An Excellent Combination.

The pleasant method and beneficial effects of the well known remedy, Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. illustrate the value of obtaining the liquid laxative principles of plants known to be medicinally laxative and presenting them in the form most refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthening laxative, cleansing the system effectually, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers gently yet promptly and enabling one to overcome habitual constipation permanently. Its perfect freedom from every objectionable quality and substance, and its acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels, without weakening or irritating them, make it the ideal laxative.

In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinal qualities of the remedy are obtained from senna and other aromatic plants, by a method known to the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. only. In order to get its beneficial effects and to avoid imitations, please remember the full name of the Company printed on the front of every package.

RUDYARD KIPLING.

The breathless public interest displayed in the bulletins from the bedside of Rudyard Kipling during his recent severe illness in New York indicates the reverence and respect with which he is regarded by the world at large as a poet, an author and a man. A dozen years ago he was unknown.

RUDYARD KIPLING.

To-day he is universally placed at the head of the list of living writers. A broad-minded man of 32, he has attained the goal of fame, overtopping graybeards, who have been striving for years, at a single bound. In 1899 his first thin little volume of "Departmental Ditties" appeared. His "Barack Room Ballads" and his tales of India made him soon popular as a story-teller and versifier, showing, too, that as a globe-trotter he had become versed in the ways of many people.

Rudyard Kipling was born in Bombay, Dec. 30, 1865. His father, an Englishman of Dutch descent, was an artist. Kipling's childhood was spent near to the wild beasts of the jungle. Later he was educated at a college in England. At 16 he returned to Lahore, India, and began working as a reporter on a newspaper. Meantime he studied the soldier, the civilian, the native. About these the writer wrote some charming fictions. At 22 he issued his first book. By 1890 he was regarded in London as a literary man. The following year he collaborated with Walter Bagester on a book, and through him became acquainted with Carolyn Balestier, granddaughter of a prominent New Yorker. He married her, and settled near Brattleboro, Vt.

KIPLING'S HOME, BRATTLEBORO, VT.

Here Kipling lived for three years, founding a story on his neighbors, who rather resented it. He also quarreled with his brother-in-law, and finally packed up his belongings and returned to England. It was upon arriving in New York from an ocean voyage that he contracted the cold that led to his serious illness.

Kipling is not a favorite with all readers. A great many do not understand his humor. Women as a rule do not enjoy his writings. His boldness and subtleties are mainly masculine. He wrote one great poem, "The Recessional," and this will probably live as long as England lives. It is a prayer, an admonition:

"Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget, lest we forget."
His latest effort in this line is his masterpiece on expansion: "Take Up the White Man's Burden."

Perhaps no one writer receives as large a price for his work as Kipling. For eight short stories he has received nearly $10,000. Payment from other countries nearly doubles this sum. In addition to this he receives royalties, which swell his aggregate yearly income to about $40,000. His illness has boomed his books, and people who scarcely heard of the poet before are now reading his works. "Plain Tales from the Hills" is perhaps the most popular of his writings at present.

The poem, "The Widow at Windsor," is one of the best Kipling has written in the spirit of proud glorying in Britain's extent. In it he says:

Walk wide o' the widow at Windsor,
For 'at' o' creation she owns;
We've bought her the same, with the sword an' the flame,
And we've sailed it down with our bones.

Take 'old o' the wings o' the mornin',
An' 'round the earth till you're dead,
But you won't get away from the tune that they play,
To the bloomin' old rag over 'ead.

As the poet of imperialism, "The White Man's Burden" gives him the most typical expression. The most quoted lines are these:

Take up the white man's burden—
Send forth the best ye breed—
Go build ye sons to exile
To serve your captives' need;

The ports ye shall not enter,
The roads ye shall not tread,
Go make them with your living
And mark them with your dead.

The poet makes no secret of his methods of work. He says: "Do you know I cannot write unless I hum a tune? I get inspiration from fine old melodies. Tom Moore, you know, hunted up all the old Irish melodies he could and then wrote lines to fit them. I do not do that, but I take up, for example, 'The Wearing of the Green,' and I hum it over and over, and the spirit moves me to write. I do not depend entirely upon Irish melodies, but I must say they are my favorites."

