

DEMOCRATS WASTE SEAMING ORATORY

Bitter Thrusts Are Made at Jackson Club Meeting.

ISSUE FINALLY DODGED

Resolution on Compulsory Education Bill Indefinitely Postponed at Close.

Stalwart members of the democratic party whose names appear upon the rolls of the Jackson club wasted oratory upon responsive ears in the central library last night, called one another anything from "gentleman" to "an imbecile fool" and battled to a no-decision finish over the question of W. T. Vaughn's compulsory education bill resolution.

Resolution is Praised. The last meeting was broken up in a riot when I introduced my resolution," declared Mr. Vaughn. "I hope we can all be ladies and gentlemen tonight."

He launched into the merits of his resolution, which condemned Governor Olcott for the "injection of religion into the last primary campaign," declared that he had no objections to any man's religious beliefs and asked for the support of his resolution advocating passage of the public school bill.

The hand of John D. Mann, ex-deputy United States marshal, arose above the rest of the crowd and John followed it.

"You Mann Takes Up Fight. "You are a liar. It's a lie," he declared, as he moved from his seat and started in Mr. Vaughn's direction.

"Be a gentleman, be a gentleman, Mr. Mann," cautioned Mr. Vaughn. "I have the floor. Let's be gentlemen and democrats."

"It's a vile lie," continued Mr. Mann. "Sit down, sit down," cautioned Mr. Starkweather, who had arisen from his chair.

"Yes, and if I were not a gentleman I would knock him down," announced Mr. Vaughn.

"Oil temporarily quieted the troubled waters and Mr. Mann sat down while Mr. Vaughn continued in defense of his resolution and his plea for all good democrats to support "a real American bill."

Recruits were added to Mr. Mann's contingent. One of them, a beardless youth, versed on Roberts' rules of order, was on his feet several times with "a point of order," which the chairman could not hear and he was aided by a cohort whose face is unfamiliar in Jackson club rows and who had difficulty in making himself understood.

"Mr. Chairman, I wish these gentlemen would let me talk," appealed Mr. Vaughn. "My idea is to keep religion out of politics while such immaculate fools as Mr. Mann are attempting to make an issue of it."

The speaker charged that a number of democrats in the audience had changed their registration on election day in order to vote in the republican primaries. He then rendered the floor to Oglesby Young.

"Bill Held Unconstitutional. Quiet reigned when Mr. Young took the floor. "I pray that you or anyone else has a right to say what school my children shall attend," declared Mr. Young. "The bill Mr. Vaughn advocates is unconstitutional and un-American. I believe the bill is inspired in religious intolerance."

Mr. Young drew from his pocket a substitute resolution which substituted the right of religion into politics and asked for its adoption. Mr. Starkweather ruled the substitute out of order.

An appeal from the decision of the chair was made and the vote stood 21 to 25 in favor of the chair. Mr. Young took his seat.

Frederick V. Holman speaks. Frederick V. Holman was the next speaker but his voice was not made for a rough house gathering and besides he had a manuscript.

Sturdy members of the Jackson club care not for manuscripts and lapped back into their seats until he had ended.

At 10 P. M. the janitor struck his head in the door and signaled that soon the time for adjournment must come. Mr. Vaughn again had the floor and launched forth into oratory. He was at it almost ten minutes, with only an occasional "lar" interrupting his speaking, when the janitor came in with a look of business on his face.

TRAVELERS ARE WARNED

AUTOMATIC SIGNALS SAID TO BE DEFECTIVE.

Danger at Railroad Crossings Is Declared Increased by New Safety Devices.

SALEM, Or., July 29.—(Special.)—In an effort to assist in the "Careful Crossing Campaign," now being conducted by the American Railway association and by other organizations interested in the prevention of accidents at crossings, the Oregon public service commission today issued a statement calling attention to the fact that travelers on the highways should not place too much confidence in electric bells and other automatic signals installed at hazardous crossings.

Although most types of warning devices are constructed and installed in such a manner that when out of order they will operate, this is not true of all devices, according to the statement issued by the commission. The fact that some drivers rely entirely upon these devices for warning creates a greater hazard than would be presented in case the devices had not been installed, the statement continues.

The commission further said that when automatic warning bells are out of order, they are not to be relied upon as a source of warning, but also create a contempt on the part of the drivers, and frequently are disregarded by travelers.
