

SEPARATOR AND GRAIN BURN NORTH OF TOWN

Hess Loses Machine at Close of Season.

CHAS. HENRY LOSES HIS GRAIN.

Several Hundred Bushels Went up in Smoke. Hard Luck.

Charles Henry, who has been farming the Bailey farm beyond Loui Manning's place and to the north of Hillsboro, had the misfortune to lose a part of his grain crop the other day by fire catching from the threshing machine. The machine was running when all at once fire was discovered. The separator, owned by the Hess brothers, was a complete loss, as well as the balance of the grain which was being threshed. Henry had raised the best crop taken off the place for a number of years and his bad luck is to be deplored. The separator was more or less ancient although it is said to have done excellent work. The farm commands three hundred dollars cash rental and if Henry gets his money back he will do well. The loss of grain runs up into two or three hundred bushels. The fire was the result of either a spark from the engine or a hot box on the machine.

City Recorder H. T. Bagley, Tuesday entertained one Mr. Fulton, an aged veteran, who was charged with being abusive in the residence district the other day while under the influence of the juice which pays so much revenue to your Uncle Samuel. It cost him eight dollars for the little pleasures and he went on his way rejoicing. Fulton is all right until he "feels his oats" and then he gets a little bit gay and has a powerful bad tongue in his head. Fulton's name is Adam, thus being named after the first man, and also after the man that invented the first steamboat—and that's surely worth $8.

Earl Hanson, of North Yakima, is in the county jail, having been brought out here on a warrant charging him with having stolen horses up in the upper country and shipping them to Sherwood. He belongs to an influential family in the Yakima country and claims that he and his chums are not guilty of the offense charged. He is rather a bright looking young man and does not at all look like a man who would assist in stealing three carloads of cayuses.

J. W. Bailey, Dairy and Food Commissioner, was in town the first of the week. He says that Oregon is no where near making the butter that is needed for home consumption. He says that the immigration of that last year is largely responsible for this and that the shortage is now more noticeable because the Elgin people are not shipping in as much as they once did.

The way for a town to keep a good artist is to patronize him. The worth of his work is judged by its tone and finish. Pope is turning out work that photographers in large cities can not beat and you will be convinced if you but look at his exhibits on the corner of Main and Second. He makes you a picture that will suit. If one sitting is not sufficient take another. Pope does not slight his patrons. Call and see what his studio can do.

COUNCIL GRANTS THE RAILWAY FRANCHISE

Will Run for a Term of Twenty-five Years.

DOWN MAIN AND SECOND STREETS

Promoters Asked for Forty Year Term. Cut Down Fifteen Years.

The city council met Tuesday eve, and considered the advisability of granting a franchise to the electric line people. The petition asked for a line down Main and Second streets for a term of 40 years. Dr. Bailey stated that he would veto any franchise which gave more than 25 years. So the articles were amended. The council desired to take further time, and adjournment followed until last evening. Under the terms of the grant the railway must be completed within two years or the franchise will be void. The line is to enter the town near S.venth street, running down the side of Main until it reaches Third, when it will take the center to Second, down the center of Second until it reaches the Hillsboro House, when it will take the side of the street. The company is to repair the street where the line runs, and for a distance of one foot outside of the rails.

No sidetracks may be laid on Main and Second in the business section of the town. The road can not charge to exceed five cents per passenger in the city limits. The road is to haul any material that the city may need to repair streets at actual cost of transportation, and the service shall be, at least, a car each way every two hours. Failure to comply with all the provisions of the franchise will make it null and void. The ordinance is short and comprehensive, and is to the point.
