NO ARTIST WINS WITHOUT STUDY, SAYS PRIMA DONNA

Actor, No Matter How Gifted, Must Take to Art and Learn to Use His Gift, Says Marie Rich.

BY LEONE CASS BAER. WHEN Marie Rich was 15 years old she decided that the nice, polite and utterly respectable profession of teaching, which had been selected for her by her parents, was not the line of earnest endeavor she wanted to pursue.

other than an actress had gone out of my head and when I was 15 my mother became resigned to the idea that she might have a Mrs. Leslie Carter in her home, but never a Minerva of wisdom. So, under dad's tuition and guidance, I began my career and it has led me far."

Dance Art Picked Up.

Miss Rich might have added that it had led her afar in a few years, for the summers are not many since she was 15. She picked up dancing, just as Frances White did, just as half the excellent dancers of the stage have done, getting an idea for a step from this person and an idea from that person and making up a few of her own until she can dance with the best of them. Whenever the grind of rehearsals isn't too heavy the ambitious Miss Rich goes right along with her vocal lessons. She appeared here on two occasions with Kolb and Dill, playing the lead with May Clay in both plays. She has been in vandeville too, and was in picture work for one summer.

Miss Rich believes emphatically that the art of acting is a gift. "Actors are born, not made," she asserts. "Of course any actor, no matter how gifted, must take to that art as a trade and a profession. He must learn to use his gift of acting just as a singer must learn how to use her voice and how not to use it, just as a writer, gifted with imagination, must learn how to express that imagination in good English, and with individual style. A young actor must study and perfect himself under a competent director in a stock company. That is the best school in the world. How to walk on the stage, how to conduct oneself in a scene when not taking a part, what to do with your hands and feet, all these are not

Town Modern, Roofs Thatched.

In the thatched-roof homes of Taobolan, on the little Philippine island of Layte, the electrical idea shines brightly every night, for most of these homes are electrically lighted, and the town, with a population of 15,000, has its electric light and power plant with three 22½ kilowatt generators. The streets are bright at night.
