

TURK ONLY NATION TO BENEFIT BY WAR

Prestige Declared Greater Than for 40 Years.

ALLIED QUARREL BLAMED

Recovery of Lost Influence in Europe Is Considered to Be Most Sensational.

(While the near-east situation remains dangerous, the Turk has made a most sensational recovery of lost power and prestige and today is stronger, Mr. Gardiner says, than in 40 years. He since has benefited by the war and come back to Europe as a conqueror.)

BY A. G. GARDINER.

Britain's Foreign Minister, Lord Curzon, in a speech at the House of Commons, Oct. 7.—(Special Cable.)

Europe breathes more freely, although the near-east situation remains full of danger and no one can venture to forecast the future.

Whatever develops from the present situation and whatever gloom is put on the march of events, the broad fact remains that the Turk has made a most sensational recovery of lost influence. He stands higher in the world today than for 40 years. He returns to Europe as a conqueror, smiling on his victors and carrying the approval of soviet Russia and the momentary friendship at least of his ancient enemy, Bulgaria.

The world had been in labor and brought forth a resurrected Turk. This is the present visible fruit of four years of war and four years of peace. Germany is in the dust, Austria is in the dust, Russia, which fought for the allies, is tormented by France, but the Turk emerges from chaos relatively more powerful than he has been for a century.

His entry into the war on the side of Germany was the most disastrous blow the allies sustained. It prolonged the war by two years and cost millions of lives and thousands of millions in treasure.

War Record One of Treachery. The Turkish record during the war was one of treachery and atrocity. The massacre of Armenian Christians eclipsed even his own record of barbarism. His side lost. His allies were crushed to atoms. He himself is exalted as a victor over the victors. He has trampled on the treaty of peace and returns to Constantinople as a conqueror.

How has this amazing conclusion been reached? It could not have come about had the victors remained loyal to each other and loyal to the cause of European peace. The whole history of the Turk has been that of playing upon the fear and jealousies of the so-called Christian powers, but never were they so successfully played upon as in the present.

French Support Obtained. The Turk obtained the secret support of France, which saw in him an ally in imposing his will on Europe. He received the secret support of Italy, which feared the war aims of Greece, Russia, outwitted by everybody, naturally was ready to use this instrument which would cause the allies trouble. England, in consequence, was left isolated in her opposition.

By encouraging the Greeks with empty words, Lloyd George gave France grounds for supporting the Turk. His appeal to the dominions added humiliation to defeat. The result was the placing of France in complete command of the whole European situation.

Disastrous Effect Noted. It is impossible to deny the disastrous effect this has had on British prestige. In Europe our moral influence has fallen lower than in the memory of man. At the end of the war British authority dominated Europe. Today it is negligible everywhere. Nor is this the worst. The resurrection of the Turk in the face of our support and the Greeks has profoundly discredited us throughout the entire Mohammedan world.

France today is hailed as the friend and protector of Islam instead of Germany. The effect of this on the Indian situation has resulted in still further grave disturbances there. Trouble can be expected in Egypt. Already under the new conditions, with Zakiul in exile, the Turk has obtained important influence in the Egyptian government.

Public Anxiety Created. All this record of muddle and failure has created public anxiety throughout England. Widespread resentment prevails at the attitude of France, but it must be admitted that we have no alternative. The situation that she has received good excuse for her actions. The question is what now can be done. Upon what basis can the common action of Italy, France and England be restored? Mutual confidence between the governments and the people has received a shock from which it will be difficult to recover, but it is agreed that restoration of an understanding between the late allies is necessary if the drift toward open hostilities is to be checked.

The British problem is how to bring this about without surrendering to the extreme French policy in regard to Germany. It is very unlikely that any satisfactory foundation will be established until new governments are brought into power both in France and England.

2 INTERNATIONALES ARE UNITING AGAIN

Socialists and Capitalists in Europe Reorganize.

HOPE SEEN BY HARDEN

Belief Expressed Franco-German Economic Agreement May Save Continent.

