

General Fairchild's Parole.

General Fairchild brought with him a relic of the war the other day to show to the Loyal Legion, which was of great interest to them, as it would be to all old soldiers. It was a slip of paper a little yellowed and carefully framed, which is one of a limited number of individual paroles issued during the civil war. It is worded this way:

I, a prisoner of war captured near Gettysburg, do give my parole of honor not to take up arms against the Confederate States or to do any military duty whatever, or to give any information that may be prejudicial to the interests of the same until regular exchange. This parole is extended to the wounded in consideration of humanity, to save a painful and tedious march to the rear.

LUCIUS FAIRCHILD.
Colonel Second Wisconsin Volunteers.

"It was the second day of Gettysburg," said General Fairchild in speaking of it. "I had been wounded the day before and had just had an amputation, and I was not feeling exactly like taking up arms against the Confederate States or doing any military duty whatever." It was Captain Emack, Company B of the First Maryland volunteers, who came to me and asked me my name and rank and whether I would give parole. I would have given anything—signed anything—just to be left alone. A few other individual paroles were given that day and run off at the Gettysburg printing office. —Milwaukee Wisconsin.

Bicycles in Vienna.

How far government should go in caring for the safety of the individual is a nice question, about which there is much difference of opinion. A striking example of "paternalism" is presented by the regulations which govern bicycle riding in Vienna, as set forth by a correspondent of the New York Home Journal.

In Vienna all bicycle riders before obtaining permission to ride on the public streets must pass an official examination. They are required to ride between boards laid on the floor without touching the sides or edges of the boards. At the word of command they must be able to dismount either right left or backward. Until the rider passes this strict examination satisfactorily a license to ride on the public highway is refused.

That is all very well in its way. For a government to take such parental care of its people is regarded by many as evidence of a high state of civilization, but the fact is that, so far as New York is concerned, the most serious accidents, those causing loss of life, have nearly all befallen experienced riders. It is the experts who are killed—those who take great risks.

Gas from Sawdust.

There are several large lumber mills in Deerport, Canada, and the town is partially lighted by gas obtained from sawdust from them. The sawdust is charged in retorts which are heated by a wood fire. The gas from these retorts passes into a series of coils and thence into the purifiers, which are similar to those used for coal gas. Lime is used as a purifying agent. The plant is not a very large one, and it only turns out 540 meters of gas per day, for which about two tons of sawdust are required. A man and boy furnish all the labor needed at the works. The best quality of gas comes from resinous woods. One hundred kilograms of sawdust leave a residue of 20 kilograms of charcoal, and the gas in an ordinary burner gives an illumination of about 18 candle power.—Engineering and Mining Journal.

Only a Plagiarism.

"You stole this man's overcoat?" said the justice inquiringly.

"That's a rather hard way of putting it, judge," protested the playwright.

"How would you put it, then?" asked the justice.

"I think it would sound a little better if you said I plagiarized it."—Chicago Post.

Gov. Morton of New York says that he is not the man who put that $10,000 into the collection of the church at Middleboro, Mass.

Syrup of Figs

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the only remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore of great importance, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase Syrup of Figs, you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be recommended to the most skillful physician, but in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

It is now proposed that instead of vaccinating persons bitten, as in the Pasteur method, dogs should be inoculated with the virus of rabies, in the hope that they thereby be made proof against the usual effects of the bite of a mad dog—just as human subjects are vaccinated to make them proof against the ravages of small-pox. The result of researches on this matter undertaken by an eminent Frenchman will be awaited with interest.

The tourist might lose several days by delay and still reach London again within the forty days.

A New York man has received a patent for a magnetizing box for hair-pins. He does not clearly state the object of his invention in magnetizing the pins, but it is presumed that the charged pins are less liable to come out of the hair and be lost, as they are all attracted toward each other when in position. To remove one of them it must be done against the magnetic force which tends to keep it in place by attracting it to the remaining pins.

In all the civilized countries of the world thirteen is referred to as being somebody's "dozen." In America, Australia, Great Britain (present day), and several other lands that number is said to be a "baker's dozen." In Italy it is referred to as the "cobblers' dozen," there being a tradition that there was formerly a law which compelled cobblers to put twelve tacks or nails round the edge of a boot heel. Finally, when nails became cheap, a center nail was driven for "luck."

About seventeen years ago an old man named William Davidson died in Gainsboro, Tenn. A day or two ago relatives had the body taken up, intending to remove it to another place of interment. When the coffin was reached it was found to be so heavy that it required four strong men to lift it to the surface. Upon examination the body was found to be petrified. One arm was entirely gone, but the remaining portion of what was once a human body is now a light grayish colored stone, a perfect man in form, size and shape.

