

EXTENSION CENTER OFFERS 83 COURSES

Language Curriculum Is Greatly Extended.

FACULTY NUMBERS 52

University of Oregon to Start First Term of Local Construction October 2.

Eighty-three courses, the largest number ever scheduled in Portland by the University of Oregon, will be offered at the extension center during the coming year.

The work of the first term begins October 2 and registrations will be accepted at the Portland extension center office, 652 courthouse, from now until the second week of next month.

With few exceptions, classes will be held evenings in the Lincoln high school, Market and Park streets.

A number of departures looking toward more comprehensive work in a number of the schools of the Portland center will be noted this year, one of the most important of which is the inauguration of a three-year program of work by a number of departments.

Three-year programs have been established in art, accounting, advertising, Americanization and public speaking. When the student successfully completes the three-year course, he will receive a special certificate from the University of Oregon.

Language Courses Added. The normal minimum requirement for each year of such a programme is four classes each week, normally two full evenings, and in courses of the laboratory type at least twice this amount.

The endeavor of the Portland center is to encourage the student to continue his studies over a period of time sufficient for a more adequate mastery of the subjects he pursues than is possible in one year of part-time study.

The American citizen course will be offered by Robert H. Down, head of the history department of Franklin high school. This will mark the beginning of the work in the three-year study of Americanization.

Courses in languages will be added to the curriculum this year, greatly emphasizing language study at the Portland center.

Courses have been added in German, Greek, Hebrew, Russian, Swedish and Danish-Norwegian. The Greek courses include elementary Greek, the Anabasis of Xenophon and the Greek New Testament and Hellenistic Greek.

The course in elementary Hebrew is designed to give a thorough foundation in the rudiments of the language.

Practical Use in Object. Besides the elementary courses in these languages, there will be offered literary courses in Russian, Swedish, and Danish-Norwegian. The same is true of work offered in German. The usual courses in French, Italian and Spanish have been scheduled.

All language courses will be taught with a view to their practical use. Foreign trade students, for example, are urged to specialize in a language.

The extension division will offer courses for the Portland center of American Institute of Banking, and between 225 and 240 persons are expected to register in this work.

Courses are scheduled in accounting, banking, business law, political economy and public speaking. Business courses generally are strengthened this year.

Last year more than 2000 students were enrolled in extension work. The year consists of the fall, winter and spring terms and the summer of 1923. The total, 400 grade and high school teachers, supervisors and principals enrolled.

HOTELS BEING SURVEYED

EARLY PREPARATIONS MADE FOR DOKKIE CONVENTION. Committee Seeks to Provide Housing Facilities for Visitors Coming Here Next Year.

A survey of hotels and lodging houses is being made by a committee of the Dramatic Order Knights of Klondike to provide housing facilities for visitors who will be in Portland when the international convention of this order meets next August.

The committee is headed by Milton R. Klepper, and in addition has the following "Dokkie" on the list: W. S. Hurst, L. J. Bergman, W. C. Halteman, Charles J. Roswell and John C. Erickson.

The committee is following in a general way the hotel and accommodations plan that was utilized by the Klondike in 1920. The cooperation of all of the hotels, large and small, as well as of lodging houses, is being sought so that all information required as to the number of rooms available, the price of such rooms and similar information can be obtained.

After this survey has been made the committee will send questionnaires to all temples to learn the exact number of rooms that will be required by each. These questionnaires will be returned to the committee by March 1, 1923, when contracts will be made with the various hotels.

APPLE HARVEST TO OPEN

Hood River Growers Will Begin Gathering Crop This Week. HOOD RIVER, Or., Sept. 22.—(Special)—The Hood River valley apple harvest will be in full swing by the middle of the coming week. Numerous growers in the lower valley began harvesting their Newtowns yesterday, and the picking of all varieties will be under way Monday. Weather conditions are ideal for maturing of apples. Cold nights and brilliantly sunny days prevail.

While there has been a tendency recently to boost crop estimates for the season, many growers and shippers have placed the year's yield close to 2000 carloads and in excess of that of last year.

TOURISTS AT LOCAL AUTO CAMP CROSS COUNTRY TWICE

Repairer of Surgeons' and Dentists' Instruments Working Along Way—Kit of Tools Carried on Trailer.

