Garthwick"

Where nature has combined with the hand of man in the creation of an ideal. Where the great outdoors has been retained and the beauties of Oregon crystallized by the landscape artist and the builders of homes. Garthwick, adjoining the Waverley Country club, with the lure of a morning game of golf. Garthwick, near the banks of the gorgeous old Willamette, with the opportunity of an evening boat ride on the river or a chance for a wily chinook or a sporty silverside. Garthwick with its beautiful paved > streets and alleys, its ornamental arch lights, its large building sites, its wonderful car service, its magnificent homes. Garthwick, the social center of Portland and within the reach of everyone. Garthwick is the result of the vision of a syndicate of Portland's leading business men who were interested in the Waverley Country club and who purchased and developed this magnificent tract that a suitable environment should surround their favorite golf club. With the same civic spirit they are now offering this wonderful property at one-half its actual value and much less than cost, that you may be able to take advantage of the present price of building. Hence these terms will not change the present high character of the district and all of the existing restrictions will continue. Their loss is your gain. Their philanthropy is your opportunity.

FALLEN LEAVES USEFUL

Bureau of Parks Tells of Value as Garden Fertilizer.

A demonstration of the ability of a new power stump puller, invented by D. J. Bontrager of Portland, was given on the farm of Elmer Stauffer, north of Hubbard, last Thursday afternoon. Stumps as large as 30 inches in diameter were jerked out of the hard ground and in some instances several stumps at a time were pulled without trouble.

A feature of the puller is the fact that it is equipped with a four-horsepower engine especially desired for use in pulling stumps. This engine has two speeds similar to an automobile and can be slowed down for landers who would improve their axiremely hard pulls. It is estimated that this little engine with the puller attachment can do at least two times the work of an ordinary horse puller. In addition it can operate where horses would mire down in always collects and uses all fallen the mud or where other stumps might interfere with the operation of a horse puller, it is declared.

The stump puller was perfected in Portland and the company backing it is an Oregon concern.
