FOR A GREAT PARADE

VETERANS OF THE NORTH AND SOUTH WILL UNITE.

Scheme Has Been Received With Great Favor in the South—What General Moorman Says of It—Twenty-five Thousand Confederates Expected to Be in Line.

The movement for a reunion and parade of the civil war veterans has now assumed the form that insures success. It will be seen in New York next year on the Fourth of July.

Often of late years the veterans of the Confederate service have been called in to the gatherings of Union veterans. Often, too, at the south, those who once wore the blue, accepting hearty invitations, have mingled with those that wore the gray and perhaps have marched with them. The encampment of the Grand Army, the celebrations of Decoration day and the dedication of battle parks, like those at Gettysburg and Chickamauga, or other ceremonies connected with the war have witnessed such reunions.

But now, for the first time, the Union and Confederate survivors of the war are to come together for the sole purpose of celebrating themselves their fraternal union and the return of brotherhood to every part of our land.

It is because this is the special purpose of the projected gathering of the one hundred and twentieth year of the independence of these states that it has a significance which will give it a national importance as one of the great events of 1920 and indeed of our day.

The idea of a united veterans' parade has been received with great favor throughout the south. For the purpose of finding out how it would be accepted among the ex-Confederates, Colonel Garnett wrote some time ago to General George Moorman, adjutant general and chief of staff of the United Confederate Veterans, of which organization General John B. Gordon is commander in chief. General Moorman's reply, dated Nov. 23, was in part as follows:

"At the outset I will say that nothing I can say now can be regarded as official, as I would not undertake to express an opinion on a matter so important until I conferred with General Gordon, the commanding general, and Lieutenant Generals Cabell and Lee and other leaders. My personal opinion is that, while the old veterans do not care to be paraded for show or to show themselves, if it is the sentiment of the country that good can be accomplished by joining in this parade, I am satisfied that they would be willing to do anything that would assist in a more perfect reconciliation or would assist in adding prosperity to any section of the country.

"As is well known, they are thoroughly and intensely patriotic, and I doubt if any citizens of the republic would rally more quickly and zealously to the defense of the national honor than those old southern soldiers.

"Some time since it was announced that the United Confederate veterans were to be invited to hold their next reunion in New York city. This, I believe, was well received by the veterans and press of the south. The parade is a new feature, and in order to give you a definite answer I will confer at once with the commanding general and other leaders and veterans and will also place the matter before the press of the south, so as to ascertain the trend of opinion on this subject."

Colonel Garnett has not heard again from General Moorman; but, as has been said, he has seen that nearly all of the southern papers are heartily in favor of the movement. The next Confederate reunion will take place in Richmond. It was at first suggested to have the reunion on May 24, 25 and 26, but the prevailing sentiment in the south is to have it a month later. General Moorman is of the opinion that the best dates for the reunion are June 30 and July 1 and 2. If this is done, the veterans can come to New York from Richmond, in which case the number of them that will come will be largely increased.

Colonel Garnett is most enthusiastic over the movement and said that he would not be at all surprised to see 25,000 Confederate veterans in the parade.—New York Sun.

Zella Has Written Her Book.

Information is received that Zella Nicolaus, whose ruit against George J. Gould has brought her into notoriety, has blossomed forth as an authoress. She has nearly completed the manuscript of the work, which bears the lurid title, "A Glad and Sad Young Girl; or, The Child Adventurers." This purports to be a sketch of Zella's life. The young woman is expected to arrive at Wabash, Ind., in a few days, on a protracted visit to her father, Wesley Lytle, proprietor of a small grocery.—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

Dumas' Queer Will.

The will of the late Alexandre Dumas prohibits the publication or the performance of any posthumous works or plays which may be found in his manuscripts.

Fits Cured

From U.S. Journal of Medicine Prof. W. E. Peck, who makes a specialty of Epilepsy, has without doubt treated and cured more cases than any living physician; his success is standing proof of his ability. We have heard of cases of 20 years' standing cured by him. He publishes valuable work on this disease, which he sends with a large bottle of his absolute cure, free to any sufferer who may send their P. O. and Express address. We advise any one wishing a cure to address Prof. W. E. PECK, P. O., Cedar St., New York.

QUEEN AS ARBITRATOR.

Christian of Spain Chosen to Judge Between Nations.

The queen regent of Spain has been agreed upon by the government of Colombia, Ecuador and Peru to act as arbitrator in the delimitation of the boundaries of those countries.

