

IDAHO DEMOCRATS
WORK FOR HARMONY

Efforts Under Way to Put Down Factionalism.

CHANCE TO WIN VISIONED

Indications Are That C. C. Moore and M. Alexander Will Be Parties' Standard Bearer.

BOISE, Idaho, June 17.—(Special.)—While it seems to be generally accepted in political circles in this state, both republican and democratic, that C. C. Moore of St. Anthony, who a week ago announced his candidacy for the republican nomination, and M. Alexander, as yet unannounced as a democratic candidate, will be the standard-bearers of their respective parties at the coming election, it has developed that there is uncertainty among many of the democrats as to whether Mr. Alexander will enter the race.

More persistently than ever is being heard the names of other men prominent in the party who are considered gubernatorial timber. Mr. Alexander is in the east and has been for some time on a buying trip for his string of clothing stores. He is one of the prominent clothing dealers of southern Idaho and eastern Oregon and is probably as widely known in the two states as any other man in Idaho. His friends say that on his return he probably will not announce his candidacy, leaving the selection of a nominee for governor up to the delegates to the next state convention.

W. M. Morgan Possibility. Indications of this uneasiness come from Twin Falls, where the Jefferson club has issued a call for a meeting of democrats to be held in that city next week to hear an address by William M. Morgan, former chief justice of the supreme court, on state political issues. Linked with the announcement is the clear intimation from Twin Falls that a movement has been quietly going on there for some time to groom Morgan for the gubernatorial nomination. But, falling in this, his Twin Falls friends will be asked to get into the running for representative from the second district.

Just how much factionalism there is involved in this movement democratic leaders refuse to say. It is known, however, that there are two factions of democrats in Twin Falls county, one being in favor of Morgan for governor and the other for Morgan or some other man big enough to make the race, such as E. W. Van Hoesen of Council, a member of the state senate. Morgan is known to be a staunch friend of the Days, Harry and Jerome, of northern Idaho, who have always been active in democratic politics.

Days Oppose Nugent Wing. Jerome Day, a member of a number of terms in the state senate from Latah county and was democratic state chairman. The Days stand in opposition to the so-called Nugent wing of the party, which, however, is a misnomer now because former United States Senator Nugent is not a resident of Idaho, but is serving on the federal trade commission at Washington. However, the faction that followed Nugent during his palmy days in Idaho politics is still intact. It is composed of the young men, however, who are in the lead of the democratic party. The clashes between ex-Senator Nugent and Harry Day are celebrated political history in the democratic party.

Alexander always has been a friend of Nugent and when the opportunity came to appoint a successor to the late United States Senator Brady, Alexander, who was then governor, named Nugent. This naturally was not pleasant to the Day faction and that faction, if all reports are true, proposes to have something to say for itself on at the next democratic state nominating convention. Van Hoesen, comparatively a new man in the state, having been elected to the New York, is not identified with any of the so-called factions, but is said to have the support of the Days in the north. He proved himself to be an able man in the last legislature.

Democrats Want Harmony. While there is some plotting going on within the democratic party, and not a little maneuvering for advantage, the leaders wish to keep down any factionalism that may arise, that there may be harmony in selecting the ticket at the state convention. They believe the party has never had a better opportunity to win than it has this year. They believe that the situation is ideal because of the state-wide complaint over high taxes and the general grumbling which they say is going on over the manner in which state affairs have been managed.

This situation, they assert, is ideal for a candidate who is willing to go before the people and insist on a reduction in taxation and who will show his courage in vetoing appropriations made by the legislature increasing the tax burden of the people. The rank and file of the democratic party, they claim, will insist upon such a candidate. The leaders want the heads of factions to forget their differences this year and agree upon a ticket that will command the respect of the voters as a set of candidates who can stand on a platform that means something.