In appearance Kipling is not at all distinguished. While a dyed-in-the-wool Tory, he still seems to have a genuine love for the green hills of Vermont. His home at Brattleboro he built after his own ideas. It resembles an Indian bungalow. He is reserved and modest, and refuses to be lionized. He does not encourage society in any way, and is much devoted to his family. Taken all in all, he is a sensible, practical, all-around literary man, who appreciates the commercial value of his writings, and who, maturing early, feels that in this changeable era of the world popularity is of fleeting duration, and that work will bring its reward only as it is thorough and conscientious.

ENOCH T. CARSON

Was the Highest Authority on Freemasonry in America.

Enoch T. Carson, whose death at Cincinnati is of special interest to Masons over all the country, was without doubt the highest authority on Freemasonry in America, if not in the world. Mr. Carson was a man of means and could afford the expensive luxury of book collecting. For fifty-four years he was busy gathering works on Masonry and secret societies generally, and the result is that he leaves a library that will be useful to all students. The late book collector exercised the rarest judgment and skill in his work, and his great knowledge of Masonic literature enabled him to pick up volumes for a mere song, the values of which were very high in the markets where the rarity of such works was known. Writers on Freemasonry from all parts of the country drew on Mr. Carson's books for information they could scarce get in any other collection. To such men his library door stood ever open. The work he did in amassing these books was pursued in spite of a life that was busy with official duties and private enterprises, but his supreme devotion to the craft of which he was a distinguished member made the task a labor of love. Cincinnati possesses many interesting objects of art, but none more interesting than the collection of the dead Free Mason.

How Fortunes Are Made.

How to make money—that is the question all men are asking. Indeed, the question of money-making has attracted more attention than its merits deserve. We are not created simply to make money. We are created for the purpose of being developed, cultured and useful. Nevertheless it is proper to ask how can money be made? How have great fortunes been made?

It has been said that ex-Governor Flower, of New York State, made his start in life when earning $900 a year salary. At this wages he laid up $1,000 in four or five years. He established habits of frugality, economy, thrift and industry, which made his success simply a matter of time. He could not do otherwise than succeed with such habits as he formed in early life. If you, young man, want to know how to get a start in the world, how to make your fortune, be assured that you must begin as ex-Governor Flower began, with little, making much of that little, depriving yourself of luxuries, and possibly comforts, in order that you may get a start, and after having once secured a start you push along with vigor in the same economic, industrious course.

Nearly all of the wealthy men of the world began life as poor boys. There was only one way for these poor boys to rise, and that was by economy, industry and thrift.

Revenge generally seeks refuge in a pretty small head.

Considerable interest has been manifested in Oregon and Washington as regards the future operations of the life-saving service, says a Washington dispatch. Many residents of both states, learning that a new lighthouse district on the North Pacific was contemplated, have written to the treasury department, seeking appointments under the new district. As a matter of fact, such a district is as yet merely a matter of conjecture, having been suggested several times and recommended to congress. If a new district is created, it is the opinion of the lighthouse board that it will be by a provision of the next sundry civil bill, which, at the earliest cannot pass before June or July, 1900.

Powder Car Stolen Up.
A powder car, belonging to a Great Northern freight train, blew up at Everett, Wash., killing one tramp and wounding two others who were riding in an adjoining car. In addition to the powder car, two cars, containing mixed freight, were burned. The injured men gave their names as Sylvester Fagan and Charles Flebotte. The name of the dead man was unknown to them. It is thought that the cars in which the tramps were riding were set on fire by them and the heat exploded the powder car.

German Colonists.
Henry C. Nichol, of Hamburg, Germany, has arrived in Portland. He has come to Oregon as a representative of a colony of 200 or 300 persons who want to come to America. He says it will take a tract of land containing at least 10,000 acres. The colony will risk Mr. Nichol's judgment, and come as soon as he notifies the members of having what he wants in the way of lands.