The remarkable feature of the news in the above cablegram is that a queen is selected to be arbitrator.

It is the first time, it is asserted, that a woman has been chosen to settle an international dispute of this character and importance.

Maria Christina, queen regent of Spain, once dodged when asked to be an arbitrator. But then the dispute was between two women, the wife of the speaker of the cortes and the wife of the minister of justice, who both claimed the same seat in the cortes gallery.

The prime minister declined to settle so important a matter of etiquette, whereupon the husbands went with the case to the queen. She is short sighted, and raising her tortoise shell lorgnette to her eyes she surveyed the contestants for a time. Then she feigned illness and withdrew. A few days later she went into the country "for her health."

Since she has been regent Spain has had more real peace than in many years before. Her position has been most trying, but she has maintained it heroically and successfully. By winning sympathy she has accomplished what shrewd, powerful statesmen failed to do—maintained an appearance of order in one of the most restive countries of Europe.

Simple in her manners, domestic in her tastes, generous in her disposition, she has firmly installed herself in the affections of her people.

She is said to be the only sovereign who ever insisted the royal person in a balloon, insisting upon making the first ascent while a detachment of royal engineers were experimenting with military balloons at Madrid.

But she does everything differently from any other monarch. Slowly she has been relating the proverbially rigid etiquette of the Spanish court. Formerly it was impossible to smoke before the queen. At a court dinner some years ago she ordered cigars brought on. Everybody was astonished and nobody seemed inclined to take the first step. Finally the queen picked one out, lighted it, and said:

"Pass around the cigars, gentlemen."—New York World.

1 CENT PIECES.

The Great Demand For Them and the Reason of It.

Ever since August last there has been an exceedingly heavy demand on the United States treasury for 1 cent pieces. This demand is not confined to any one commercial center, but comes alike from all sections of the country. Treasury officials attribute it to the growing custom in dry goods establishments and other business houses of marking down prices from round figures, which practice naturally requires a good supply of pennies for making change. Prior to its adoption the 1 cent piece cut a very small figure in ordinary shopping transactions.

Although the demand has been general for the last two months, it has been conspicuously heavy of late in the case of Chicago and St. Louis, and the cause is advanced that this special demand is due to the availability of the 1 cent piece for the purchase of newspapers. The stock of pennies in the subscriptions at Chicago and St. Louis was nearly exhausted a week ago, and it was found necessary to call upon another mint for assistance in that respect.

The treasury department is doing its best to meet the demand, and for the last two months the mint at Philadelphia has kept three presses constantly in operation for the exclusive coinage of 1 cent pieces. The daily output has been 150,000 pieces, of the value of $1,500. The government apparently derives a profit of $1,200 a day on this coinage, the seigniorage being at the rate of nearly 80 per cent of the face value of the coins. This profit disappears, of course, when the coins are redeemed. It is estimated that there are 780,000,000 1 cent pieces outstanding.—Washington Star.

STRANGE TELEPATHY.

Miss Morris' Awful Premonition of Her Mother's Death.

While a fair was being held in the basement of St. Mary's Church of the Immaculate Conception, Williamsburg, N. Y., the other night, Mrs. Sarah Jane Morris, a widow, was suddenly taken ill and died a few moments later.

Her daughter Maggie was to have sung at the fair that evening, and Mrs. Morris had gone there to hear her. At the moment when her mother was taken ill Miss Morris was practicing in the academy adjoining the church.

Without knowing of the illness, Miss Morris suddenly stopped singing, and when her teacher asked her what the cause was she began to cry and said she was all choked up. Presently a messenger arrived and told Miss Morris that her mother had been taken ill. While Miss Morris and the sister were hurrying to the church they met another messenger, who told Miss Morris that her mother was dead.

No Canals on Mars.

At the regular monthly meeting of the section of astronomy and physics of the New York Academy of Sciences, Professors Rees and Jacoby and Charles Post read papers attacking the alleged discoveries of lines and canals on the planet Mars. The attacks were principally directed against Percival Lowell of Boston, who while at Flagstaff, A. T., claimed to have seen the same lines and canals discovered on the planet by Signor Schiaparelli in Italy. After the reading there was a general discussion, and the conclusion arrived at was that these people were romancers and not astronomers. The academy therefore discarded the theory of canals and lines on the planet Mars until such time as they could be seen more plainly, or at least by a greater number of persons.

Schlatter and His Copper Rod.

