OPPOSITION INTERESTS.

The question of banking control of our national currency is one that has always suffered defeat after repeated trials at the bar of common usage. Bankers and brokers, as a rule, are interested in a certain line of property, — dollars or paper calling for dollars. It is but a business proposition, then, and only natural that they should seek to build up the values of dollars, even at the cost of debasement of all other classes of property and production, labor, etc. The general trend of argument set forth by the very rich is exemplified by these words, by Baron Rothschild, in a letter to the International monetary commission of 1892: "Wheat at 80 is a blessing as compared with wheat at 45," — equivalent to saying 30 cent wheat is a blessing as compared to 45 cent wheat. Here then, is the logical and businesslike deduction: Bankers who are great owners and holders of money, are constantly striving to beat up the values of the unit of money, regardless that their desire accomplished affords a cheapening for toil and the fruits of farm labor. The plain duty of the farmer, then, it would appear, lays in his considering these matters from a business standpoint, and to not allow a mere party organization to influence him. If the farmer will now but observe that party names do not move the moneyed men; they stand together for a fixed purpose, and that purpose to cheapen all the farmer owns or is producing, he will have learned the first great lesson of the age. Then will the producers protest against debasement of his annual harvest, hold up his head, and take hold of the reins of government.

RESULT OF GOOD PRICES.

As an evidence of what profitable prices for one stable production will accomplish in the way of making a whole commerce lively, we have only to observe conditions in those sections which are wheat producing and which therefore enjoyed the advantage of fair prices since October of 1896, up to the present time—this advanced price having been occasioned by foreign crop failure. The values received gave a profit; farmers had means to liquidate debt; to buy new machinery; to make repairs; and in doing this to incidentally give laborers work, which in turn created a firmer demand for other farm product. The result has been a universal betterment throughout the agricultural section, and in part in the manufacturing centres, not so marked there for the reason that manufacturers had a vast invoice on hand at the outset of the year, and this stock was first used. The good of living prices for one stable article has thus been exemplified and the object lesson is not lost to thinkers. The world's production of wheat is again growing to the normal and the price is slowly but surely receding to its old position before there was shortage—in other words, to use a republican expression, is "going to the Cleveland level." With normal we shall have everything cheap except money, but cheapness of everything but money is not unwelcome to those heavily interested in money— all other cheapness to them is profit. It appears, then, unwise to longer accept the ideas of those benefited by dear money, or cheap product. To prevent further debasement of commodity we must get back to the old proportion of money to our population, production, and deferred payments. Bimetalism will afford the relief. Otherwise, and to continue as we are, there must be a better era for the rich in money and depression for those with other products for sale. What we need, as a resourceful nation, is the old average of money to other things. As a matter of fact we cannot expect a banker congress to aid in this, as it is contrary to logic. The more debased is property, the more value is the dollar, and the richer are our credit corporations. Good prices generally, hurt the big dollar holders. Nothing at a good price except a dollar.

ENGLAND DOESN'T CARE.

England is already pretending to be objecting to the American tariff outlined for the Philippine Islands. While Britain is always fully alive to the commercial interests of her subjects, it must be remembered that she is controlled by her great creditor element, which, as a rule, care but little for tariff discrimination so long as they control the units of money, for by so doing, they get their payment in money which is representative of greater values, continually, so that American producers must each year, production being normal, give a little more of his export to get a unit of value. To control the United States monetary legislation is her first and over-riding desire—for therein, only can she get dollars of greater power for her outstanding enormous credits, when paid, but with each dollar so received, Britain can buy more for consumption by her millions of population, a very small per cent. of which tills the soil.

So, dear money, — and it would be of great benefit to have money buy still more as far as she is concerned — is worth much more to our English brothers than free ports for, by controlling the money, in the course of time open ports must come as a natural sequence. England, nationally, is pursuing a wise policy for her self interest, and her subjects who complain at our tariff policies are not alive to real conditions. By a statecraft nothing short of great wisdom, English financiers have successfully debased the commodities she must buy, and by an admirable diplomacy, causes a minority of American farmers to endorse the debasing process.

Stout & Martin vs. Yamhill County. Action for Money

30 WITNESSES ON THE CASE

It Took Sixteen Lawyers and a Jury to Decide the Case and then the Jury Failed to Agree.

The case attracting most attention at the court house this week was that of Stout & Martin vs. Yamhill county, an action for money. The facts out of which the action grew occurred in July 1894.

Before that time the county court of Yamhill county had made contracts with mill men to furnish what lumber was required for their immediate neighborhood for bridges and roads.

Stout & Martin owned a mill which was leased and operated by Dew & Son. In June or July 1894, a large lot of lumber was needed for a bridge across the Yamhill river which was in territory tributary to Stout & Martin's mill. The contract went to Dew & Son as the parties operating the mill. Dew & Son were not well equipped for delivering the product of the mill and the superintendent of the bridge who was one of the commissioners, had some fears touching his ability to fill the contract. Some talk was had with Stout & Martin about delivering the lumber, and as a matter of fact they did deliver it or at least a part. There was no entry of this side contract made in the records of the court. When the lumber was delivered to the parties presenting a claim to the court, and each threatened to bring an action against the county for the same. The court audited Dew & Son bill and paid it. Stout & Martin thereupon sued the county for the amount which was a few dollars over $1000. In Judge Burnett's court the plaintiff sought to introduce oral testimony to prove a contract. The county contended that only the records of the county could be used to prove such agreement. The court held in favor of the county.

An appeal was taken to the supreme court which reversed Judge Burnett's ruling, directing that the case be again tried and that parol evidence of the contract with Stout & Martin be admitted. Thereupon the case is brought here on a change of venue. A cloud of witnesses came down some for the plaintiffs and others for the county, thirty or more. The claim now principal and interest is over $1,400. The cause was two days in trying and the jury a few days out and a night and day came into court and reported that they could not agree and were discharged. It is understood that the jury stood 8 to 4 but which side had the 8 is not stated. The case will not be again tried.