Moore's Status Is Fixed. The announcement of C. C. Moore as a candidate for the republican gubernatorial nomination met with general favor in all parts of the state. Republican papers here say that the announcement definitely fixes the status of Mr. Moore and removes all uncertainty as to whether he was to be a candidate. There is nothing to indicate that another candidate will get into the running in the republican ranks in opposition to Mr. Moore. But that does not prevent a possible dark horse hobbling up in the convention. Unless all of the political signs go wrong the main contest in the republican party will be over the nominations for the minor state offices and over the state platform. Many advocates of the primary law insist that a straight out-and-out state-wide primary plank be placed in the platform. They hope to have sufficient delegates in the state convention to force that issue. They claim in support of their stand that it will be better for the republican party to go into the next campaign unless it is pledged to a state-wide primary, because the people want the primary and the democrats will declare for it in uncertain terms. Under the Idaho law candidates for congressional and state office do not have to file their nominations with the secretary of state. The law requires candidates for judges of the district court and members of the legislature to do so. So far there are four filings of records for judges of the district court. They are as follows: Albert H. Featherston of Wallace, republican candidate for judge of the first district, incumbent; H. E. Wallace of Caldwell, democratic candidate for judge of the seventh district, Judge Bryan, incumbent; Charles L. Crowley of Idaho Falls, republican candidate for judge of the ninth district; Judge Gwinn of St. Anthony, incumbent. Wallace M. Scates, republican candidate for judge of the tenth district; Judge Scates, incumbent. The declarations of these candidates are all signed by prominent attorneys in the districts in which they desire to run.

MEETING AT OLYMPIA OF SOUTHWEST WASHINGTON.

Resolution Adopted to Effect That Local Advertisers Should Get Same Rate as Outsiders.

OLYMPIA, Wash., June 17.—(Special.)—The foreign advertiser will have no advantage in rates over the local advertiser in Washington newspapers if a motion adopted at the southwest Washington group meeting of the Washington State Press association is carried when the entire association meets at Pullman next month. Thirty publishers at today's meeting voted unanimously to present a resolution to the state body providing that the minimum rate charged for foreign advertising be equal to the rate for local advertising and the 15 per cent agency discount and the 2 per cent cash discount added.

The action followed discussion of the problem of some large foreign advertisers placing business with newspapers through their local agencies and obtaining the local rate from which they deduct discounts when paying the bills. This resolution, if adopted, would be mandatory against the local advertisers to whom they agreed they owed loyalty first. Russell Mack, advertising manager of the Aberdeen World, led the discussion under the subject, "Is Foreign Advertising Placed by Local Representatives 'Local' or 'Foreign'?"

Other speakers were Dan Cloud, editor of the Montesano Vidette; Herbert Campbell, publisher of the Vancouver Columbian; Fred L. Wolf of the Newport Times; Fred W. Kennedy of the University of Washington department of Journalism; B. L. Knapp of the Morton Mirror; W. L. Spencer, dean of the State university department of Journalism; and J. Newton Colver of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

Ill Health Causes Suicide. Ill health for a period of more than two years caused Gustav Mandinos, 29 years old, to take his life by shooting himself through the mouth yesterday in his room at 245 1/2 First street. Mandinos had been unable to work for a long time and he left a note to his brother, George, only known relative, saying that he did not care to live any longer. William Eastman, proprietor of the rooming house, heard the shot fired and called the police. The coroner took charge of the body.

CONVENTION SPREE
STORY OVERDRAWN

Republicans at Chehalis No
Wetter Than Others.

SEATTLE NOT PERTURBED

Liquor of Course Was Obtainable,
but Drunken Convention Charge
Is Declared Groundless.

PUGET SOUND BUREAU, Seattle,
Wash., June 17.—Seattle's new scandal arises from the moisture of the republican state convention at Chehalis June 10. The harrying charge made by many of those attending the convention, as delegates and spectators, were actually under the influence of strong drink. Two newspapers published in Seattle, Mr. Hearst's Post-Intelligencer and Mr. Scripps' Evening Star, have taken the charge very seriously.

The Star says it has been furnished a list of no less than 40 names of more or less prominent Seattle republicans whose conduct at Chehalis is said to have been reprehensible, and Dr. Edwin J. Brown, Seattle's newest mayor, tells the Post-Intelligencer that he is going to bring the whole disgraceful proceedings to the attention of the senators and representatives in congress from this state, all of whom are republicans and, as leaders, responsible, according to Mayor Brown, for the behavior of their party constituents in convention assembled.

It hostile gossip and unfriendly newspaper publicity can influence the public mind, Seattle ought to be hardly surprised if the picture of the Chehalis convention would not cause much excitement here. About the most pronounced effect so far is among certain King county republicans who might have gone to the Chehalis convention had they so desired, and who now feel that they perhaps missed the time of their lives.

Convention Fairly Sober. The Chehalis convention was not a drunken convention, and the large delegation from Seattle and King county was not a drunken delegation. Liquor was not hard to get in Chehalis any more than it is in any other city of the Pacific northwest. Many delegates took some along with them. Thoughtful purveyors of popular bootleg brands added to the almost visible supply. No one who wished to drink had to go thirsty, but by far the great majority of those in attendance evidently did not wish to drink. The convention's business, in committee and on the floor, was soberly conducted. Outside the committee rooms and convention hall the delegates followed their several inclinations. Some of them drank a little; some of them drank a lot; very few of them showed the effects of over-indulgence; but most of them let it alone.

