bureau for consideration.

The Veterans' hospital, No. 77, has been developed by the government in the old Hahnemann hospital at East Second and Multnoman streets. A five-year lease was obtained on this building, and the government has expended approximately $140,000 to put it in first-class condition for veterans. The Chamber of Commerce points out that with very little difficulty the hospital can be enlarged to accommodate 500 patients. The hospital now can house 150 natients.

WOODLAND, Wash., June 3.—(Special.)—The Lewis River Transportation company has sold its freight franchise between Portland and Lewis river towns to C. E. O. Brown, who operates a truck line over the Pacific highway, between Portland and Moodland. The steamer Relief has been making regular trips to Woodland. The steamer Relief has been making regular trips to Woodland for a long time, but was taken off the Portland-Woodland run upon the sale of the franchise.

156 patients.

The government has determined to establish a number of big hospitals over the country to accommodate the received mention time to time require medical and surgical attention.

"Oregon has done much to warrant the placing of a big hospital here," said Dr. Rockey. "In the war she gave her sons as volunteers more promptly than did any other state in the nation. Later, when drives were made for receiving the benefits of big army camps and thousands of soldiers were quartered within their borders. Oregon was always in the front. Other states were received nothing. Now we are asking that the government recognize the faithful and loyal service the literature of this state performed and reward Portland and the state with the establishment of a big hospital here."

In the argument sent to the veterane bureau the Chamber of Commerce has pointed out the advantages of the off the Portland-Woodland run upon the state with the establishment of a big hospital here."

In the argument sent to the veterane bureau the Chamber of Commerce has pointed out the advantages of the lotty who during the war held commissions and now stand ready to all the government through their knowledge and advice on matters pertaining to the health of the disabled and sick men of the war.

For the Tiny Baby

These little garments come in a silk and cotton mixture and in a lighter weight cotton. They are carefully cut to give the greatest comfort to the baby's tender body and are soft, dainty and comfortable. Every seam is flat, to prevent rubbing against baby's skin, and to the smallest detail the finishing of each garment is exquisitely perfect. An exclusive "Annette" garment is a combination of vest and band, the wool band being sewn inside the vest, simplifying the dressing of baby. A special provision is made in vests for mothers who use the square, side-fastening diapers.

For Older Children

As dainty as the infants' garments are the little knit waists and union suits for older children. Mothers will be interested in the new "Annette" features. All side buttons and garter tabs are down on a non-stretchable tape that is sewn on the waist from the shoulder, preventing all sagging of the knit portion. There are no rough or raw edges in "Annette" garments. In every instance they are beautifully finished. A new feature is the elastic stitch cuff on sleeves and knee.
