INSURANCE MAN COMING... E. E. RHODES OF NEWARK TO BE HERE THIS WEEK. Vice-President of Mutual Benefit Company to Attend Convention of Representatives.

Mr. Rhodes, vice-president of the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance company of Newark, N. J., and nationally known as a financier and insurance man, will be in Portland this week and his visit here will be made the occasion for a convention of representatives of his company in Oregon.

Mr. Rhodes will arrive Tuesday evening and while here will make his headquarters at the Portland hotel. The convention at which he will be the outstanding feature will be held at Mrs. Henderson's Crown Point club on Wednesday according to plans made by Stuart K. King, head of the Mutual Benefit company's activities in Oregon.

Mr. Rhodes will be accompanied by Oliver Thurman, superintendent of agencies for the company. The two men are making a tour of the country getting in touch with the various representatives in all sections.

Mr. Rhodes has been widely mentioned in insurance journals as one of the biggest men in the insurance business. He is declared to have reached his present high position through actual service covering a long period of years.

Thirty-six years ago Mr. Rhodes entered the employ of his company as an office boy. Through study and application he became an expert mathematician and actuary and for several years was mathematician for the company.

When the delegates to the Cowitz convention met on August 29, 1881, the memorial which he formulated not only asked that a new territory be created north of the Columbia river, but among other things asked for appropriation from congress for the opening of a road from Puget sound toward Fort Walla Walla, on the Columbia river.

The history of the road, according to W. P. Bonney, secretary of the society, is as follows: When the delegates to the Cowitz convention met on August 29, 1881, the memorial which he formulated not only asked that a new territory be created north of the Columbia river, but among other things asked for appropriation from congress for the opening of a road from Puget sound toward Fort Walla Walla, on the Columbia river.

The picture of the dead bodies of two gigantic bull moose, weighing about 1500 pounds each, which were antlers locked in deadly combat, found ten miles from the Rocky Mountain house, some 300 miles north of Edmonton, Alberta, is one of the prize souvenirs of Waldo Anderson, who secured the picture while on his vacation trip to that section during the summer.

The picture indicates the moose had been in a fight for supremacy and had gotten their horns locked in the struggle and were unable to separate themselves. One of the animals had been dead several days longer than the other. It is thought, owing to the conditions of the bodies when found, Mr. Anderson is planning to have the picture enlarged.

Y. M. C. A. OBTAINS JOBS

EMPLOYMENT DEPARTMENT IS REORGANIZED.

Efficient Men Sifted Out of Large Numbers of Applicants; W. A. Elliot Is Secretary.

The employment department of the Portland Young Men's Christian association has been reorganized, with W. A. Elliot as secretary and H. L. Markel assistant secretary. From 1000 to 1500 men each month are interviewed regarding employment, and jobs sought range from high-salaried accountants to common labor.

Of more than 1000 men who applied for jobs in September, 1922, were placed, and in October of 1300 applicants, jobs were obtained for 182.

Approximately two-thirds of the applicants are drifting in from outside states, said Mr. Elliot, and selection requires considerable effort. A large number of men from Montana and Idaho are here seeking jobs. There are ten men for each job, and the department puts all through a sifting process to determine the most efficient and most worthy.

"We are trying to serve the business men of Portland with efficient help," said Mr. Elliot. "We are spending much time in seeking out the best men for the jobs.

The applicants have an extremely wide range of wants, especially a locomotive engineer who had been on the road for ten years came to for a place as night clerk in a hotel, for he was getting tired of his present occupation."

Mr. Elliott characterized the present employment situation as fair. While changes in the levels of interest are served, the department, he said, strives to give members first service, at the same time helping all others as much as possible.