In proportion to its numbers the Chehalis gathering was quite as dry as the democratic state convention in Olympia last month, over which Mayor Brown presided as temporary chairman. It was just as easy to get liquor in Olympia as in Chehalis. The republican convention brought about 1000 visitors to Olympia; the democratic convention brought less than 200 to Olympia. Damply disposed democrats had just as good a time in Olympia as republicans of like inclinations had in Chehalis. There was more drinking in Chehalis because there were more visitors there. The difference is entirely a matter of numbers and venue, a matter of comparative virtue.

DR. MILLER TO LECTURE

PSYCHOLOGICAL EXPERT TO ARRIVE TOMORROW.

Two Weeks Series of Speeches to Be Given in Auditorium.

Under arrangements completed by a group of Portland citizens interested in psychological study, Dr. Orlando Edgar Miller will arrive in Portland tomorrow to open a two-week lecture course at the public auditorium.

Dr. Miller's first lecture will be given tomorrow night. All will be free to the public. Dr. Miller has been lecturing in other Pacific coast cities with great success. In both Oakland and Los Angeles arrangements were made after his first engagement to bring him back. It was estimated that during his last lecture engagement in Los Angeles he spoke to 15,000 persons in three weeks' time.

Dr. Miller, who is an American by birth, though he has lived in recent years in London, is a writer and lecturer on psychology in all its branches. For 15 years he devoted himself to a study of psychology and other subjects. Since returning to the United States Dr. Miller has assisted in the organization of the International Society of Applied Psychology, of which he is now president, and is making his present lecture tour in the west largely in the interest of a movement the society has inaugurated to found a university for the study of the science of which Dr. Miller is an expert.

DRUNK CHARGE DENIED

KING COUNTY DELEGATION
DECLARED WELL BEHAVED.

Woman's Statement That Members of Convention Were Intoxicated Held Slander.

TACOMA, Wash., June 17.—(Special.)—Harry G. Rowland, Pierce county representative on the platform committee of the state republican convention at Chehalis, today denied King county's delegation denied King county's delegation was intoxicated at the meeting. He declares Maude Sweetman's letter to that effect was a base slander.

"A newspaper article signed by one Maude Sweetman, purporting to attribute the defeat of King county at the republican state convention to the fact that its delegates were drunk and in such condition that they did not understand what was going on about them should be answered," said Mr. Rowland, who was one of the foremost prohibition workers in the state for many years. "This article casts a reflection upon every member of the King county delegation, other than four persons named to whom reference is made as sober, clean-minded men. I am personally acquainted with probably 20 per cent of the King county delegation. I saw them at the hotel and on the floor of the convention. Their position in the hall was at the right of the Pierce county delegation, and I am not aware of seeing a single intoxicated person among the entire King county delegation. Certainly no intoxicated person attempted to address the convention as outlined in this article."

Douglas Sells Bond Holdings.

ROSBURG, Or., June 17.—(Special.)—A bid of par and accrued interest was received today on $40,000 worth of the fourth issues of liberty bonds sold by Douglas county. The bonds were bought during the war, sold to make up deficiencies now existing in that fund. The amount disposed of was $50,000 but the county invested $10,000 from its trust funds in these bonds and sold the remainder to Young & Co. of Oakland.

SONGS WILL BE PRINTED

Oregon Productions to Be Featured During Festival Week.

In conjunction with a campaign launched by the Community Service to have residents of Oregon "learn a song a day" during Rose Festival week, The Oregonian will print each day the words and story of some Oregon song. The songs to be featured have been carefully selected by the Community Service from a great number of popular Oregon productions and will be those which have been most successful in these bonds and sold the remainder to Young & Co. of Oakland.

The Community Service is offering three prizes for the most artistically rendered scrap-books containing clippings from The Oregonian made by children in grammar schools or members of the last graduating class. The first prize will be $5, the second $3 and the third $2. The scrap-books may be of any size and may be decorated in any way the contestants desire. They must be turned in at Community Service headquarters at the Northwestern Bank building. Cures Piles or Costs Nothing. Any reader who suffers from piles—no matter how long standing—can be quickly cured without fussing a penny through the remarkable discovery of W. R. Darlington, 334 Euro bldg., Kansas City, Mo. Don't send a penny—just write Mr. Darlington and he will send you a regular 10-day Treatment absolutely free. If it cures send $2.50. Otherwise you owe nothing.—Adv.
