THE COMMERCIAL PRESS.

The power of the great commercial press is not at all over estimated by the powers which are today conducting our national government. Right or wrong, that which receives the endorsement of the great commercialist press of the land goes through, whether or not it outrages decency. It is well known that a ra concert of these big journals can overcome great obstacles, and in concert they always work. If there is a national scandal to cover or condone, this concert can do it; this they do in a business and matter of fact way, as they control the associated press, the news agency of the country. This results in a prac- When our governor wrote east that tical censorship which is boundless money was not used in Oregon poliin its operations. Public express- tics, perhaps he was measuring his president and his cabinet and the administrationists in Congress are a unit for British success, and their sympathy is of no uncertain tenor. Already the fellows who represent American officialdom are trying to throw odium on the ex-consul, and they are being aided by the cuckoo press, everywhere. The atter indifference with which our administration views this serious charge is proof enough that Britain has them, bag and baggage. The apathy of the American officials in this matter is proof enough that the nation is, so far as our officials are concerned, in an alliance that has no Dear Money means Debased Property, sympathy with our Americans who and Profitless American Product.
