THE COMING CONTEST

The presidential campaign will soon be here, and the issues are already made up. The republican managers will overcome the desire of the rank and file of the party as to leaving the greenbacks alone, and will most likely declare for their retirement and ask that the banks be allowed to control the paper money of the land. They will declare for "expansion," a large standing army, and generally, on all great public questions, follow the lead of the great European powers as to questions economic. Inasmuch as the dictators of the party are those of reputed wealth of the dollar brand, it is only proper to expect that they will declare for the debasement of all other things than money. It is a business proposition and they simply desire their own best success, full well knowing that further debasement of product means a contrary—the betterment of money, so far as purchasing power is concerned.

On the other hand, those who supported Bryan in 1896 will write a platform in 1900 which will stand out against product cheapening; they will advocate the crushing of the money trust; and they will mean it; they will advocate the principles of the greatest good for the greatest number, and in so doing will get the earnest support of every producer who votes from a business standpoint. There will be the contest—one memorable and remarkable. It will be a contest of every conceivable trust as against the rights of the people. The money spent in the 1896 campaign by the monopolies will be more freely given to carry the next election. If the coming fight shall not lead the producers to victory then they shall be forever beaten, and we shall follow the governmental precepts laid down by those against whom we fought in 1896, and of those countries from which millions have come to us seeking liberty and industry untroubled. If it were voted as a matter of principle and business the people would win, but as the trusts, combined, control our great cities, monopoly and money may win the day.

GIVE THE PEOPLE POWER.

The right of our people to make needed laws is by our very form of our government denied them. Our law makers are not representative in the sense of giving us that for which we vote. The senate has become a reconnoitre for millionaire politicians while our house of representatives has passed every measure advocated by the corporate wealth of the country. All this will be rectified in time and this time shall come when our people can vote laws into existence instead of mere politicians who would not encumber office were it not for the Charybdis, and shall be taken under the domination of an oligarchy, brutal and overwhelming, with a vast army and navy at its beck and call, while the citizen who criticizes and asks for a change shall be branded as a traitorous agitator who should be removed. This is surely coming unless our nation shall awaken to its danger and quit the selection of representatives who represent interests entirely antagonistic to productive welfare.

The right of the people to effect legislation will be a national safeguard and not as a sword of Damocles over the heads of those who would pervert our democratic institutions into a trustocracy which strikes at the very foundation of human liberty.

We shall soon hear the silliest of all, "over production," echoing throughout the land. As the price of our stable products trend slowly downward, those chaps who yelled, "the administration did it," when wheat went up (by virtue of short crops the world over) will soon be snivelling and laying the averages between product and money on the broad shoulders of the Almighty! How careful, however, are they to advocate a system wherein there is no possible chance for "overproduction" of money.

GIVE THEM A CHANCE.

Woman is the better half of the civilized partnership between the sexes, and that she is not permitted to vote, while we extend that right to the Ethiopian, is a travesty on our boasted civilization and progress. She is the mother of the voter; the instructor of the voter; the shaper of our generations and the greatest factor in and of our moral institutions. She pays her world's tax without a murmur, and though a life infinitely more fraught with pain than that of man, made so by a wise or unwise provision of nature, bears up under sorrows with fortitude that is at once the admiration and wonder of the more callous sex. Give our women a right to their franchise. It is useless to say, "Many would not vote." This may be true, but many would, vote and our legislative systems would be the better for it. A great and familiar argument against woman suffrage is that "their sphere is not such as will make them good voters." It might as well be said their sphere is such that they cannot be good citizens!

Women have been our greatest civilizers. They have done more to uplift than all the sabres and musketry the world has ever known. They entered the wilds of America, hand in hand with our pioneer forefathers and wherever they went have left their impress.

There is no person in the world more qualified to have a voice in governmental affairs than our mothers and sisters.

In Cromwell's time the "man with the hoe" fought against the oppression of British tyranny; it was a question of the farmer and the middle classes and the laborer against the aristocracy. In 1776 our forefathers, "men with hoes," fought against this same aristocracy of government, and thank God, the men with the hoes prevailed. Our world's governments are today being lined up for perpetuity of systems which declare for debasement of all that the hoe produces, and, while Markham has given us an aggravated depiction of the status of the tiller of the soil, yet his is no more the radical extreme than the antithesis obtained in the assertions by his caustic critics, who aver the man with the hoe isn't plundered by his fellows who wield not the implement of labor.

Discretion is the better part of valor. Uncle Sam wisely overlooks Canada in his desire for new subjects.

The first American and British Alliance met with a severe setback the other day, in Samoa. The Samoans were simply giving the British and American forces a little taste of that celebrated imperialism.

Carter Harrison, at the Milwaukee Jeffersonian banquet, declared for the Chicago platform. This gives the lie direct to those Don Quixotes who have been charging a silver defeat at Chicago. But Carter did not win on the silver issue—he won Chicago's majority because he was first in the minds of the taxpayers.

The Oregonian's religious editor recently said: "Our ancestors, hairy and naked, swung from the trees of the African forests, etc." The Argus has, so far, refrained from asking this commentator whether he refers to the ancestors of himself, or whether he has intended the "our" to mean all mankind.

The fact is, there were no human beings hanging out of Portland this time last year. They have discontinued because there was nothing in it and the freight now comes by rail.

"Empire" in Law and Morals. (Senator Hoar.)

1. The affirmation that under the constitution of the U. S., the acquisition of territory or of other property is not a constitutional end, and that while the making of a new state and providing national defense are constitutional ends, so that we may acquire and hold territory for those purposes the governing of subject people is not a constitutional end, and that there is therefore no constitutional warrant for acquiring and holding territory for that purpose.

2. That to leave our own country to stand on foreign soil, is in violation of the warnings of our fathers and of the farwell address of Washington.

3. That there was never a tropical colony governed with any tolerable success without a system of contract labor.

4. The trade advantages of the Philippine Islands, if there be any, must be opened alike to all the world, and that our share of them will never begin to pay the cost of subjugating them by war or holding them in subjugation in peace.

5. That the military occupation of these tropical regions must be kept up at an immense cost, both to the soul and the bodies of our soldiers.

6. That the declaration as to Cuba by the president and by congress applies with stronger force to the case of the Philippine Islands.

7. That Aguinaldo and his followers, before we began to make war upon them had conquered their own territory and independence from Spain with the exception of a single city, and were getting ready to establish a free constitution.

8. That while they are fighting for freedom and independence and the doctrines of our fathers, we are fighting for the principle that one people may control and govern another in spite of its resistance and against its will.

9. That the language and argument of those who object to this war are without change, the language and argument of Chatham, of Fox, of Burke, of Barr, of Camden and of the English and American Whigs, and that the language and argument of those who support it is the language and argument of Geo. II, of Lord North, of Mansfield, of Wedderburn, of Johnson and of the English and American Tories.

The question the American people are now considering and with which they are about to deal is not a question of a day or of a year or of an administration, or of a century.

We have not as yet taken the irrevocable step; before it is taken let the voice of the whole people be heard.