STRONG STATEMENTS.

Three Women Relieved of Female Troubles by Mrs. Pinkham.

From Mrs. A. W. SMITH, 59 Summer St., Hallowell, Me.:
"For several years I suffered with various diseases peculiar to my sex. Was troubled with a burning sensation across the small of my back, that all-gone feeling, was despondent, fretful and discouraged; the least exertion tired me. I tried several doctors but received little benefit. At last I decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. The effect of the first bottle was magical. Those symptoms of weakness that I was afflicted with, vanished like vapor before the sun. I cannot speak too highly of your valuable remedy. It is truly a boon to woman."

From Mrs. MELISSA PHILLIPS, Lexington, Ind., to Mrs. Pinkham:
"Before I began taking your medicine I had suffered for two years with that dread feeling, headache, backache, no appetite, and a run-down condition of the system. I could not walk across the room. I have taken four bottles of the Vegetable Compound, one box of Liver Pills and used one package of Sanative Wash, and now feel like a new woman, and am able to do my work."

From Mrs. MOLLIE E. HERREL, Powell Station, Tenn.:
"For three years I suffered with such weakness of the back, I could not perform my household duties. I also had falling of the womb, terrible bearing-down pains and headache. I have taken two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and feel like a new woman. I recommend your medicine to every woman I know."

TURNED DOWN.

"I come to ask you for your daughter," said the young man who has nothing but what he expects to earn, "but I can't express myself."
"Express yourself!" sneered the plutocratic parent. "You don't even need to go by freight. Walking is expeditious enough in this case. Don't forget your hat!"—Detroit Free Press.

AN EXCELLENT COMBINATION.

A Successful Enterprise That Is Based on Merit.

A few remedies which have attained to world-wide fame, as truly beneficial in effect and giving satisfaction to millions of people everywhere, are the products of the knowledge of the most eminent physicians, and presented in the form most acceptable to the human system by the skill of the world's great chemists; and one of the most successful examples is the Syrup of Figs manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. Unlike a host of imitations and cheap substitutes, Syrup of Figs is permanently beneficial in its effects, and therefore lives and promotes good health, while inferior preparations are being cast aside and forgotten. In olden times if a remedy gave temporary relief to individuals here and there, it was thought good; but now-a-days a laxative remedy must give satisfaction to all. If you have never used Syrup of Figs, give it a trial, and you will be pleased with it, and will recommend it to your friends or to any who suffer from constipation, or from over-feeding, or from colds, headaches, biliousness, or other ills resulting from an inactive condition of the kidneys, liver and bowels.

In the process of manufacturing the pleasant family laxative made by the California Fig Syrup Co., and named Syrup of Figs, figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste; but the medicinal properties of the remedy are obtained from an excellent combination of plants known to be medicinally laxative and to act most beneficially. As the true and original remedy, named Syrup of Figs, is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, a knowledge of that fact will assist in avoiding the worthless imitations manufactured by other parties. The Company has selected for years past the leading publications of the United States through which to inform the public of the merits of its remedy, and among them this paper is included, as will be seen by reference to its advertising columns.

Weaving by Photography.

A scene memorable in the annals of the weaving industry was witnessed at the Vienna Technical Art museum recently. Herr Jan Scepapanik, the famous young inventor, presented Emperor Francis Joseph with the first web produced by means of his new photographic process. The silk-woven Gobelin is made from a picture by Henry Raeburn. It is about two square meters in size and gives an allegorical representation of homage to the emperor. The work contains 200,000,000 crossings, 120 silk threads filling one centimeter. Two hundred square meters of pasteboard cards would have been necessary to produce this web according to the present method, and designers would have required many years to carry out the work. Now the designer is abolished, and the work was done in five hours. The emperor was struck with the marvelous plasticity and delicacy of the picture, which nobody would believe to be woven. Herr Scepapanik demonstrated the process at the emperor's desire, and his majesty accepted the gift and congratulated the inventor.—London Chronicle.