Two internationales—socialist and capitalist—now are being reorganized not only in Germany but throughout Europe and in Harder's view the initiation of the "United States of Europe" now is in sight. The Franco-German economic agreement will, he is convinced, if properly worked out, spell the salvation of the entire continent.

BY MAXIMILIAN HARDEN, Germany's Foremost Publisher. (Copyright, 1922, by The Oregonian.)

BEELIN, Oct. 7.—(Special cable.)—The new internationales, which short-sighted people imagined were destroyed by the war, are today reorganizing and extending their front. On the one hand is the socialist internationales, after many splits, slowly reuniting. On the other hand the Stinnes-Lubersack agreement is the first indication of the gradual construction of international capitalism.

The pressure from German workmen, taught by Russia's misery the utter hopelessness of proletarian dictatorship, has finally brought the majority of the independent socialists together. This is conceivable even amid the excitement of the bitter invectives, because the questions about which they quarreled have disappeared, namely, war and monarchy. All have passed for the moment. The newly united party in Germany will not have a majority, but with 160 seats in the Reichstag they must get the principal seats in every cabinet. But only the new election will show to what extent the workers' political sense and party spirit has been dulled during socialism's post-war crisis, during which strong leaders have been wanting.

Communists Strong Gainers. Meanwhile the communists have been strong gainers. They are directed and financed from Moscow and all of the radical elements, angered by the independence of the army monarchy. All have passed for the moment. The newly united party in Germany will not have a majority, but with 160 seats in the Reichstag they must get the principal seats in every cabinet.

More important than this move toward taming socialism and making it fit to govern itself is the coalition of European capitalism, which is no longer secret. The initial Stinnes-Lubersack agreement, the appearance of which everywhere has been underestimated, has been followed by many similar alliances. The Franco-German agreement, the appearance of which everywhere has been underestimated, has been followed by many similar alliances.

Uniting of Industries Planned. The object of all such combinations, as well as those in the chemical and dye industry, is to create a united German industrial trust, uniting German coal and French iron and later all industries in both countries with threads running over into Holland and Switzerland. This is the plan of the "four-house ring," as he terms it, to oust him. The charges of immorality in the recall petitions have caused the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, the churches and other organizations to line up against Mr. Sharp, according to the program of the recall, while on the other hand a number of granges have adopted resolutions against the recall.

Mr. Sharp said today he would fight to a finish and that he would improve the charges made against him. He has perfected an organization to fight the recall, according to announcement today of his friends. Mr. Sharp declares that this is an attempt of the "four-house ring," as he terms it, to oust him. The charges of immorality in the recall petitions have caused the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, the churches and other organizations to line up against Mr. Sharp, according to the program of the recall, while on the other hand a number of granges have adopted resolutions against the recall.

Enormously Rich Body of Ore Reported Discovered. ANCHORAGE, Oct. 7.—(By the Associated Press.)—Congressional Delegate Sutherland, who has just arrived here from the interior, reports that a 73-foot ledge of silver-lead ore has been discovered at Copper Mountain, just north of Mount McKinley. It is said to carry values up to $400 a ton and to be one of the greatest lode deposits in the history of Alaska.

A group of 23 claims was bonded by the discoverers, A. M. Grant, and Frank Giles, to J. J. Price and Tom Atken. Grant came here with Sutherland. The find is 50 miles west of McKinley station on the Alaska road.

Pastor Begins Duties. CORVALLIS, Or., Oct. 7.—(Special.)—Rev. Monroe G. Everett, pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian church of Portland the last three years, is in Corvallis to begin his work as student pastor at the First Presbyterian church, the position having been left vacant by the resignation of Rev. Mr. Boozer, who accepted a similar position at Ames. Rev. Mr. Everett has been on the coast since 1908, being located at Camas, Wash., for some years.

destroying a large portion of the skull. Mr. and Mrs. Zunke and two children, in company with Lee R. Evans, motored to Olympia last Monday and were invited to eat dinner with Zunke's brother, William Zunke. Mrs. Zunke and Evans would not go in, and remained in the auto until Zunke came out. When he returned his wife reproached him for having taken so much time. After having returned home they decided to separate. Mrs. Zunke was given the furniture, the residence was sold and the money used to pay all the debts. Since their separation Mrs. Zunke was a member of the local lodge of Odd Fellows and had been for several years in the camp of the Emery & Nelson Mill company of this city. He was the father of a boy aged 11 and a girl aged 10.

