FAILS TO SEIZE HILLSBORO CREAM

Washington Official Pulls in Horns

PROBABLY INSPIRED BY JEALOUSY

Hillsboro Oregon Condensed Milk Company Fights McDonald

State Food Commissioner E. A. McDonald, of Seattle, sent out unsigned circulars lately, stating that he had declared the Oregon Grape brand of condensed cream, of Hillsboro, an adulterated product.

The commissioner gave as his grounds for the circular that the cream contained annatto, a coloring that is a preparation made from a South American tree, and it is used by all the cheese factories and by many dairies in the country.

The law compels the official to seize adulterated product, but McDonald fails to do so. This makes it look as though his actions are inspired by a business jealousy, as the Hillsboro people have been shipping carload after carload of cream into the Washington market, which was thought to be secure for other condensers.

On the contrary, the Hillsboro condenser has cream on sale everywhere in Seattle and Sound cities, and the commissioner is not seizing it—and most likely will not.

Dr. Tamiesie is reliable, and his offer of $1,000 reward is open to the food commissioner.

Dr. Tamiesie is quoted as follows in a Seattle daily:

"The fact is," says Dr. Tamiesie, "that all dairy products are slightly colored, not for adulteration, and not with any deleterious effect upon the goods, but simply to make them more pleasing to the eye, and this is done because the customers insist on having it so."

According to the same authority annatto, which is a preparation made from a tropical tree grown in South America, and is the reddish pulp surrounding the seeds in the fruit of Bixa Orellana.

The Seattle press is wondering why the commissioner selects this one article for exclusion and permits others to go unmolested; and why the officer does not seize the cream—but he does nothing but bluff.

LOW RATES TO CALIFORNIA

The Triennial Conclave Knights Templar will be held at San Francisco, September 5th to 9th, and the Sovereign Grand Lodge I. O. O. F. will be held at same point September 19th to 25th. For these occasions the Southern Pacific Co. will place in effect the extremely low rate of one and one third fare for the round trip, not to exceed $25.00, the rate from Portland. Those who are planning a trip to California should take note of these rates.

Miss Flossie Weathered has a position with E. L. McCormick's music house.

Miss Eva Froome, after a two months visit with Miss Elizabeth Milne, has returned to her home in Pendleton.

The two year old son of Mr and Mrs Thos Epplert, of Galea Creek, died last Friday, from an attack of coughing.

Pacific University starts next Wednesday, for its Fall and Winter terms. Miss Wilma Waggener, of this city, is on the corps of musical instructors.

Farmers on the rural route started out of Gaston this morning, are crying for boxes. The new line comes down into the Dilley section, and takes in both Patton and Scoggin valleys.

The real estate transfers show that T. W. Thompson has purchased the Gaston mill property, recently sold to J. A. McCune at sheriff's sale. Mr. Thompson now has an interest in two mills, the one at Gaston, and the new mill at Hood River, which will be in operation, January 1.

Michael O'Neal, who resided near Forest Grove, on the Greenville road, for many years, and who recently moved to Gervais, died at that place placed, yesterday, advanced in years. His remains will be brought back to Verboort for interment, in the family burial ground. A wife and several grown children survive him.

J. T. Johnson, of South Tualatin, who some time ago was placed under bonds by Justice H. T. Bagley, to keep the peace until circuit court meets, was in Portland the first of the week, his wife having left on Monday. Johnson went down to see if she had applied to any of the Aid Societies of that city and intimated that he was ready to do the right thing if the woman returned home. Johnson has been hauling milk for the Forest Grove condenser for many months, and is always in the hurricane deck of his wagon.

Unless Hillsboro puts in a sewer system soon many property holders will be forced to put in a septic tank arrangement, similar to that put in by Cashier Shute, of the Shute Bank. It is reported that many of the big brick property owners are contemplating adding these tanks to their buildings, and it would be a fine thing from a sanitary standpoint.

