CLOSINGS OF NEW YORK THEATERS ARE PREMATURE

Cool Evenings Bring About Good Business for Companies That Play to Large Crowds at Gotham.

BY ELIZABETH LONERGAN.

NEW YORK, July 8.—(Special.)—If managers could have foreseen the very cool days of the past week fewer closings would have occurred. As it is the remaining play houses had large crowds and some of the shows that closed in anticipation of hot weather might easily have shared in the profits from cool evenings. Too bad that weather cannot be accurately forecast—much trouble would be saved all around.

The Theater Guild will bring a production up town next week which is practically new, though produced at the Garrick a few weeks ago for their members only. It had some very good notices and a production was promised for early in the new season. For some reason the Guild decided to take advantage of the dearth of new plays and bring "From Morn to Midnight" to town earlier than planned. Frank Reicher, who directed the play, will continue in the leading role up town but there will be several changes in the cast. When it was originally produced several important members of the "He Who Gets Slapped" company had parts in the play, later returning to the former, which is still playing on Broadway to big business. The new cast includes: Maude Gilbert, Albert Carroll, Ernita Lascelles ("Eve" in "Back to Methuselah") Harold West, Helene Sheridan, Harry Ashford and some 30 or 40 others. Lee Simonson designed the artistic settings, which will show to advantage up town at the Frazee. This, by the way, is the guild's seventh production.

New Attractions Coming.

Fred Stone and his company are "vacating" after a long season in "Tip Top." Now, this is what Mr. Dillingham has in preparation for the new season, which makes one think that things are bound to pick up theatrically: A new play by John Galsworthy called "Loyalties," which is being played at the St. Martin's Lane, London; "Dede," a current Paris success, with Albert Chevalier; Emerich Kalman's newest operetta "The Bajadere" (he composed "Sari"); a London farce called "Tons of Money" and four from the pens of American dramatists; "The Bunch and Judy," a musical show with Jerome Hern's music, Anne Caldwell's lyrics and the book by Miss Caldwell and Hugh Ford. The last two have also arranged Lady Lever's play "Brown Sugar. Eugene Walters' new play, "Slippy McGee," based upon the novel of the same name by Marie Conway Oemler, and "The Only Levi," by Montague Glass and Jules Eckert Goodman complete the list of the new things that Mr. Dillingham has up his sleeve. And, if rumors can be believed, there are one or two other good announcements to come later.

Al Woods landed the other day, and it is expected that he will have some interesting announcements for publication just as soon as he is ready to talk about them.

Sam Harris has decided to feature Robert Ames, the juvenile who made such a hit in the Rachel Crothers play "Nice People" last year. Mr. Ames will have the principal role in "It's a Boy," a play by Anthony McGuire, who wrote "Six-Cylinder Love," one of the three big Harris attractions still in town. The new play will be brought out in the fall. Mr. Harris' other plays are "The Music Box Revue" and "Captain Applejack," which have had all season runs.

Wagenhals and Kemper placed a new Avery Hopwood farce in rehearsal the other day. It is called "Why Men Leave Home," and is said to be fast and funny. No announcement about the cast as yet.

Most of the theatrical folks, important and otherwise, are not worrying about vacation problems just now, but rather whether they will be able to land something for next season. Many of them have had enforced holidays this year and would give a lot to be busy. Not so Eddie Cantor, who, according to his count, hasn't had one in 86 weeks. Most of that time he was touring in "The Midnight Rounders" and the rest of it with "Make It Snappy," his Winter Garden show. His contract contains a clause stipulating that he shall rest two months each year. He is not a stickler for the exact sixty days, but insists that he will start a vacation commencing today (July 2) and lasting until late in August, when "Make It Snappy" goes on tour. Some people are never satisfied with their good luck. That is what the envious ones in his profession who have had more vacations than work say.

Marjorie Rambeau will not play "The Goldfish" in London, though the announcement was made that she would do so. At the conclusion of her New York engagement she will take it on tour in this country.

HIKER'S STAKE $10,000

American Legionnaire Making Trip From Texas to Gotham.

CHICAGO. — Those "last long miles" hiked by Monte Smith, American legionnaire, on his way (by foot) from Dallas, Tex., to New York city, may be more remunerative than those hiked in France. If he reaches his destination within the 300 days allowed him he will be the possessor of a $10,000 wager.

Six other legionnaires, Smith declares, started out together. Three fell by the way, and one in love, who married at Topeka, Kan. The other, Wick Jones, is still on the wing.