More facts and fancies about Oriental Rugs

"The incorrigibly sentimental American has too often allowed himself to be deserted from the real rug before him and has paid high prices for charming fancies. It is more economical to buy rugs and literature separately; Arabian Nights tales are much cheaper in the book stores than in rug shops. Those who like them mixed have paid high."

Arthur Upham Hope, in ARTS AND DECORATION Reprinted by permission.

WE subscribe heartily to the above sentiments from the pen of an authority. Anything from the Orient seems to lend itself easily to flights of the imagination. It has always been a matter of principle with us to sell Oriental Rugs of quality strictly on their merits, and not to permit any customer's judgment to be confused by appeals to his sentiment or imagination. We deal in facts, not fancies.

For twenty-two years we have sold the best Oriental Rugs solely for their beauty, their quality, their serviceability. Their reputation thus built up must be maintained. Thousands of appreciative people, not only in the Northwest but throughout the United States, who have bought our imported rugs, can tell you how they have profited by our method. We invite you to share their satisfaction.

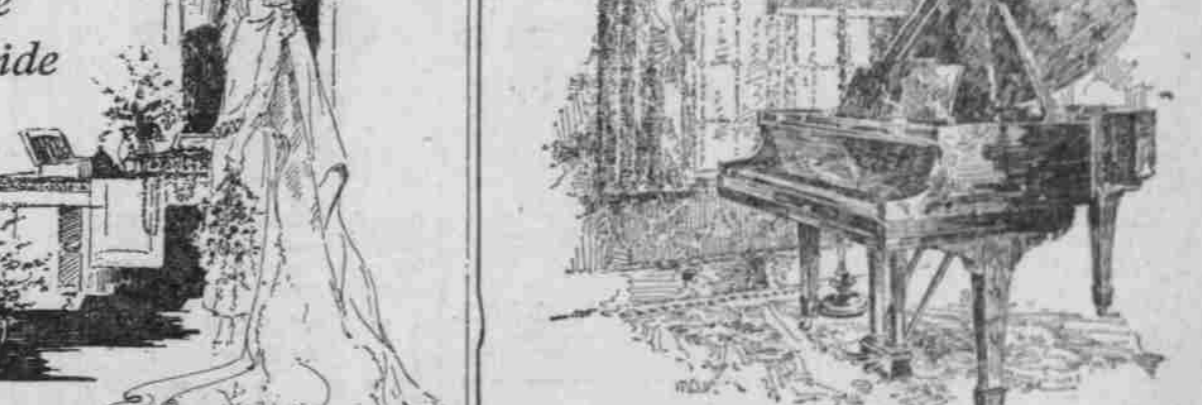

An Invitation to Home Builders Bring us your blueprints or plans, or give us the dimensions of your favorite rooms. Let us prove to your own satisfaction that we can supply the right rug for the right place; that we can give you more value for your money, more beauty and more permanent satisfaction in Oriental Rugs than for the same money spent in any other way. Let us show you what nearly a quarter of a century in business and world-wide buying power can do for your home. Put us to the test. You be the judge.

at the October term of circuit court, escaped from the Lane county jail at any early hour today by sawing his way out. According to other prisoners, Ray used a hacksaw, and cutting two steel bars in his cell, reached the corridor last night about 11 o'clock. He then climbed to an upper window and sawed two more bars in two, dropping to the ground 20 feet below. This was about 4 o'clock this morning, the other inmates of the jail said. The escape was not discovered until the jailer went in at 5 o'clock. Ray is 20 years old and was arrested last July with a stolen automobile in his possession.
