FEAR THE RESULTS.

The moneycrats are growing alarmed at the wholesale support of trusts given by the administration. This is not because they are not in favor of trust support, but for the reason they are in fear of popular sentiment and a reversal of the electoral vote which in 1896 went to McKinley. Their alarm is perfectly justifiable and not without cause, for they know the regenerated democracy will not tolerate trust dictation, and they further know that the democracy, as now aligned, is not of the Cleveland-Olney brand. Any one who has studied this republican form of government and realizes its general intelligence, can well remember what Lincoln once said about not being able "to fool all of the people all of the time." His phrases and denunciation of trusts by the trusts' benefactors will not readily catch voters, and there were enough close states in 1896 that a scattered change in 1900 of less than fifty thousand votes would change the electoral vote to a man and platform, who, in 1896, won the respect and ballots of over half our voting Caucasians.

SAD CASE OF VENESIA.

That so able a great journal as the Oregonian should be afflicted with monetary venesia is a peculiarly unbecoming advertisement for the great Northwest. Probably pathology has no more sad case than that witnessed in real ability descending to the vulgar and hoydenish in the discussion of great public questions. Any theory, or advocacy of practice, of that which would tend to keep product from debasement as measured in legal tender, at once and ever provokes from this able and powerful journal a tirade really unworthy of its columns. It will have debased product, or no product. Again, were the Oregonian contented in attacking the theory, its venesia would not be so apparent, and its influence might be more to be feared. As it is, it constantly seeks to besmear its economic opponents with the slime of ridicule and epithet. And yet, perhaps this is the best argument the gold cause can advance. There is so little sense in the proposed base product idea, that our contemporaries must use something—even if it be stench.

EARLY DEFENDER DEAD.

In Col. T. R. Cornelius was the typical pioneer. He had an interest in the upbuilding of Oregon and he never shirked his duty as his rights test up guided him. While he was provincial in some things and over radical in others, when it came to a question of public safety, and it meant physical sacrifice to guard it, he was ever ready to not only do his part, but more than did it. Col. Cornelius entered into the Indian troubles with all the strength of a vigorous and hearty manhood and he certainly earned laurels of gratitude from those who read and understood Oregon's full history. His early sacrifices have never been recognized by the government; nor have they been recognized by Oregon as they should. Col. Cornelius, aside from purely partisan lines, should have held Oregon's gubernatorial chair as a graceful tribute to his honors in the field when strong men were needed. Another early defender is gone. He rests well, and where he would rest, above all other places.

LET MOLLY VOTE.

Every man who thinks twice on subject, and with a view of getting from an unprejudiced mind, will decide to cast a vote for woman suffrage. Equal suffrage is pre-eminently right. This old idea that woman's creation was a secondary proposition, and that she was created an inferior being, should become obsolete, and really should have died out with the first advance in civilization. Woman is our greatest civilizing influence, and to reason that a little fresh air is deleterious to womanhood at large. Supposing that politicians are unscrupulous, let the woman know it; let her correct it by instilling into her children the same instincts and conceptions of public affairs as does she instill as relative to affairs of moral nature. Give your civilizer an equal suffrage right with the burly black buck and the bar room bum; she will make a purer use of her franchise.

IS THIS UNPREJUDICED?

Milwaukee, June 27.—Brigadier-General Charles King, who returned from the Philippines, a short time ago, in a letter to the Milwaukee Journal, published today, states that the capability of the Filipinos for self-government cannot be doubted, and it given a fair start, they could look out for themselves infinitely better than our people imagine. He says they rank far higher than the Cubans or the uneducated negroes, to whom the United States has given the right of suffrage.—Dispatch in Tuesday's Oregonian.

The foregoing comes from a man who has been on Manila soil. It is opinion based on closest observation. It implies a great deal and reiterates what THE ARGUS has often reiterated—that the Philippine islands on Luzon were capable of governing themselves, and that McKinley's original idea of allowing them to have their own government was just, humane and statesmanlike. Had Mr. McKinley staid with his Methodist sense of justice, we would now have been sending cargo after cargo of our products to Luzon instead of taxing our people to ship ammunition to subjugate what we deem as "rebels." The fire and the sword are the implements, however, which best serve army contractors and politicians, for it means profit to the layman wing in administrative confidence, and pap to the red tape army officials in line of promotion. So, by Mr. McKinley's change of front, Brother "Ab" is strictly in business, while all the little 2x4 papers in the country who have a postoffice craving to satisfy, applaud and yell "traitor" to all who would have given the Filipinos their liberty.

Very likely the statement of King is unprejudiced, owing as it does from an army man. If it be a case of sour stomach, it nevertheless corroborates what the best British authority has said of the Filipino people.

THE Oregon volunteers will soon be again on American soil. But a few weeks more and we will grasp with a cordial welcome the hands of our Hillsboro boys who went to the Orient and helped to make world's history. THE ARGUS is glad the administration has sent them home. This country does not want, and should not expect volunteers for either police duty or conquest in a war of aggression. The regular army man—the man who fights for a mere stipend—is he who should carry on the Manila campaign as it now is being directed. Those who desire to fight for money care but little for any flag, so long as the paymaster comes on his regular trip. Volunteers are not made in this mold. They fight for honor and the preservation of the nation and the maintenance of its integrity, not for conquest and official positions for lickspittles and tuft hunters. So, then, THE ARGUS repeats, it is glad our boys are coming home.

ROOSEVELT is playing hard for the republican nomination for the 1900 campaign. Col. Roosevelt has always been a very player to the public galleries for political plunder and he will be a strong candidate because of his Cuban war record. He would most likely prove a much stronger candidate than Mr. McKinley, in many respects. Luckily for Mr. McKinley, he came to Mr. Platt's aid in the New York mayoralty fight of '97, throwing the influence of the administration in favor of the boss' candidate, and the combined effort of McKinley's friends and Mr. Platt's friends will doubtless shelve the presidential aspirations of the ambitious young Rough Rider, with ease.

al a sorrow as that of Mrs. Nellie Wehrung. Young, beautiful, and gifted with that sympathy so rare in its charity, Mrs. Wehrung was beloved by all who came within touch of her presence. With a beautiful home and all that which goes to make life a great happiness, her demise was one of those inconceivable events of life which passeth understanding.

Col. Henry Waterson still wants the democratic party to look to him for counsel and guidance. Why doesn't Col. Henry put up his gilded "gold" ticket and tell about its beauties of economics? Why does he still rant about a man who has more brain, a better temper, better statesmanship, and a following over fifty times as large as the gallant Bourbon?

According to a late number of the Law Review, a corporation has been formed in New York with a capital stock of $100,000, to advertise the merits of Delaware as a trust incubator. Delaware, it seems, has entered the field with corporation statutes that are a big improvement over those of New Jersey, and this New York corporation proposes to let the fact be known. It will be remembered that Delaware and New Jersey are now considered safely in the republican column.
