

GIRDLE EFFECTIVE FEATURE IN DRESS TRIMMING SCHEME AND EASILY MADE

Dress Material Generally Used for Purpose, Sometimes Showing Lining or Facing of Gay Contrasting Color—Material Cut on Bias Drapes Most Easily.

SPENGLER

GIRDLES play no small part today in the scheme of trimming or finishing a dress; and they are something that any woman who likes to use her needle can make herself. One sees dresses with a more or less draped, wide girdle of the dress material tacked on so that a long-waisted effect is given, and where the fastening comes a graceful loop and one end will make the finish.

These girdles are usually of the dress material, sometimes showing a lining or facing of a gay contrasting color where the girdle is allowed to turn back a trifle so the color will show. These draped girdles are usually nine or ten inches in width, and while a piece of material cut on the bias will drape more easily, it is possible to use a straight piece. Girdles made of roses of the dress or other material are most attract-live and effective. Take a delicate shade of gray tulle, for instance, and make the roses of the crepe, tacking them to a foundation of silk or crepe, and make them so they just meet easily everywhere. When the girdle fastenings have several streamers of ribbon or of the crepe, making these different lengths and letting a couple reach to the hem of the skirt, Georgette or the silver or gold tissues make up wonderfully in these flower girdles, and if one likes several colors they can be artistically blended to look well together.

The Age of Romance lives again in frocks

CAVALIER collar, mousquetaire sleeve—much velvet—the circular flare. New frocks borrow the graces of the romantic middle ages.

Panels—and there are many—all but sweep the ground. Tinsel embroideries and many-jeweled discs relieve copper, green and the new, dull red of autumn.

- Dinner frocks of velvet in jeune fille models... 55.00 to 89.00
Robes de paillettes—from Paris, priced... 95.00 to 175.00
Metal lace dinner frocks... 89.00 to 110.00

Velvet is first favorite with smart modistes--

In the wide sweep of the capeline, the sharp turn of the tricorn, the turban, the poke—model makers consider velvet first—though hatter's plush is much liked—with long loops of ribbon everywhere! A very choice selection, from model makers, at prices beginning at 15.00

The hip length jacquette is the new note in furs

Sketched is a jacquette of soft Scotch moles, its cuffs and choker collar formed of sable-dyed squirrel. A most distinguished garment—priced 325.00.

Rich new capes of Hudson seal, with the circular flare, from 425.00.

dry sentiment is seen in Germany. Americans Take Stump for Prohibition Movement.

BERLIN, Sept. 28.—(By the Associated Press.)—Americans are taking an active part in the movement to put Germany on the dry list. Recent meetings held in various parts of the country presented speakers from Connecticut and Minnesota, who described the progress of the prohibition movement in the United States.

These gatherings have revealed a surprising amount of sentiment among the people in favor of the abolition of alcohol. It is asserted in a statement by Dr. Reinhard Strecker of Darmstadt, president of the committee conducting the campaign and former Hessian minister of education.

The depreciation of the mark has left German horse racing in the doldrums from the owner's point of view at least, and reports are current that many stables are to be abandoned entirely, or else reduced. In efforts to stem the wave of financial pessimism which hit racing circles, a number of clubs have made attractive increases in the purses for autumn events.
