WHAT BECOMES OF OLD WHEELST Once True and Stanch Friends Now Gone to Pieces.

Have you ever wondered what has become of the thousands of old solid tire wheels that were in such universal use before pneumatics revolutionized things? A reporter put the question to a dealer the other day.

"A few were converted into pneu-matics and cushions and are still on the streets," he said, "and some were taken by the dealers as part payment on new machines, and are still stowed away in their shops, there being no sale for solid tires. The secondhand dealers and repairers bought a great many of them up, dissected them, so to speak, and are now utilizing the parts in repair work. The balls, hubs, spokes, axles, bolts and nuts are all useful, and at the last the old frames and rims can be broken up and sold as scrap iron.

Some have gone to the country, and Josh Hayseed may be seen complacently pedaling down to the mill for a bag of corn. Machinists use them for making models, occasionally a pusheart will be seen mounted on two rusty old wheels. and even the boys on the street take the small wheels for the making of express wagons. And the balance, I suppose, you'll find stowed away in the cellars and wood sheds of their possessors. Once true and stanch friends, they are now of no use in the world. Abandoned to cobwebs and ashes, with no company but rats and mice, they dream away their few remaining days. Once again they or superseded by the people. Whatever few remaining days. Once again they stand in full suit of glittering nickel, admired, caressed and praised by all beholders. Again they are on the road, bearing their masters in safety down long rough hills and through sand and mud. Once again they see the smooth, hard track respond to the efforts of the riders as they throw every ounce of effort into the last sprint, and hear the shouts of the excited crowds as they whiz across the tape. Abandoned and alone, eating out their hearts with rust, they gradually drop to pieces, too proud of their vanished prestige to give one thought of envy to the modern pneumatic. "-Washington Star.

AN ANGEL IN DISGUISE.

A Burglar Conferred a Favor by Opening a Safe.

The proprietor of a large store on High street went to his place of business at an unusually early hour the other morning. In fact, the sun had not yet his safe.

He stood and watched him for some time, apparently deeply interested in the proceedings, when finally the burglar swung open the door of the safe with a delighted chuckle, but happening to turn he saw that he was discovered and became very much alarmed. He jumped up and was about to make his escape through a back window when the merchant called to him:

Remarkable Treatment of a Convict by Governor Hob Stewart.

Governor Bob Stewart, who was the shief executive of Missouri once and aft-

On the following day he sent to the warden of the prison orders to have that man brought to the executive mansion.

GUNMAKER OF ILION

JEFFERSON M. CLOUGH REFUSES A TEMPTING OFFER.

His Health Was Too Poor to Permit Attention to Business-A Great Sufferer for Many Years, But He Has Now Recovered.

From the Springfield, Mass., Union. There isn't a gun manufacturer in the United States who does not know Jefferson M. Clough, and why? Be cause he has been intimately associated all his life with the development of the two best American rifles, the Remington and Winchester. For years he was superintendent of the E. Remington & Sons' great factory at llion, N. Y. After leaving there he refused a tempting offer of the Chinese government to go to China to superintend their government factories-and accepted instead the superintendency of the Winchester-Arms Co., at New Haven, at a salary of $7,500 a year. It was after this long term of active labor as a business man that he found himself incapacitated for further service by the embargo which rheumatism had laid upon him and resigned his position more than two years ago, and returned to Belchertown, Mass., where he now lives and owns the Phelphs farm, a retired spot where he has five hundred acres of land.

Being a man of means he did not spare the cost and was treated by lead ing physicians and by baths at celebrated springs without receiving any benefit worth notice. During the summer of 1893 and the winter of 1894 Mr. Clough was confined to his house in Beichertown, being unable to rise from his bed without assistance, and suffer-ing continually with acute pains and with no taste or desire for food, nor was he able to obtain sufficient sleep. Early in the year 1894 Mr. Clough heard of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. He began taking these pills Belchertown, being unable to rise from Pale People. He began taking these pills man, Graling, Mich.

about the first of March, 1894, and continued to do so until the first part of September following. The first effect noticed was a better appetite and he began to note more ability to help himself off the bed and to be better generally. Last August (1894) he was able to go alone to his summer residence and farm of 168 acres on Grenadier island, among the Thousand islands, in the river St. Lawrence, where from the highest land of his farm he commands a view for thirteen miles down the river, and sixty of the Thousand islands can be seen.

