WILL GO FOR SILVER.

There is now no doubt but the democratic national convention will declare for free coinage of silver. This will bring the old party, which has received the abuse of the republican press for republican misgovernment rapidly to the front.

It is reported that the 1st District congressional election will be contested by the populists. If the ballots are again counted, they claim they will find evidence of fraud.

The republican party shows itself in a very severe strait. The St. Louis Hotels which will harbor the white delegates have refused to shelter the blacks.

A populist vote has a right to be counted. If there is any crooked work in this district, it should be exposed.

The Searchlight, a populist paper published at Cornelius, is after the "trimmers" in the populist party. It seems to set itself up as the Koran for populism, and perhaps it is right.

The old democratic party which republicans and populists have pronounced dead, bids fair to this fall prove a lively corpse.

SECRETARY Carlisle seems to have not made a success in his Kentucky monetary speeches. Kentucky sends a silver delegation to the Chicago convention.

A GUILTY CONSCIENCE.

The erudite editor of the Hatchet, in his last week's issue begs the question for one of his misdeeds which was nothing more nor less than a betrayal of those who should be by him classed as friends in a common principle.

"Put an X between these numbers and the names following them. Do not make any mark on the ballot nor scratch out any names."

Mr. Craig's explanation in part is: "A story was in circulation on election morning that the republican nominee for school superintendent was attempting to knife the rest of his ticket."

"The origin was that an organization had ordered slips printed giving a list of candidates who were being opposed because they were claimed to be in sympathy with its principles."

some several candidates were named. "A few of the members misunderstood the slip thinking it to be a ticket for them to vote. This was contrary to the principles of the order as it aims only to disseminate trustworthy information regarding the position of candidates on certain questions and to control no one's vote."

Just how the youthful conspirator, who took a nomination from a party which he afterward tried to betray, and to certain extent succeeded, can take the position that "a few of the members" understood the slips to direct a vote is beyond all conception. That he, himself, Mr. Craig, sent out the circulars, is very reasonable to presume, when it is known that he knew where to go and find them, when forced by colleagues.

A Republican's View of the Election

A prominent republican was asked this question the other day: "To what do you attribute the defeat of Mr. Tongue's vote from that of Hermann's of two years ago?" He replied, "There are, I think, several things. A large number of free silver republicans voted for Vanderburg, preferring free silver, from a populist standpoint, to a protective policy, and a very much larger number of democrats voted for Vanderburg on the same basis, because Mr. Myers made no canvass of the district and it appeared to them that there was something wrong. Again, persons who presumed an authority in the secret society of A. P. A. issued two circulars, one blacklisting Mr. Tongue and numerous other republican candidates; the other directing members to vote for Mr. Vanderburg and other populist candidates. These circulars, I am told, were not sanctioned by the members of the A. P. A. and were in violation to the principles of the order, yet they had the desired effect to a certain extent. The populists also industriously circulated reports that Mr. Tongue was a Junior Order member, and in this way he lost many votes. Again, the republicans were too positive of a large majority and allowed Mr. Tongue's canvass to go by default, while the populists made a tremendous fight all over the district; traded local candidates, everything in fact, for Vanderburg. In this manner he received many votes which were by no means populist. The secret silver societies also endorsed Mr. Vanderburg, and this threw many votes from Mr. Tongue. In this county alone, estimated at perhaps 150 votes. In this county Mr. Tongue must have lost to Mr. Vanderburg at least one hundred or more party votes which went to the populist nominee outside of the former reasons given. You see Mr. Tongue has practiced law here for 25 years and he is aggressive in his zeal to a client, he has made many enemies, having brought about an average of 100 suits in the various courts, annually. This one cause, at a reasonable estimate, gave Tongue 100 less and Vanderburg 100 more in the county vote. There is, of course, an increase in populism, the free silver people of all parties voting for Vanderburg, thinking that issue paramount to all others, being led to so think by Weaver, Davis et al. Mr. Coxy, who was an unwelcome intruder, did not have a sufficient canvass in the state to set forth clearly just what the true strictly populist paper currency idea is. The Oregonian also hurt Mr. Tongue in its extreme views and when I come to think of the measures and combats against him, I am rather inclined to be proud of his election, even if his plurality is less than a hundred."
