The Cyclone Here.

Hon. J. H. Davis, of Texas, spoke Monday, at the Court House, to a crowded auditorium. After giving his opinions on party history he launched into a free silver speech and handled his subject in an able manner. Like many public speakers, Mr. Davis doubtless made errors, but taken all in all his address was a good one, and after the democratic national convention meets the national committee will probably have Mr. Davis on the stump advocating free silver. The speaker claimed to have been a lawyer, and says he was one of the framers of the Omaha platform. In this case, he must have had some misgivings as to his part in that work as he hardly alluded to anything but the free silver plank.

That Silver Mine.

There is considerable excitement in and around Forest Grove over the locating of a supposed silver mine. The prospects are reported as very good and the huge mountain will be thoroughly prospected. Any number are now out exploring the hills back of the Alexander farm and if their search shall be rewarded with plenty of silver Forest Grove will be strictly in it. With a great, big silver mine, Washington County's resources will be second to none in the world and even the most skeptical hope the report is not founded on idle expectations.

Gates Speaks.

Hon. H. V. Gates addressed the Republican Club Tuesday evening and the court house was obtained in order to accommodate the large audience. His first remarks were directed in contradiction to some of the statements made by Davis, the populist speaker. After making some pointed corrections the speaker switched to the last legislature and his arraignment of the Simon machine was such that no respectable republican who listened, should have anything but partisanship, left with which to pluck up courage to vote the republican ticket. Mr. Gates is a powerful talker and his description as to how the republican machine was manipulated was enough to convince any man, be he of politics or no, that a vote for republicanism was a vote against good government.

In his remarks on populism, Mr. Gates read statistics and quoted eminent foreign writers on the impracticability of government ownership of railroads, etc.

Mitchell's Pension Bill Passed.

WASHINGTON, May 13. The senate passed Mitchell's bill for pensioning the veterans of Indian wars. This bill will pension all who served in the early Indian wars in Washington and Oregon, their widows and dependent survivors. Hermann has circulated and secured signatures to a petition to the speaker, asking that he be recognized to call up a similar bill in the house on suspension day, or that a day be granted to consider the bill. Representatives of 17 states have signed the petition, and a request will now be made to secure consideration of Mitchell's bill, so that it may not have to go through conference.