BY ADDISON BENNETT. FROM Corpus Christi, Tex., arrived Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Green with their twin daughters, Madge and Emma, age 13 years. Mr. Green has made two trips across the country, from coast to coast, and is now finishing up the third, and each trip lasting about a year. He works as he travels, being a repairer of surgeons' and dentists' instruments, and carrying his own kit of tools on a two-wheeled trailer. From here he goes down to California, and eventually back to his Texas home, but only for a short visit. He is tied and bound to the trail.

From my old Kansas home, Garden City, Kans., arrive two women, being their own auto mechanics and their own drivers and caretakers. They are sisters, and their names are Miss Lillie Faidra and Mrs. Mollie de Armont. They left home about nine weeks ago, coming via Colorado Springs, Denver, Cheyenne, Yellowstone park, British Columbia, Seattle and then here. The women are out on a trip for a year, and will remain much of the coming winter in California. In talking to them about Garden City they told me the place had between 4000 and 5000 inhabitants. They made a visit to a brother of mine, remember when 23 years ago we used to claim a population of from 70,000 to 80,000—that is we were to have the mightiest harbor of the century! Nearly all of the old-timers I asked about are dead, except George Inge.

Dr. and Mrs. J. G. Miller, with their son Roscoe, aged 18, and also Mr. and Mrs. T. Leiner are in camp. Dr. Miller belongs to the chiropractor sect or denomination or creed, while Mr. Leiner is, or has been, the proprietor of a furniture store. The party is still at the camp, but they are tarrying while they make a visit to a brother of the latter, who lives on Portland boulevard, near the camp grounds. The name of the Portland Leiner is Charles Leiner, a Portland business man. The party, after finishing their visit with Charles and his family, will get down to Stanford university in the mighty fall! Roscoe at the opening of the University, October 9, and then they will go down about Los Angeles and remain for the winter. Dr. and Mrs. Miller have traveled by auto from coast to coast three times, and seem to like it well enough to try it again next year.

Paulsboro, N. J., is represented at the camp by A. Cochrane, an electrical engineer, and a mill worker, Harold Bougher, who is accompanied by Mrs. Bougher and three children, Lewis, age 8; Bettie, 3; and Harold Jr., 10 months; also another passenger, Clara Cropper, a sister of Mrs. Bougher. This party has been out seven weeks. From here they go to Los Angeles and then back to their Jersey home.

Two auto mechanics, J. F. Coulter and Vic Nemesis, have left their home at Bismarck, N. D., and are hurrying their trip to Los Angeles, where they expect to make their new home. Not to get away from North Dakota, Oh, dear, no. That state is all right; the whole trouble lies with the people!

Another home seeker, who will seek no farther, is Walter Pronel, who comes, with Mrs. Pronel from Toledo, O., where he was employed by the Edison company. They have not as yet secured a house, but hope to without delay.

A retired furniture dealer from Cleveland, O., Albert Sundberg, who is accompanied by Mrs. Sundberg, arrived Sunday at the camp. They visited friends in the Dakotas and

STUDENTS ON PROBATION

Fifty-one Men at Corvallis Are Penalized for Low Status. OREGON AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE, Corvallis, Sept. 23.—(Special).—Fifty-one students are on probation through low grades for last term, announced the registrar's office today. These students fell below 70 in their term's average, and are prohibited from becoming candidates for office in the student body, class, or any other student organization, nor may they represent the college or any college organization in any capacity.

The scholarship committee is particularly determined that all students having a weighted average below 70 shall be posted at midterm. Earning students then may have the second half of the term to make up the work.

Construction Surveys Made.

WHITE SALMON, Wash., Sept. 23.—(Special).—Surveyors and contractors have been going over the North Bank highway route, between Underwood and Lyle, this week, preparatory to putting in bids for construction work. Bids will be opened October 3.

Where Was I to Get the Money?

—and then Emma Broach told me about her "Magic Purse Filler"—an ideal way to earn extra money each week without having to step out of the house.

HOW we were going to manage was worrying me almost sick.

I hadn't had anything new for so long that I was getting ashamed to go anywhere. And I wanted things for the house—new curtains and a long list of other items.

Everet's teeth needed attention. So did mine. And there were some bills six months overdue.

But where was the money to come from?

We were paying for a home. That and the butcher's and grocer's bills and other necessary expenses took every cent almost as fast as Everet could earn it. No matter how we skimmed and squeezed and went without, there was never anything left over.

