Opposition to Smith-McNary Bill Rouses Indignation.

HOUSE MEMBERS REBEL

Anti-Western Policy of Wyoming Representative Is Amazing and Draws Indictment.

THE OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU Washington, D. C., June 3.-Frank W representative from Wyo ming and house majority leader, is be ginning to hear more distinctly than ever before the voice of the west raised in protest against his opposi-tion to the Smith-McNary reclamation

Although still standing put, there are signs that he is now more dis-posed to listen than heretofore. Westposed to listen than herstofore. Western members who have been slow to speak out against Leader Mondell's opposition to everything western are showing a boldness that is likely to burst one of these days over the head of the imperious leader.

Ciall)—The most spirited meeting ever held by a republican central committee was held last night by the newly elected committeeman of Umasilla county, following the primary election here.

sition to the reciamation of the arid lands of the west, the western members have begun the rough draft of an indictment of their leader, which carries several serious counts. Mondell's resistance of practically all legislation of need in the development of the west is attributed to a fear on his part that some of his influential eastern friends in and out of congress will accuse him of provincialism.

As a consequence, it is said, he is "leaning back to the point of his machine" to aliay any such fears or suspicions on the part of his companions.

Conference Action Pleasing.

There was great joy among several western members today over the report brought in yesterday by the conference committee of house and senate on the federal aid highway bill, which provides a three-year prosecular committeeman.

With the opening of the meeting there were 43 committeeman seated.

which provides a three-year programme of $50,000,000 annually to help the states improve their roads by matching federal funds with an equal amount of state funds.

One of the counts of the western indictment of Mondell relates to a provision in the roads bill as passed by the house, which restricted the federal contribution of a single mile of road to $12,500. The bill carrying this provision was brought into the house under suspension of the rules and subjected to a parliamentary situation which made amendment impossible.

Mondell Held Responsible.

Western members had to accept the objectionable limitation or cause the defeat of the entire bill. Mondell always has been held responsible at least for the oppressive parliamentary situation, if not directly responsible for a cost limit on road building which would have made impossible the first-class improvement of certain mountain roads in the west without he states contributing sums much larger than the states contributing sums much larger than the government child allot.

The senste

chuld allot.

The senate raised this limit to $16,256 a mile, which makes possible an expenditure of $22,500 by both federal and state governments, regarded as sufficient for the improvement of the worst roads in the west, where steep grades must be over-come or rock blasted away.

Relief of Miners Opposed.

Another count in the indictment goes back to the time when western mining claimants were clamering some two years ago for another year's exemption from assessment work on their claims, which was the war.

No one apparently was opposing the bill, which affected thousands of mining claims in the west, when one morning Leader Mondell appeared unexpectedly at a meeting of the mines and mining committee, which was about ready to report the bill, and declared almost violent opposition to it. He was forced later to withdraw his opposition, but his conduct on that occasion never has been forgiven nor forgotten by western representatives.

Constituents Expect Nathing

Constituents Expect Nothing, In opposing the exemption bill he said he never had received a single members of congress as indicating that some time before that Mondell's constituents had ceased to expect anything from him for themselves of their state, because the office of every other western representative was deluged for weeks with letters and telegrams urging prompt action on the bill.

on the bill.

Prominent republicans in Wyoming at this very time are writing to leaders in the reclamation movement saying that they are amazed at Mondell's attitude and desire to know more about it.

Senatorship Is Stake,

One such letter, reaching WashIngton only yesterday, said if reports filtering back to Wyoming in the last few days were true, the republican voters of the state wanted to know it before the time came to vote en the senatorial nomination, for which Mondell is a candidate.