Instead of being confined to his bed Mr. Clough is now and has been for some time, able to be about the farm to direct the men employed there, and he is thankful for what Dr. Williams Pink Pills have done for him.

These pills are manufatured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., and are sold only in boxes bearing the firm's trade mark and wrapper, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and are never sold in bulk. They may be had of all drug-gists or direct by mail from Dr. Wiilliams' Medicine Company.

Some of our clover lawyers are not clever at all when they are called upon to give evidence. They can hack and tear testimony to pieces, but when it devolves upon themselves to make statements from the witness stand they are not "in it." Proof of the truth of this assertion came out at a trial a day or two ago. One of our celebrated lawyers was called upon to testify. Instead of giving direct answers to his interrogator -as he himself would insist on having a witness do-his replies, or, rather, statements, were entirely foreign to the line of his examination. He was repeatedly cautioned against this style of giving testimony, but the warnings might have been leveled at the statue in the courtroom for all the results that accrued.-Boston Traveller.

SUPERIOR WORK-

MANSHIP ...

The Consumptive Man Failed to Appreci ate the Old Melody.

On North Clark street there is an undertaker whose face and bearing are pe-culiarly adapted to his business-tall, thin, with a countenance habitually thoughtful, almost melancholy, and in addition his shoulders stoop, which aids in giving him the air of a man who is burdened with his own or other people's sorrows. But behind the mournful exterior there lies a quiet humor, a little grewsome perhaps, but humor neverthe-

This undertaker boards at a hotel just across the street, and not long since as he walked into the office one evening about dinner time he observed leaning against the end of the desk a cadaverous looking man whom his experienced eyes informed him was rapidly approaching the last stages of consumption. As he passed the desk he remarked in an un-dertone to the clerk, "I'll get that fellow pretty soon." Having finished his dinner, he returned to the office, and seating himself in one of the chairs where he could watch the door of his establishment he fell into a dreamy mood. Perhaps it was memories of younger days made him sentimental. At all events he began humming some old ballads. The tune of the old song, "I'm Waiting, My Darling, For Thee, "came to his mind. He hummed it over again and again, trying to recall the words. A man seated in front of him seemed to be growing restless.

Suddenly the words came to him, and in a louder tone he sang the first measure, "I'm waiting, my darling, for thee." That was as far as he got. The man in front turned round—it was the consumptive—his bright eyes flashing as in husky but angry tones he said, "I can take a joke as well as any man, but when an undertaker sits behind me and sings 'I'm Waiting, My Darling, For Thee,' it's altogether too much." The undertaker arose slowly, and his face resamed its mournful expression as he walked ont of the door and toward his place of business. -Chicago Times Herald.

He wandered in the Harz and the Black forest, clad in wagoner's smock, mixing with the people-especially the miners-geologizing as he went, and making intellectual pilgrimages to Weimar and Wurtzburg. At Gottingen Ottfried Muller and Heeren, the historian, seem to have influenced him most. At Berlin, whither he next went, he studied under Schleiermacher and Neander, to the latter of whom he was much attracted, and whose teaching appears to have had much to do with broadening views that were of themselves already stretching far Leyond their originally restricted confines. Neander once startled his disciple by emarking, "You have some Jewish notions in Scotland with regard to the observance of the Lord's day." Blackie, who still considered that "Scottish theology and Christianity were convertible terms," was staggered by the assertion "that one of the most significant observances of Scottish religiousness was not Christian, but Jewish." But the fourth commandment was too deeply imbedded in Blackie for him to be swayed by such reasoning. He continned to spend his Sundays after the Scotch fashion, and, says he, "I never had cause to regret my conscientionsness -'Whatsoever is not of faith is sin.'" -Blackwood's Magazine.