Francis Schlatter, "the healer," arrived at Trinidad, Colo., the other day. The alleged miracle worker carries a copper rod of curious shape that he claims was presented to him by the Father. Schlatter said the rod possesses magical powers, and he guards it with great care.

SECRET OUT AT LAST.

GENERAL JOHN A. LOGAN WAS "TOM ANDERSON."

Known That He Wrote "Uncle Daniel's Story of Tom Anderson and Twenty Great Battles"—Secret Well Kept—Public Men Attacked in the Book.

John A. Logan's secret is out at last. The disclosures to be made in the following article will create surprise, if not a sensation. In 1886 a book appeared from the press entitled "Uncle Daniel's Story of Tom Anderson and Twenty Great Battles." It was published anonymously "by an officer of the Union army."

The little work attracted a good many. Prominent public men were being attacked in its pages, their names being paraphrased. Some of them, conspicuously Senator Voorhees of Indiana, published interviews in self defense. All efforts to identify the author proved fruitless. The secret is now out. John A. Logan was the author, and Tom Anderson was himself.

General Logan wrote the book in 1884 and the following year. He began it while he was a candidate for vice president. When he appeared at the capital of Illinois, December, 1884, to take personal charge of his campaign for re-election to the senate, he was engaged putting the finishing touches to his manuscript. After midnight, when his rooms at the Leland hotel were cleared of visitors, General Logan sat down at his desk and wrote upon this story of the war.

Finally he called in a number of friends whose advice as to the literary merits of his effort he craved. With characteristic bluntness General Logan asked them to tell him frankly whether or not he was making a fool of himself by writing such a story. He especially wanted to know if he was too severe in his criticisms upon public men. General Logan pledged these friends to secrecy. He afterward required the same pledge from his publishers, and the secret has been well guarded from that day to this.

General Logan told those who were honored with his confidence that all the incidents used in his book were actual occurrences. He regarded the story more as an autobiography than anything else. The framework of the story was imaginary, but its substance was drawn from General Logan's own experience and observations. The inscription on the fly leaf was as follows:

"Uncle Daniel" is presented to the public. A truthful picture, based upon the events of the late war.

This volume is dedicated to the Union soldiers and their children.

The author, New York, Jan. 1, 1893.

In order to conceal his identity and to avoid pointed references to prominent men in military and civil life General Logan changed geographical and proper names to suit his purpose, although nearly always leaving a clew to his meaning. The story is told by Uncle Daniel after the close of the war, and this Uncle Daniel in real life was Daniel McCook, father of the famous family of McCook boys, who entered the army from Ohio.—Boston Journal.

Wedded While Hypnotized.

If the story told by Mrs. George Paltridge of Ann Arbor is true, George is a bold, bad Svengali. Mrs. Paltridge was formerly Miss Mary Lurfield, a popular young lady of that city. She was engaged to marry a student named Weir in the law department. In the bill for divorce she claims that on Sept. 9, 1895, Paltridge took her to Ypsilanti, hypnotized her and compelled her to marry him under the name of Mary French. Then, she alleges, he took her to Kalamazoo and maltreated her. Ten days later she returned to her father's home in Ann Arbor, and now seeks a divorce.—Chicago Times-Herald.

THE WORST OF IT.

If the best of life, as it is said to be, is but anticipation, the worst of it is surely worry and vexation. They are the plow and harrows that furrow the brow and cut deeply into the nerves. It is constant plowing of this kind that tears up the nerve tissues. The greater nerves, like the bigger roots, may resist for a time, but the ploughshare gets down to them. Worry brings all sorts of other ailments of a torn-up system and at last the sciatic nerve is reached, a disturbance to which in the form of sciatica is attended by excruciating pains. St. Jacobs Oil has cured the worst cases of men crippled by it. Use it and make sure of a prompt and permanent cure.

"Won't the young lady skip?" "Met a goin' to knock myself about like them blokes and spo' my 'at'! Not likely!"

Piso's Cure is the medicine to break up children's Coughs and Colds.—Mrs. M. G. BURR, Sprague, Wash., March 8, 1894.

Beeskeeping For Conviets.

The Arizona territorial prison management has embarked in a beeskeeping experiment, in which the prisoners will be employed. An apiary, with 25 stands of bees, has been installed, and it is expected the business will prove very profitable. A single hive at the prison is said to have last year produced 200 pounds of honey. It probably induces curious sensations and many vain longings in the prisoners to see the bees fly serenely and at will over the prison walls, and yet return of their own volition to their home within.
