BY A GARDEN GROWER

DESPITE the rush attendant upon the holiday season, evidently there were many interested in gardening who took sufficient time to send in designs for a border of plants, for every day several designs were received, some of them quite interesting.

With centuries of experience back of them, the English gardeners are well qualified in the arrangement of borders, and while it is a good plan to follow such books it must be remembered that here in Oregon we can grow some things which are not to be found in the average English garden, and as originally intended, the garden designer should, everyone should, in making up a design, remember some of the things which Oregon abounds in.

Most Expensive Meats Not Necessarily Best, Asserts Expert

GOOD cooking requires skill and intelligence. A man should be able to appreciate the food prepared for him and to himself in an emergency, says Mrs. Prentiss.

My retired gardener friend dropped in to see me a few days ago and the conversation turned to perennials, and in discussing them, we mentioned cornflowers, or blue bachelor buttons.

Answer—It is quite evident your living room is too warm for the way your geraniums are acting. There are only a few things which will do well in such a warm room.

Answer—Hollyhocks and foxgloves should be renewed every two years, although I have had by feeding satisfactory results up to four years.

Answer—The long shoots of the new location in the spring. Mildew attacks the vigor of rose bushes and you will notice that bushes with the most vigor are successful in resisting mildew.

Answer—You want to cultivate more and feed the plants. Cultures in which the sweet pea seeds are dipped before planting are also advisable and many florists use them.

Answer—The best way to keep the flowers back on the labels of the men's coats and it is noticed that when not in uniform his majesty always wears a flower, as does also the prince of Wales.
