Encyclical Expresses Regret That Strife and Violence Have Rent Italy Recently.

Violence Is Regretted. The encyclical begins with expressions of regret for the strife and violence which until recently have rent Italy, the pontiff's own country and the seat of the chair of St. Peter. This situation, continues the document, seemed to threaten the very life of the country despite the efforts of the vatican to abate it.

Proceeding to enumerate the evils

Proceeding to enumerate the evils of the present, the pope says that mankind, the social classes and the various peoples have not attained a true peace after the terrors of war. He alludes to the public life of peoples as still surrounded by a deep fog of hatred and mutual differences.

fog of hatred and mutual differences and offenses, and mutual harm.

"In the sweet sanctuary of the family," the document goes on, "the sarm of dissolution has also penetrated, fostered by the war and the increased immorality, whence this germ is propagated to all individuals. We deplore the spread of morbid restlessness among the people of all ages and conditions, of insubordination and of unwillingness to labor.

The mease advantage might come to the cause of peace after so long and so profound an upheaval. But the reassembling of the ecumenical council at the vatican would be such a grave event that it is necessary to wait and pray, as did the plous leader of God's people, until God gives a clear sign of his wishes."

Lord Ignored by Masses.

Referring to "those too numerous groups and masses which, either al-being disliked and plotted against by small ones."

This situation, the encyclical points out, increases "the anxiety of the peoples at the threat of new and the whole world.

Between the lower and directing classes, the pontiff notes, there is mutual competition to dominate and therefore frequent strikes, with both sides contributing to the cause, together with revolutions and riots, reaction and repression have reigned among men, almost annihilated sentiments of mercy, charity and compassion, while the fictitious and for the pacification of Italy and compassion, while the fictitious peace written on paper has not yet reawakened those noble sentiments, and has embittered and almost the sentiments.

The encyclical denounces athelsm as the deepest cause of the evils afflicting the world, as it separates men from Christ, who said:

"Without me, ye can do nothing."

The document continues:

"The athelsis proclaim the necessity to have laws and governments."

social foundations.

"The atheists want God banished from the schools, which therefore would become incapable of preparing the elements of peace and order for families and for society."

Remedies Are Suggested. Going on to enumerate the remedies, the pontiff says the most urgent is pacification of the spirit so as to have more apparent peace and true and cordial peace which can only be the peace of Christ, who "We are all brethren," and also

"This is my commandment, that ye love one another as I have loved ROME. Dec. 23.—(By the Asso-ciated Press.)—Pope Pius is con-sidering the possibility of calling an and so fulfill the law of Christ."

sidering the possibility of calling an ecumenical council in Rome during 1925, the next jubilee year of the church, it was announced in the papal encyclical issued today.

A general meeting of the whole episcopacy in this center of Cathelicism, says the encyclical, would be most suitable to the jubilee year, whence immense advantage might accrue to the cause of peace after so long and so profound an upheaval. But the assembling of the ecumenical council at the vatican would be such a grave event that it is necessary to walt and pray as did the plous leader of God's elect people, "until God gives a clearer sign of his wishes."

Wielence is Regretted.

Bear ye one another's burdens and so fulfill the law of Christ."

In the peace of Christ, continues the papal document, respect for order and authority will return, but only the Cathelic church, the united and infailible holder and interpreter of this doctrine of Christ, has the capacity efficaciously to fight that materialism which has already accumulated so many ruins and to bring back to individuals, families and society the true holy Christian spirituality, as superior to the philosophical as revelation is superior to pure reason; the capacity to teach true democracy, instilling into the masses the spirit of true fraternity.

Christian Reign Urged.

"Therefore, by restoring Christian reign, we have done efficaciously the work for the present and future pacification of humanity—the work prepared for us with the almost di-vine instinct which Benedict XV admirably developed. These two programmes melt into one;

"Christ in Christ's kingdom."
Before such a vast labor, the encyclical continued, the part of the holy father would fail without the help of his faith in God and his episcopacy. Therefore, he was considering the possibility of a general meeting of the episcopacy in this center of Catholicism.

"The meeting," he continued, "would be almost suitable to the coming jubile year, whence im-mense advantage might come to insubordination and of unwillingness to labor.

Immodesty is Deplored.

"We deplore that modesty in