D. B. Reasoner telephoned down from the North Fork of the Tualatin, Tuesday, that the Haines' dam and power house were surrounded by fire, and that the crew had been working day and night, completely shut out from the outside world, for several days. Fires have been raging everywhere over the country in the timber districts, and it will take a good rain to stop the losses.

John Masters, of this city, while working with a saw one day this week, badly lacerated the left arm, between the elbow and wrist. With the aid of Loui Manning Mr. Masters tied up the wounded member, which was bleeding profusely owing to the fact that an artery was cut, until he could reach medical assistance. Dr. S. T. Linklater dressed the wound and John will give his arm an enforced rest for a week or such a matter.

The Argus commences the opening chapters of "Hearts Courageous," in this week's issue. This story of the Revolutionary War, blended with a romance that is elevating, is just fresh from the press, and it has taken the popular fancy by storm. Perhaps no novel of recent years has so quickly found a warm place in the hearts of the reading public as has Hearts Courageous. It is the story of our forefathers, and the story of the real founding of the republic. Do not fail to read the opening chapters.

The Hillsboro public schools will open next Monday, and it is expected that there will be an increase over the entry at the beginning of last fall's term. The corps of teachers that will have charge, are: Ninth room, Supt. B. W. Barnes; Eighth room, T. P. Kendall; Seventh room, Miss Anna Chalmers; Sixth room, Miss Lucy Humphreys; Fifth room, Miss Grace Robinson, of Clackamas; Fourth room, Miss Jennie Beamish; Third room, Miss Maud Wilson; Second room, Miss Rose Wilcox; primary, Mrs. C. Pittenger.

Supt. M. C. Case, of the Washington county schools, has set his dates for the teachers' annual institute, to be held in Hillsboro, on October 27, 28 and 29. He has secured the following instructors for the session, and they will give the teachers a fine set of classes: Hon J H Ackerman, Supt. of Public Instruction, Salem; F. G. Adams, principal of the Mt. Tabor schools, Portland; W. G. Hartranft, Supt. of the King county, Wash., schools, Seattle, Wash.; Chas A. Rice, of the Training Department, State Normal, Monmouth, Oregon.

Hearts Courageous

BY HALLIE ERMINE RIVES

This matchless romance of colonial days will be printed

IN OUR COLUMNS

Not only one of the best historical novels of the period of the American Revolution, but one of the most delightful love stories.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

Chicago Inter-Ocean

The story of "Hearts Courageous" is laid largely in Virginia, but the scene is in Philadelphia in 1776. And here Miss Rives springs another sensation. The plot hinges upon the signing of the Declaration of Independence. The conventional story of its signing, we are told, is not the real one. There was little smooth sailing about it. It had a desperate struggle for existence, thanks to some of our good patriots who have gone down into history with reverential regard. And it was finally saved from oblivion by a most dramatic occurrence on July 4th in Independence Hall—a scene which forms the climax of the plot.

Washington Post

But, pleasing as style is to the critic, the average reader demands something else, such as plot and atmosphere. There is an abundance of both. The plot, which is most clever one, details the adventures of a young French nobleman who was sent by Louis XVI to ascertain the temper of the colonies, and to find out whether it would be well for France to hold out offers of assistance in case rebellion should be determined on.

Buffalo Courier

The character chief in interest in the story is one that modern fiction has passed wholly by. It is Patrick Henry—the buckskin lawyer without a brief; the magnetic, electric, impassioned, far seeing orator and patriot, who, beneath his buckwoods exterior, conceals a soul of fire and sweetness and tenderness.

New York Journal

Miss Rives has told us a story filled with such charm, such life, such sustained dramatic interest that it reaches the utmost height achieved by any writer of the historical romance.

Philadelphia Public Ledger

In most thrilling scenes are laid in the old State House, while the final debate on the Declaration of Independence is in progress. Its local color here is convincingly true.
