0.0.0.0.0.0.0.0.0.0.0.0.0.0 It was while the brig Dalsy, Captain Josiah Barnes, master, lay at Port au Prince, after loading up, that a redheaded girl came aboard to secure passage to Boston. She had gone to the Ishand from Salem two years before with an American family as governess, but had become tired of it and desired to get back to the United States. The wife of Captain Barnes was aboard, and his crew numbered seven men. He had also taken as passengers two American sea captains whose vessels had been shipwrecked among the West Indian islands. If it hadn't been that one of the captains offered to surrender his stateroom to the redheaded girl and sleep in the main cabin on a shakedown she could not have taken passage by the Daisy. Indeed it was a close shave at best, as Mrs. Barnes, who was over and said to her husband:

fat, forty and plain faced, looked her

"Yes; she's got red hair," replied the captain, "but I don't see nothin' giddy about her. She looks as sober as any gal with any colored hair, and that passage money will come in handy for us. She'll probably be seasick clear up to Boston light and not eat $2 worth of

"Well, we'll take her," said Mrs. Barnes, with a doubtful shake of the head, "but you see if it don't result in a tornado, waterspout or calamity of some kind. Redheaded girls are born

A day later the Dalsy weighed anchor and set out on her return voyage, and the attitude of the redheaded girl as she moved about was so demure that the captain almost felt like patting her on the head and speaking words of sympathy and encouragement. The brig sailed at 9 o'clock in the morning. and the girl passenger did not make her appearance at the table at noon. Mrs. Barnes' motherly heart forced her services, but at the same time she was secretly glad to find the redheaded girl in her berth and apparently suffering the pangs of seasickness.

She was thinking of making a cup of tea with ber own hands and adding a slice of dry toast when the redheaded girl suddenly appeared in the cabin fully dressed and looking as pert and saucy as if the old brig rested in a cornfield instead of climbing up and down watery hills of exceeding steep-exclaimed the captain's wife after a long stare.

"Of course not," was the reply. "And you ain't goin' to be?"
"I hope not. Where are the gentlemen? They must have missed me. I'm so glad I'm the only girl aboard, as I will have them all to myself. Do you know if both captains are married

"Yes, ma'am; I know what they are and each one is the father of at least "leven children," replied Mrs. Barnes, with great emphasis, being determined to crush the redheaded girl at the very

"Well, they can firt with me for a few days just the same," said the girl as she surveyed herself in the cracked mirror hanging over the table.

At supper the redheaded girl made herself thoroughly "at home." She laughed and chatted and made eyes, and Mrs. Barnes could not help but see that her own captain, as well as the two others, was more than interested. She grew red in the face, and her blood ed, and as soon as the meal was finsahed and the girl had gone on deck, escorted by the two other captains, she drew herself up before her liege lord with folded arms and demanded: Josiah Barnes of P.ovidence, what

"I dunno," he absently replied.
"Don't lie to me, sir! I told you that redheaded girl was an impudent minx, and my words have come true. She even made eyes at you across the ta-ble." "I-I didn't see 'em if she did."

"You saw 'em and almost blushed. siah Barnes, that girl has got to stop or she'll get a piece of my mind that will make her red hair curl. I won't stand by and see no such chit make fools of three or four men who ought to Inow better."

The captain's advice was for her to so slow, and he was glad to get on deck and out of reach of her tongue. That was the beginning of things. That pight, the redheaded girl walked the solution from any cause;

From cows within a period of sixty days before, or six days after calving.

deck with a captain on each side of

The next day the "minx" got a plece of Mrs. Barnes' mind. It was a liberal piece and ought to have brought her to her knees, but it didn't. On the contrary, after she got fairly started the redheaded girl got off three words to the other's one and read her a long and severe lecture on minding her own business. In this lecture were included a few observations on false teeth and gray hairs, and when the battle was over it was the motherly Mrs. Barnes who didn't know where she was at. She tried to get even by calling her husband into the cabin and telling him what was what and that she'd take good care to see that everybody in Providence heard of it, but his reply

"It's all nonsense in your sayin' that I've fallen in love with that girl, but I'm tellin' you that resheaded women are just the nicest things out, and I don't care who hears me say so."

Inside of four days the redheaded girl was flirting with everything and everybody clear down to the cook, and of course jealousy crept in. The three captains buried sarcustic remarks at each other, and the mate and carpenter had a glare in their eyes and a feeling of revenge in their breasts. Barnes tried again and again to stem the tide, but in vain, and at length she took refuge in tears and predictions.

