

LOAN ASSOCIATION TO HOLD AUCTION

$15,000 Worth of Pledges to Be Sold Off.

OFFERINGS ARE VARIED

Poor Man's Bank to Get Rid of Securities Left Unredeemed

The super event of the winter auction season, not a card game, but the disposal of $15,000 worth of flotsam and jetsam jettisoned by domestic barques and individual craft in distress, will take place tomorrow at 233 Stark street.

For sheer downright interest it is doubtful if anything could compare with this year's sale. The Remedial Loan association is a "hock shop" in one word.

Just to give some idea of what sort of pledges will be sold tomorrow, herewith is an abbreviated list taken at random from the 500 or more articles on sale.

What takes these individual possessions may be hide or what remedies their sale may make, must be left to the imagination of the purchaser.

Why anyone would want to pawn a $20 gold piece might be a mystery to most of us, for why should you be broke if you have a $20 gold piece?

CRATER LAKE IMPROVED

SECRETARY PALL SAYS NEW ERA CONFRONTS RESORT.

Developments at Park Promise Adequate Facilities for All Tourists in Future.

THE OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, D. C., Dec. 9.—This year marks the beginning of a new era for Crater lake national park, with developments in progress that insure adequate facilities for the accommodation of visitors not only now but for the future.

A fleet of powerful new seven-passenger touring cars was placed in operation between the park and the gateway cities of Medford and Klamath Falls and service in all lines of activity engaged in by the public utility under its new management was high class in every respect.

Sentiment in Oregon is now generally favorable to the Diamond lake extension, but the usefulness of the region for park purposes is being impaired by the granting of summer-home sites for small business enterprises.

Mr. Craft visited a number of the company's general offices in New York, L. L. Craft, local manager of the Portland office until some other office in the district captures it by winning the present or some future contest.

License Applicants Slow. VANCOUVER, Wash., Dec. 9.—(Special)—Applications for 1923 automobile licenses are coming in more slowly than last year, according to the clerk in the office of the Clark county auditor.

Business Is Brisk. Business at this time of the year is brisk and the main problem with the association is the need for more capital. They have $175,000 lent now, such of this money having been borrowed from banks at 7 per cent interest, but more is needed.

ARTIST'S WORK SHOWN

Anthony Euwer's Water Colors of Mount Hood Alluring.

An artist of great versatility is indicated in the novel exhibit of generally meritorious work by Anthony Euwer, being held at the Multnomah hotel this week.

This local artist's serious work attracted most attention. While the entire exhibit of several hundred crayons, charcoals and water-colors is uniformly good, there are about a dozen outstanding water-colors.

Several of these are of Mount Hood, each with a different treatment, and all of them strikingly realistic portrayals of exalted glimpses of the great mountain.

WOMAN MAYOR POSSIBLE

REPUBLICANS IN CHICAGO DIVIDED ON MEN.

One Faction Considers Only Its Own Members; Other Seeks Independent Business Man.

(By Chicago Tribune Leased Wire.) CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—A woman for mayor of Chicago may be the solution of the problem confronting republican factions here, which are unable to agree on a candidate but which are united in their opposition to William Hale Thompson, present mayor.

With one faction of the party considering only its own members as possibilities and the other searching in vain for an independent business man as its candidate, the republican women have come forward with their own solution of the anti-Thompson majority problem.

The proposal originated with the Women's Roosevelt Republican club, in response to an invitation from Attorney-General Brundage to suggest a candidate for the mayoralty.

Mr. Brundage is reported to have had only one man in mind, but the club took a broader view of the subject. The job ahead, as they see it, is a municipal housecleaning, and for that task they propose a woman—Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen.

The proposal came as a surprise to me," said Mrs. Bowen tonight. "But important political leaders talked the matter over with me to-day and I have asked for a little time to consider it. I shall try to give them a decision tomorrow."

SOUTHERN OREGON PHYSICIAN LEAVES HERITAGE OF CHARITY

Dr. Ki Lane Miller, Who Died Recently in Roseburg, Beloved for Professional Philanthropy and Humanitarian Deeds.

BY W. A. PETTIT.

SALEM, Or., Dec. 9.—(Special)—Dr. Ki Lane Miller, who died recently in Roseburg, probably was one of the best known men in southern Oregon. He was a philanthropist of the old school. While he never sought the limelight through the endowment of public institutions, his life was given over to the work of a benefactor, and his charity knew no bounds.

As a physician Dr. Miller prized his profession highly, and any thought of financial reward was a secondary consideration. To the poor he was a true and steadfast friend, and no person, despite his poverty, was turned away because he had no money.

Dr. Miller had resided and practiced medicine in Douglas county for 26 years, and was preparing to answer a country call when he suddenly collapsed and fell to the floor. His death followed a few minutes later.

Dr. Miller was born in Utica, N. Y., March 21, 1854. He studied his profession in the University of Chicago and later attended Hahnemann medical college there. He afterward served as an intern physician in Bellevue hospital.

Dr. Miller later came west and located in Portland. In the year 1883 he was consulted by Tim Atterbury, pioneer of the Umpqua valley, who sought relief from a physical disability. His treatment by the physician pleased him to the extent that he invited Dr. Miller to locate in Douglas county. Dr. Miller accepted the invitation and later hung out his shingle in Roseburg.

As a bill collector Dr. Miller was a failure. The call from a distant stranger in the most tempestuous weather was as important to him as though the patient was of prominence and the skies were clear. There never was any hesitancy in repeating a visit when poverty and certainty of no compensation became known. It was this charitable and conscientious trend in his life work that helped to make him popular among his fellow men. It was with reluctance that he sought compensation, and his books show thousands of neglected accounts.

In the early days of mountain trails and impassable roads, the sturdy horse was to this pioneer physician his greatest assurance. It was in the saddle that Dr. Miller was at his best. So well were Dr. Miller's horses known along the country roads that even today their names are recalled by many of the older inhabitants.

Among his horses were "Hot Spur," "Duke" and "Big Ben." Old farmers recall many harrowing experiences in which the doctor was the sole participant. Knowing his trusty horse, Dr. Miller never faltered, and often in the dead of winter, when the streams were swollen to their banks and were made dangerous by driftwood, he drove his animal into the foaming currents and emerged on the opposite shore wet to the skin, but happy in the thought that he was not to disappoint a patient. In those days ferries and bridges in Douglas county were scarce, and transportation was had at its best.
