Mrs. Clarence Eubanks, Prominent Portland Society Woman.

AS A REACTION to the elaborate June festivities, including the Rose Festival entertainments, the last week has been exceedingly quiet from a social standpoint. The lure of summer resorts and the out-of-doors asserted itself last week end, and many persons left on Saturday for trips that kept them out of the city until after July 4.

One of the most attractive country club entertainments which has claimed the interest of Portland society was the Tuesday holiday celebration at Waverly club. Some sasses much charm and is very popular in the younger social set. She is a graduate of Miss Scoville's school in New York, and during the last year has traveled extensively in Europe.

Mr. Heller is a graduate of Stanford and served overseas in the late war. The date of the wedding has not been set.

Mrs. Robert N. Stanfield, wife of Senator Stanfield, returned early in the week from Washington, D. C. She is domiciled at 759 Talbot road for the summer months and will be the inspiration for many charming affairs.

Professor and Mrs. Samuel C. May, who have been visiting in Portland for a short time, left early in the week for Rainier national park, where they will enjoy a stay before returning to Berkeley. Professor May is a member of the faculty of the University of California.

Members of the Portland Hunt club who have not yet deserted the city, and the wives and friends of the army officers at Vancouver post, together with many other society folk, filled the boxes and grandstands at the Vancouver race track last Tuesday to witness the events and races in the army relief society matinee, held under the auspices of the 59th infantry regiment and directed by Captain K. B. Wise.

The crowd was one of the largest fashionable turnouts in recent weeks and like all racetrack scenes the meet provided an opportunity for

Mary Lombard, Fred Page and E. C. Sherman.

An engagement of much interest to Portland society is that of Miss Jeanette Meier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Abe Meier, to Walter D. Heller of San Francisco, which was formally announced at a dinner given at the Portland hotel Tuesday evening, when the parents of the bride-elect were hosts. Miss Meier headed those from the east. Water sports and a swimming contest were features of the afternoon, and fireworks were displayed between 9 and 10 o'clock in the evening. A dinner party and dance afterwards ended a happy day. The clubhouse was made singularly attractive by the groups of society maids and matrons in their smart sport costumes, and the men in white flannels and blue jackets.

Among those who made reservations for the dinner dance were the following:

Spencer Biddle, Donald Sterling, W. B. Roberson, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Van Wyck Peters, Mr. and Mrs. William MacMaster, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Davis Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Blaine R. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Stubbs, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Bell, Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Darnell, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond B. Wilcox, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Pearson, Dr. and Mrs. Guy Strohm, Miss Margaret Cook, Colonel J. B. Kavanaugh, Alma D. Katz, George Mason, R. W. Neighbor, Alfred Smith, Nat McDougall, J. Wesley Ladd, F. Graham Lazarus, C. A. McLean, C. B. Baker, C. C. Eccles, Howard Jayne, C. L. Dunning, C. H. Carey, F. R. display of colorful summer clothes. Fully half of the attendance was made up of Portland people, and the enthusiasm of the entire assembly showed that horseracing, especially that of thoroughbred runners, as well as the steeple-chase and the jumping classes, could be revived as a popular society sport.

The most noteworthy feature of the meet was the riding of Miss Elizabeth Bacon, who represented the Portland Hunt club. Miss Bacon's first appearance was in the qualified hunt class, when she put Highland Laddie, owned by H. M. Kerron, over the brush in such fashion as to be awarded the trophy and blue ribbon. Riding the third leg off the relay race, Miss Bacon again distinguished herself by overcoming a lead of 50 yards and all but winning the race for the hunt club.

Miss Catherine Seiler was the inspiration for a theater party at which Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Berg entertained Monday evening at the Hellig.