The Daisy sailed on and on, and the flirtations went on and on, and as the brig crept up the coast Mrs. Barnes never be reached. The redheaded girl had brought disorganization from cabin to bowsprit and almost taken command.

"You jest wait, Josiah Barnes-you jest wait for Cape Cod," the captain's wife grimly repeated a dozen times a day, and Cape Cod was finally reached Then a gale sprang up, the big brig lost her foremast, and, though the redheaded girl sought her stateroom and the crew was left free to battle with the storm, the craft was driven asbore and became a total wreck. Crew and passengers were saved, and in due time Captain Barnes appeared at the office of the owners in Boston to tell how it all happened. He was listened to until he had finished, and then the head of the firm handed him a letter that had been received the day before. It was from Martha, and it read:

I want to report that the Dalsy is ashore on Cape Cod and a total wreck, and I want to report that a redheaded gal and a lot of fool men are the cause of it.

Write Notes to Themselves, "Actors are great hands to write 'mash' notes to themselves," said a stage manager. "The leading young men, you see the heroes that marry the beautiful girls—are supposed to at-tract to the theater myriads of young women. They draw big pay on this secount; their friends talk seriously of the powerful, almost bypnotic, influences that they exert on romantic females. This power is the stock in trade of the actor who travels on his beauty instead of on his art, and he must always have tangible proof of it So if the young women don't come up each mail with a bunch of authentic mash notes, he sees to it anyway that be gets mash notes all right. He times them so that they reach the theater during rehearsal. The manager every afternoon brings them to him-a half dozen pink and blue and cream envelopes, smelling of violet and orris. He takes them with a guffaw, reads pretends to be amused at their stilly contents, but the minute the actor's back is turned the murmur passes back and forth: 'They're fakes. He wrote them himself. He spends two hours a day writing himself mash notes.' To tell the truth, this actor gets a number of authentic mash notes, but nobody believes it. It is thought that every note is a fake."-Washington Post.

"Barber, Barber, Shave a Pig." In pig killing there is no more exciting moment than that of removing the bristles from the carcass. With such haste does the operation sometimes have to be accomplished that in a certain country family it was begun one day with a pair of fine brass candle sticks before the usual utensils could be found.

When Salmon P. Chase was at Kenyou college, which was then presided over by his uncle, Bishop Philander Chase, he encountered a similar difficulty and cut the knot with unbesitating decision. The bishop and most of the elders went away one morning, and young Salmon was ordered to kill and dress a pig while they were gone. He found no great trouble in catching and slaughtering a fat young "porker," and for scalding. This process should have loosened the bristles, but either the water was too hot or the pig was kept soaking too ong; at any rate, when the boy began scraping the bristles not one of them ould be started. In pig killing phrase, they were "set." What could be do? Then he bethought him of his cousin's razors, a fine new pair, just suited to the use of their owner, a spruce young elergyman. He pilfered them and shaved the pig from toe to snout.-Youth's

Just a Moment, Please!

Why not let The Royal Tailors of Chicago make your fall suit or overcoat? When delivery is made, there will also be delivered a direct guaranty covering the quality of goods, the style and fit of the garments and the workmanship.

And that guaranty is worth one hundred cents on the dollar to you. It means that you are to be satisfied with the garments when you get themsatisfied that they were made expressly for you, to your own measure—and it means that they will wear well, give you good service, and hold their shape as rightly-tailored garments should.

The cost of Royal tailoring is so low that you might almost think price was the first consideration. But it isn't. Value is first. Value-giving is at the basis of The Royal Tailors' success. The best for the money always—that is the Royal idea.

Customers of The Reyal Tailors are invited to guess how many people will attend the World's Fair at St. Louis. They offer prises concising of ten Automobiles, to be given to the ten persons making the closest guesses. The cost of these Automobiles is $13,700. There are also eight cash prizes of $100 each, making the total value of the prises $14,500. For every dellar you gay an an order for Reyal tailoring you can make one guess; on a $15 suit you can make fifteen guesses, and on a $20 suit you can make twenty guesses, and so on—a guess for every dellar.

The Royal Tailors carry a million-dollar stock of woolenssomething sure to please everybody; suits and overcoats for men and boys-ladies' man-tailored skirts and coats-all made strictly to measure at an actual proven cash saving of fully twenty-five per cent.