I Couldn't Neglect My Home

"If I could only earn some extra money!" I kept thinking. But it seemed like wishing for the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow.

Nearly every day I had my work all done by one or two o'clock or a little after. Often I was all through by ten or eleven in the morning. It seemed a shame to let all that spare time go to waste when I needed money so badly.

But what could I do?

I couldn't neglect the meals or the housework—so a place in a store or office or any other work requiring regular hours was out of the question. Except for plain mending, I couldn't sew. I knew I was not cut out for canvassing or selling—and, besides, I was too sensitive about what the neighbors would say to try anything so public. Rack my brain as I would, there seemed nothing else left.

Emma Had a Lot of New Things.

One afternoon last Spring, when I was feeling blue and discouraged, Emma Broach came over. We had been friends since our school days. But we now lived so far apart that it was often a long time between visits.

Of course I was glad to see her. But I must confess that in a way she made me feel more blue and discouraged than ever. From head to heels everything she had on was new—she looked as if she had just stepped out of a fashion plate. I couldn't help envying her.

When she mentioned a little trip she had taken the week before, and some new furniture she had just ordered for her living room, my envy doubled. I knew her husband didn't make any more than Everet. I wondered how she did it. Finally I blurted right out and asked her.

MRS. HELENE HIMBERG, 261 Wyckoff Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

I Was All Ears.

"Really, Helene," she answered, "I have bought so many things in the last few months that I know people must think some rich relative has left us all his money. But it's even better than that. I call it my 'Magic Purse Filler.'"

"Helene," she went on, "I've found the ideal way to earn money at home—in spare time. It's so easy and interesting that it doesn't seem like work at all."

I was all ears—maybe Emma's "Magic Purse Filler" would solve my troubles, too.

"You know how popular wool hose has become," she continued, "even in Summer—for golf, tennis and other sports. And in Winter everybody wants them. That's the secret of all my new things—I earn them by knitting hose."

"Oh, no!" Emma exclaimed, in answer to my question. "Not by hand. I knit them on a wonderful little hand knitting machine—my 'Magic Purse Filler.' I can knit a pair in so short a time. And I get fine pay for every pair I make."

Emma Tells the Way

"But who pays you?" I asked. "And how did you get started?"

"There is a concern in Rochester, New York," Emma answered, "that wants all the home-knit hose it can get—to supply to stores. You know how nearly everybody thinks genuine home-knit goods are so much better than the factory kind. It's the Home Profit Hosiery Company. You get the knitter from them. They show you how to use it—how to knit hose, sweaters and many other articles. They also furnish free yarn—it doesn't cost you a penny. You do the knitting entirely at your own convenience—sit down at the machine just whenever you feel like it. Then, as fast as you finish a dozen or more pairs you send them to the Home Profit Hosiery Company and they send you a check. It's the easiest way to earn extra money I have ever heard of."

If Emma could do it why couldn't I? she had a booklet with her that told all about the plan. I eagerly read every word of it, and then immediately sent for a machine.

With the machine came a book of instructions that made everything simple and clear. After a little practice—simply following directions carefully—I quickly got the knack of it and have been doing fine ever since.

My First Check.

The first week—just sitting down at the machine whenever I had nothing else to do—I knit four dozen pairs. A few days later I received my first check—and how happy and proud I was. Since then the postman has brought me dozens of such checks—many of them for much larger amounts, but none has ever given me such a thrill as that first one did—for it meant that at last I had found a way to keep my pocketbook filled instead of empty—a way to end all the old skimming and worrying and doing without.

Operating the Home Profit Knitter looked so easy that Everet—who at first sort of pooch-pooched the whole idea—got interested and tried his hand. Now, many an evening he fills his pipe and sits down at the Knitter and knits two or three or a half-dozen pairs of hose before going to bed—says he would rather do it than read.

I No Longer Have to Do Without

Before long I had all the back bills paid up and enough money to blossom out in new clothes. Also for the first time in my life I now have a little money in the bank—all my own. And the amount is steadily growing larger each month.

It's really surprising what a difference a little extra money can make. More than once I have earned enough in a single week to pay for a nice new dress. The biggest check I ever received in all my life came one week when Everet helped me every evening. Everet said last night maybe we would be better off if he were to quit his job as a painter and give all his time to knitting hose—and at that perhaps there's more truth in his remark than he realized.