A practical young man in Brooklyn, by the name of Lombard, had a chance to take a good business position, only he could not fulfill the one requirement which demanded a married man for the place. Not entirely discouraged by this, he thought he would advertise for a wife and see what would come of it. He received letters from women of all sorts and conditions, until he had a total of 649 replies. In fact, many of these came in long after he had made his selection, and now he is married to a nice girl and has secured the job in addition.

The Yuma Indians are an ungallant lot. When a boy is born the papa is very happy, but if the babe is of the female persuasion the papa is sad and congratulations are not in order. Babies are not named until they begin to talk. Then if the infant says something strange or comical it is given that utterance as a name. The Yumas are very cruel to their aged relatives. It is not uncommon for children to drive away their feeble and aged parents and let the old people starve, simply because the young ones do not want to be bothered with them.

This country, to people who have not looked into the matter, does not figure as a large owner of floating property outside of war vessels and those attached to the revenue and lighthouse service, but a recent careful estimate shows that on one part of the Mississippi River the nation owns over 1,000 craft of different kinds. This is the stretch between New Orleans and Cairo, and the value of the vessels and their outfit for riprap revetment and levees work does not fall much below $6,000,000. When work is rushing there are at times 10,000 men employed on the vessels and in connection with the tasks assigned them.

A door bell for deaf-mutes is the invention of a deaf-mute. The ear of a deaf-mute, it is said, is not sensitive to the little vibrations of air that in the normal ear is recognized as sound, but it instantly perceives anything like a jar, or such a thing as the rumbling of a train. When any one goes to the house of a deaf-mute fitted with this new apparatus and pulls the knob, a heavy metal ball falls off its support to the floor. It makes a vibration and a jarring in the floor that is at once perceived by the sensitive nerves of the deaf-mute housewife, and answers all the purposes of the bell.

Professor Dewar in a lecture before the Royal Society in discussing the possibilities of synthetic chemistry which have been disclosed by the electric furnace, stated that from the carbides prepared in the electric furnace we can get benzine, and, therefore, all the aniline dyes, and even crude petroleum. Acetylene gas, another product of the electric furnace, combines directly with nitrogen in the presence of an electric discharge, and gives prussic acid, and from this we can readily get cyanides. In fact, there is no end to the sphere of usefulness of the electric furnace, which, he states, may even solve the problem of making nitrogenous manures.

A most remarkable pair of deer antlers is reported from Bellefonte, Pa. A local paper got itself into disrepute because it said "a deer with twenty-three prongs" had been killed in Center County. It had a photograph of the head taken, and was no longer called "fake." The antlers are 26 inches long, spread 16 inches, longest prong 11 inches and circumference of horn at the base 6 1/2 inches, and the head and horns weighed 15 pounds. The deer weighed 238 pounds. Three prongs five inches long came out at the base of each horn. Eleven points were on the left and twelve on the right antler. It was killed by Robert Mann. This deer differed greatly from one killed by Jeff Worden, of Wheelwright, Herkimer County, N. Y., a year ago. Worden's buck weighed 190 pounds and had a head and horns that weighed more than its body.

CAPT. BENSON'S STATEMENT

A REMARKABLE AND INTERESTING CAREER.

A Member of the First Kentucky Battery Who Was in Twenty-Seven Hard Fought Battles.

From the Capital Journal, Salem, Oregon.

Salem, Or., can boast of no better known private citizen than Captain William Benson. To the old residents, as well as to the school children, his figure is as familiar as that of Mt. Hood or the state capital.

Captain Benson, of the First Kentucky battery, detached from the 112th Illinois infantry, is now seventy-four years old, and has taken part in twenty-seven hard-fought battles, besides a great many interesting skirmishes. He is pensioned for injury in the breast, from concussion of a shell, and for a wound in the right shoulder, caused by leaping from a car while being taken as a prisoner from Andersonville to Pine Forest. For the past twenty years he has suffered almost continually from malaria and shortness of breath, and has been afflicted with rheumatism in the legs and shoulders to such an extent that he had not seen a well day in all that time. He was also afflicted with constipation and piles. Eighteen years ago Mr. Benson removed from Illinois to Oregon, on account of his failing health, and since the close of the war has not been able to support himself by manual labor, and has had almost constant medical attendance by physicians of all the different schools of practice. To see him now, tipping the scales at 210 pounds, enjoying regular health, his cheeks mantled with a fresh, rosy complexion, walking off proud and erect, with a fresh, firm, vigorous step for a man in his seventy-fourth year, is enough to make one believe in the possibility of Ponce de Leon's fabled Fountain of Youth.

