"I'm the deputy sheriff sent here to meet you," was the reassuring answer that caused the negro to forget his fright for the moment at least.

FRIGHT APPEARED SLOWLY.

His fright was not appeased even when he entered the room in one of the hotels occupied by Tom Word, special agent of the department of justice, for he looked at Mr. Word as if he were the grand gobler, or the cyclops or some other high klan official.

Banker's Daughter Engaged.

HOQUIAM, Wash., July 29.—(Special.)—Announcement was made at a luncheon this afternoon of the engagement of Miss Elizabeth Adams, daughter of Mrs. W. L. Adams and Randolph Cunningham, son of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Cunningham of Everett. Miss Adams' father was the late W. L. Adams, pioneer of the harbor and president of the First National Bank. He had extensive lumbering interests in Oregon and Washington.

WHITE SALMON, Wash., June 29.—(Special.)—The following teaching staff have been selected for the coming year to assume their duties in August: W. F. Crozier, superintendent, professor of mathematics; B. E. Smead, manual training and physical culture; Miss Janet West, University of Oregon, Latin and French; Miss Inez M. Clift, University of Washington, English and history; Miss Louise A. Slier, Oregon Agricultural College, domestic science and art and agriculture; Miss Galva J. Bardin, University of Washington, eighth grade and algebra; Miss Agnes L. Hirsch, University of Washington, first and second, and third grades, and Miss Stella Johnson, first grade and music.

MID-WEST STATES FACE RUM ISSUES

Prohibition Question Raised in Ohio, Wisconsin.

VOLSTEAD IS OPPOSED

Both Sides Making Claims of Controlling Next Congressional Delegations.

CHICAGO, July 29.—(By the Associated Press.)—Well-defined wet and dry issues have appeared in two middle-western states in the campaign preceding the primaries, while Representative Volstead has active opposition in Minnesota, although the prohibition issue has not been raised there.

Both Sides Busy.

Because of the efforts of those opposed to prohibition to have congress enact a law permitting the manufacture and sale of light wines, open claims being made by both sides that they will control the next congressional delegation from these two states. The situation in the three states follows:

Columbus, Ohio—Ohio voters will again face the wet and dry issue at the statewide primaries on August 8, and the results are expected to be of national interest because Ohio is the home of the Anti-Saloon League and several national wet organizations.

WISCONSIN IS SWINGING INTO A CAMPAIGN FOR THE GENERAL ELECTION PRIMARIES SEPTEMBER 5 WITH PROHIBITION ENFORCEMENT AN ISSUE OF IMPORTANCE STRESSED BY CANDIDATES FOR ALL PARTIES.

In the republican field both factions, one headed by United States Senator La Follette and the other headed by Dr. W. A. Ganfield, candidate for the United States senate, have declared for law enforcement without specifically mentioning prohibition.

GOVERNOR IS ATTACKED.

The candidates themselves, however, have taken direct issue on the question, since Attorney-General Morgan, candidate for governor in opposition to Governor Blair, has specifically his election, declared specifically his opposition to return of wine and beer, asserting that promises of modification of the Volstead act were "fraudulent attempts at vote-getting."

R. P. HUTTON, superintendent of the Wisconsin Anti-Saloon League, has publicly attacked the governor as a "wet" because of his veto of the league prohibition enforcement bill passed by the 1921 Wisconsin legislature. At that time Governor Blair expressed himself as believing that persons should be permitted to manufacture wines and beer in their homes for home consumption.

ST. PAUL, Minn.—There are no surface indications that prohibition will be an issue in the congressional elections in Minnesota, but it did not enter the party nomination contests determined in the primary election, June 19.

Representative Volstead, father of the prohibition enforcement act, has a contest on his hands for re-election in the fall, but had no opponent for the republican nomination in the primary.

Rev. O. J. Kvale, of Benson, who opposed Mr. Volstead in the June primary and fall election, was disqualified on the court's finding that he had violated the corrupt practices act.

TWO YEARS AGO REV. MR. KVALE OBTAINED A MAJORITY IN THE PRIMARY OVER MR. VOLSTEAD, CONTENDING FOR THE REPUBLICAN NOMINATION, BUT THE CLERGYMAN WAS DISQUALIFIED ON THE COURT'S FINDING THAT HE HAD VIOLATED THE CORRUPT PRACTICES ACT.

