EDUCATORS IN EAST LAUD REED COLLEGE CURRICULUM

Requests for Detailed Information Received From National Weekly and Monthly Periodicals.

EASTERN educators and editors have given enthusiastic praise to the new Reed college curriculum in letters recently received by Richard P. Scholz, president.

conceptions and theories of some one exact science are covered. The individual and personal manner of the teaching is also commensurate with the student to do his own thinking.

Reading is Required. Independent and critical collateral reading, not only in English but in some modern foreign language, is required throughout the four years of college work in connection with all courses.

Major Course Elective. At the end of his sophomore year the student in this position is offered an intelligent choice of a major subject to be pursued intensively during the last two years of the college course.

Symposiums Are Held. In the senior year there is held once a week in each section a two-hour colloquium, or symposium, intended to compel the student to think his way through to a unified, synthetic interpretation and philosophy of life—his own.

Creative Thinking Urged. As against the current chronological division of college work, the Reed curriculum is based on the belief that it is not only possible but desirable that the acquirement of qualitative and creative processes of a real college education should go hand in hand progressively, according to the aptitude and maturity of the student.

More than 100 older boys from Portland are expected to attend the O. C. V. boys conference to be held at Eugene December 1 to 3. Reports received by the Interstate executive committee of the Young Men's Christian Association of Oregon and Idaho indicate that the attendance from various Oregon cities will be large.

PAPER AIDS PINEAPPLE Production and Cut Costs.

HONOLULU, T. H., Nov. 6.—(Special)—Experiments made here indicate that the business of growing pineapples in Hawaii will be revolutionized by a new paper process invented by Charles P. Eckart, former manager of Oiaa sugar plantation, the results being a considerable increase in production and a marked decrease in cultivation costs.

It is calculated that 75,000 rolls of mulching paper, costing about $200,000, have been used in Hawaii's pineapple fields this year. It is expected that the production of pineapples will be increased 25 per cent on first plantings and about 50 per cent on second plantings.

The Citizen-Veteran

BY HARRY B. CRITCHLOW.

NO SOLDIER envies the life of a sailor. For him there is no comfort in being swayed about on the deck of a tossing ship while an astounded stomach is at the point of demonstrating its rebellious feeling.

Dr. J. G. Able, who has been nominated for the executive committee of Portland post of the American Legion.

There was one ride that the soldier could not share with his sailor. For him there is no comfort in being swayed about on the deck of a tossing ship while an astounded stomach is at the point of demonstrating its rebellious feeling.

It was on one of these overcrowded vessels that two doughboys were assigned to baggage detail shortly after the Atlantic crossing. In their hands a large number of officers' bed rolls were to be found.

At various times after his graduation from Harvard law school Cabot Ward served as general auditor and governor of Porto Rico, member of the United States Argentine commission, park commissioner of New York city, captain of artillery, New York national guard, major in the American expeditionary force.

William R. Day, who saw service in the world war, is now a motor truck outfit, arrived in Portland last week from Stockton, Cal. They had been located at 1837 Morrison avenue.

Give the date of the opening of hostilities of the world war. Line up 100 persons at random and ask them this question. It is safe to say that less than 15 per cent will be able to give the correct answer.

Due to the fact that people young and old are no longer formed as they should be regarding the battles and incidents of the world war, the Oregonian, through the columns of The Citizen-Veteran, will begin a series of short and compact articles which will throw some light on the war.

There is no name that means more to the citizens of the city of Loos, France, than that of Mile. Emile Moreau, for it was this girl, who on September 25, 1915, by her bravery averted what might have been a retreat of the British regiment defending the town.

More than a dozen members of Portland's Les Societes des 40 Hommes et 8 Chevaux attended the inauguration of a new volume of the American Legion's sunshine book on Saturday.

the clear sky made it extremely dangerous for them to show themselves without being shot by their own troops or those of the enemy.

The third night Mauduit succeeded in signaling to a French sentry, Cadoret, when attempting to follow his companion, slipped and fell back into the crater. He had to be helped out by Mauduit and then both crawled under German fire to their own trenches.

However, the members of this service were being paid for their work. They went into it of their own free will and accord and the doors of the recruiting stations had not been closed to them.

Should the merchant marine be given credit along with that of the navy, army and marines, the shipyard workers undoubtedly would be recognized as the backbone of the war effort.

If the bars are to be thrown down and part of that little glory that is the lot of the veteran is to be distributed among the members of the merchant marine, why should not the farmer be recognized for his efforts in the soil during the war period and why should not all who aided in the carrying on of the world struggle be classed alongside the man who for a financial consideration of a month bracketed his body to the hungry guns in the Argonne?