Captain Benson is not only a hero of the Civil War, but a man worth considerable property. He says he would part willingly with his interest in all his earthly possessions rather than be placed back in the debilitated condition where he lingered for a score of years. "I suppose," said he, laughing, "that what you are after is an advertisement for Pink Pills, but I want to say that I am very glad to give you this testimonial, as I am convinced it will relieve a great deal of suffering, if it can become widely known. I am firmly convinced, after an experience of over fifty years with both patent medicines and physicians, that if every family could keep these Pink Pills in the house they would never need a doctor."

"I have paid out over $1,000 for doctoring with the best physicians at Salem, but not a cent for myself since a year and a half ago. It was then that I first heard of Pink Pills. I got the first box at a drug store, and had not much confidence in them when I began to take them. I took one box before I got much benefit, but by the middle of the second box the pain in my breast began to disappear, and the rheumatism in my shoulder went away. The shortness of breath was alleviated, and I began to sleep like an infant. For the first time in twenty years I realized the luxury of sound sleep, and my system began to recuperate. By the end of the third box it had taken away all my rheumatism and stiffness in the muscles and joints, and I began to feel as nimble as a boy, and could do as good a day's work as ever, but for my wounds. I enjoy the best health I ever enjoyed in my life. My natural weight increased from ten to twenty pounds. My flesh is solid and my skin is as clean and fresh as a baby's. I had tried every remedy under the sun for piles, but without relief. At last I was cured. Pink Pills have cured all these things, and I have not felt an indication of piles or rheumatism for eight months. People who see me now can not believe that I am the same man. My face looked drawn, my eyes were bloodshot, my skin was scurried, and I could not have had a worse appearance if I had undergone starvation on an arctic expedition. I can now eat whatever I have a relish for, and all I want of it, and it doesn't hurt me."

"I used to be constipated continually, and I have taken wheelbarrow loads of other pills, but never got perfect relief until I tried Pink Pills. I am now taking two pills a week, and sometimes I go without them for a month, and, as I said, I enjoy continuous good health. I have got rid of rheumatism and everything else. Pink Pills perform wonders. They go to work and fix up the kidneys and back and the whole system. Three days after first taking them you feel the effect all over. The worst trouble with me was, I had got so I could not remember anything. My mind was clouded. A month after I began taking Pink Pills I first began to notice my mind become clear and active, and my memory is perfectly restored, a happy change from the feeling of stupidity I had suffered. This medicine has fixed me up and made a new man of me. It is only the other day that Dr. Reynolds, Dean of the Salem Medical College, remarked to me that I was looking hale and hearty. I said Yes, and no thanks to my doctors. It is Pink Pills that have done it. He patted me on the back, and he had to admit what I said."

(Signed) Wm. Benson.
Salem, Oregon, Marion County.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 20th day of November, 1895.

MAYOR OF ST. CHARLES

One of the Thousands Whom Paine's Celery Compound Has Cured.

The following long and explicit letter from Hon. A. A. Bennett tells its own story. Read it:

Mayor's Office,
City of St. Charles, Ill., March 4, 1896.

Wells, Richardson & Co., Burlington, Vt.: Gentlemen—I take much pleasure in being able to add my mite to the great mass of testimony in praise of Paine's Celery Compound.

In November last I found myself much run down by overwork. For several weeks I had been obliged to work eighteen hours daily out of the twenty-four, and was in consequence in a state of physical and nervous exhaustion. At the suggestion of a friend I commenced the use of Paine's Celery Compound, with the result that my strength has steadily improved, and I find myself in far better health than I have known for years.

I believe also that it has enabled me to escape my periodical attack of rheumatism, as every season since that time with the advent of the cold, damp weather, I have suffered severely from that disease in a chronic form. So far this winter I have escaped without a single twinge of my old enemy. I very cheerfully recommend it to any one in similar need, in the full belief that it will be helpful in every case. Very sincerely yours, A. A. Bennett.

If we all led out-of-door lives, would be bed at sundown, and had no consuming cares nor hard work to bring down the health, there might not be the urgent necessity that now exists for taking this best of spring remedies—Paine's Celery Compound.

But as the great majority of lives are ordered—with too much work, too much anxiety too little sleep, by the time winter is over the drain on the nervous energy has become excessive, the nerves are in need of being strengthened, and the blood of being purified.

Paine's Celery Compound absolutely meets this great modern necessity. Paine's Celery Compound will bring back nerve strength and replace poor, thin, pale blood with a ruddy, health-making stream.

It is the one great practical remedy advocated by all physicians. It drives away that feeling of utter exhaustion that is so common in the spring, but no less dangerously significant because it is so common. It makes people well. It is a thousand times superior to all the ordinary sarsaparillas, nervines and tonics ever made.

Paine's Celery Compound is the one real spring remedy known today that never fails to benefit. Get Paine's Celery Compound, and only Paine's Celery Compound if you wish to be well.