REED'S FIGHT DIVERTING

(Continued From First Page.) back and assign them to a more spectacular show. Even so hard-boiled a veteran follower of fighting fire and famine in every quarter of the globe as William Hard wrote, in a dispatch from the town of Washington, Mo.: "Why, the Honorable James A. Reed made me cry, talking about mothers to some 2500 people whom he was persuading to vote for him for United States senator. It is not

WOMEN HAVE GRIEVANCE

This sentimental speech of Reed's about motherhood is his way of trying to overcome the fact that many of the women democrats in Missouri are organized against him. The women don't like Reed. They resent what seems to have been in Reed's course the wrong matters coming up in the Senate affecting women, an old-fashioned "set these back to the kitchen" attitude on the part of Reed toward their sex. This attitude has in a general way colored many of Reed's votes in the senate and his speeches on issues in which women were interested.

WOMEN FORGET NOTHING.

To Reed the fatal thing about this opposition by the women is the fact that women in politics seem to have longer memories than men. More disposed to go through to the end than men. Even if Reed should win the primary, which he is not likely to do, he will have to come back to the women's side and vote against him in the senate and vote against a similar body of men.

THIS ATTEMPTED USE OF SENTIMENT BY REED FOR A SPECIFIC PURPOSE HAS BEEN A FAILURE FROM THE GENERAL CURRENT OF HIS SPEECHES.

The bulk of his speech-making has been colored by his characteristic vituperation, by his violence, by his epigrammatic smartness, and by a method of argument generally colored with unfairness.

REED HAS DESCRIBED WILSON AND HIS FOLLOWERS AS "WOBBLY-KNEED IDEALISTS." REED IS CHARGED BY HIS OPPONENTS WITH HAVING ON ONE OCCASION CALLED POLLEN "A LONG-NEED HORSE." REED HAS SAID: "IF ANYBODY ORDERED YOU TO VOTE A CERTAIN WAY, YOU'D KNOCK HIM DOWN. YOU VOTE THE WAY YOU REASON. THAT IS WHAT I DID, AND I FEEL NO SHAME FOR DOING SO. WOULDN'T IT BE CONTEMPTIBLE IN ME TO LET A PRESIDENT TELL ME HOW TO VOTE?"

LONG IS DOING WELL.

Young Mr. Long seems to have done fairly creditably as a candidate. At least he seems not to have made any mistakes, and that is about all that was expected of him. (Incidentally to avoid mistakes in this kind of a situation is no small achievement.) It is the democrats of Missouri, and especially the democratic women of Missouri, who are beating Reed; and a course during the campaign seems to picture him as a reasonably worthy beneficiary of the determination of the Missouri democrats to get rid of Reed.

ON THE SAME DAY AS THE REED-LONG PRIMARY THE REPUBLICANS WILL NOMINATE THEIR CANDIDATE FOR SENATORSHIP. THERE ARE SEVEN ASPIRANTS FOR THE REPUBLICAN NOMINATION, OF WHOM ONLY ONE OR TWO ARE WHICH LONG REMAINS IN THE RACE. THIS REPUBLICAN NOMINATION OUGHT TO BE VALUABLE, FOR THE KIND OF RIGHT REED AND LONG ARE MAKING IN THE democratic party is the sort that is certain to leave scars that will last until November. If Reed should win a good many of the democratic women and other opponents of his will be likely to register their opposition by voting for the republican in November. In the same way, if Long wins, a considerable number that but for Hoover's food regulations during the war the farmers of Missouri would have got as much as $5 a bushel for their wheat. Another of Reed's malivolent assaults on Hoover has charged him with causing Americans during the war to live on "bran, shorts and middlings, while he sent good American wheat abroad to feed foreigners."

WEAKNESS ALSO REFLECTED.

Reed has tried to allure the democratic voters on the theory that he can make a better fight against the republicans in November than Long can. With indirect but obvious reference to the league of nations as a "dead horse," Reed has said: "I have a live horse to ride, and it's one which we can win. It is the corruption and incompetency of the Harding administration."

"SQUAW MAN" OUTGROWN.

Reed's fight from a defensive one into an offensive one. The effort has not been a success. After nearly ten weeks of campaigning, Reed is still, within a few days of the primary, on the defensive. And as Reed himself knows, not only is a defense fight the worst possible one for a politician in office seeking DROUGHT STUNTS FRUIT Clarke County Crop Is Affected by Continued Dry Spell. VANCOUVER, Wash., July 29.—(Special.)—The dry weather which will reduce the size of prunes in Clarke county, in the opinion of expert horticulturists, the prunes are dropping heavily, however, as this partly offsets the stunting effect of the weather, as the prunes that remain on the trees grow much larger when there is heavy drop. The crop in 1921 was small but the prunes were very large and brought a big return. This year's crop is estimated at about 60 per cent of normal and will not bring nearly as much as last year because of the smaller size of the prunes. Teaching Staff Selected.
