

SHIP BOARD CRAFT KEEPS BARS OPEN

Liquor Sealed Up on Board Incoming Vessels.

EVASION OF LAW LIKELY

Big Liners Declared Able to Pick Up Wet Goods Left on Lighter Outside Three-Mile Limit.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(By the Associated Press.)—There was the usual "moaning of the bar" upon liners putting out to sea today, despite Attorney-General Daugherty's ruling on high seas liquor and the announcement of Chairman Lasker at Washington that all shipping board craft had been ordered to travel dry.

Incoming vessels were first to feel the effects of the attorney-general's ruling. On arrival in port each vessel, irrespective of flag, was met by a crew of customs officers and sealed up. Liquor stores and even the private supplies of ship's officers and seamen.

Confronted by the possibility of a searched voyage, the Atlantic liner company scheduled for the shipping board craft America threatened to leave the ship at the last minute. Only when officers of the United States liners, who manage the vessel, assured the thirty-one that "in the absence of definite instructions from Washington the bars would open as usual," was the ship able to depart with her full sailing list.

Dry Voyage Possible.
There was provision, however, which skeptics eyed with misgiving. Orders might come, said the officials, in time to be transmitted to the America by wireless, in which case the bars might be sealed in mid-ocean.

The majestic mastodon of the sea, likewise left without interference from customs authorities, her $10,000 supply of liquor ready for the expected onslaught beyond the three-mile limit. Star line officers declined to discuss Mr. Daugherty's ruling, except to say "it apparently won't hit the America."

The absence of custom officials also lent spirits to the departure of the Giglio Conare, which left for Genoa and Naples with well-stocked lockers. She carried not only a supply for passengers but several hundred gallons of liquor for the crew. Her contract stipulating wine with each meal.

Even the barkeeper was ousted from his quarters, so thorough was the job of the customs officials in sealing up her liquor supply when the Stockholm docked today. The private stocks of the captain and the crew, who came into port unwarned of the Daugherty rule, were sealed tight.

But while they looked on in grievous silence, there was one exultant passenger, Mrs. Lydia Johnson of Pierre, S. D., who cheered the officials in their task. She is a prohibition worker, just returned from an unsuccessful campaign to make Norway and Sweden dry.

terling American ports with certain kinds of fuel, food or products that were not intended to be landed, but, as is the case frequently with liquor, in transit to countries where prohibition is not in force.

As to the general effect should the ruling be upheld, it is said it would work hardship on foreign vessels calling at American ports with liquor cargo destined for other lands.

From a practical standpoint that is declared out of the question, since the character of cargo usually handled, the manner in which it is received aboard ship and the necessity of filling space emptied at each port of call with freight originating here cannot be regulated.

As there are no regular foreign passenger lines plying direct from Portland, the course to and from this harbor being via other waterways, the effect would not be general as at Pacific coast ports where direct services to the orient and antipodes are maintained.

As to the loss to American tonnage in business, the transshipment of liquor from foreign to foreign would be the loss and have to be routed via other waterways, which on the Pacific side would be to the advantage of British Columbia.

The pronouncement was held widely to be equivalent to a direct threat to withdraw the British troops from the Rhine and completely terminate the enterprise unless France comes into line with the British policy in the far east.

Bonar Law's position as potential head of a potential conservative government in the near future and his intimate relations with several of the present cabinet ministers are regarded as giving his view special weight.

Indeed it is surmised that the cabinet members, especially Prime Minister Lloyd George and Colonial Secretary Churchill, had something more than mere previous knowledge of the launching of this utterance.

To The People of Oregon and the Pacific Northwest.

Because of my love of the beautiful and grand in nature and a desire to serve coming generations, I have decided to spend the remaining years of my lifetime in developing a tract of 2000 acres which I have purchased and which is situated within the Columbia Gorge Park of the Oregon National Forest, between Boylstonville and Eagle Creek, in the very heart of the Cascade Range—known as Lancaster Camp.

The Columbia River Highway passes through the tract. It is reached by river Steamers and transcontinental trains, and without doubt it is the most scenic and easily accessible of all that wild mountain region overlooking the Columbia.

While creating the necessary buildings and constructing roads and trails, the utmost care was used to keep the natural beauty and not to hurt the trees and flowering shrubs, for it is our purpose to make these grounds famous as an arboretum. Friends who love rare trees and wild flowers are invited to bring or send them to the camp, where they will be appreciated and cared for.

I have said to President Scholz of Reed College that if he would select College People to have charge of the Home Economics and service in this camp, I would give 10% of the 100,000 dollars earned from dining service.

30%	3.00

and 50% of all such earnings hereafter for a scholarship fund; the remainder to be used in beautifying the grounds which are to be kept in perpetuity. A good breakfast has been made. Buildings will be enlarged and improvements made as rapidly as funds are available.

It is hoped that it will be possible to double the present capacity during the winter months through the kindness of interested friends.

The grounds, buildings and tents are electric lighted and well heated. The food is excellent. Beds are thoroughly comfortable and prices are reasonable—so that regardless of weather conditions you will have a delightful outing and enjoy good fellowship around our Camp Fires.

The autumn tints are glorious—The decked is now blooming like Springtime, and fishing is good. Come and see!

Forty miles of beautiful landscape, then stop and be refreshed at our Fireside, one hour and forty minutes from Portland.
