

PIONEER WOMAN COMMITS SUICIDE

Ellen Jackson Takes Strychnine Yesterday Noon.

DIED WITHIN A FEW MINUTES.

Was Dependent Over 'Inacial Reverses and Sought Sleep.

Ellen Jackson Ford, a well known pioneer woman, residing on First and Washington street, this city, for many years, took strychnine yesterday, during the noon hour, and in a few minutes was a corpse. Deceased had suffered many financial reverses within the last few years, and brooded considerably over this. About noon Mrs. Ford went to the Delta drug store and bought a nickel's worth of strychnine, supposedly for rats and mice, as she had frequently bought it for this purpose in the past. She returned home and must have taken the poison immediately, for in a few minutes she fell and her little daughter notified the neighbors, who, in turn, called for a physician. Dr. Tamiesie responded, but found the woman was dead upon his arrival. The doctor saw that there was evidence of strychnine poison, and when Coroner Brown was notified, he stated that the woman had purchased five cents worth of poison, just at the noon hour.

Coroner Brown impaneled the following jury: Dr. A. B. Bailey, L. A. Long, E. C. Luce, S. T. Bousler, C. F. Hayes, and W. H. Ringle.

Chas. Larkin swore that Mrs. Ford called at the Pharmacy just before dinner and called for some strychnine, saying she wanted to kill cats that were bothering chickens. Upon being told they were out of the drug, she left the store. Coroner Brown was then sworn by Justice Bagley and testified that deceased came into The Delta and asked for strychnine, stating that she wanted to poison cats which had killed some of her chickens, and ordered 5 cents worth. She also asked Mr. Brown if that much would kill three cats, and he had replied in the affirmative. She also asked if it would kill three people, and he had told her that it might, but that it would surely kill one person. Mr. Brown not thinking that her remarks were significant. She paid for the poison and signed the register as required by law, and departed.

Dr. Tamiesie testified that he arrived after death, but that from what witnesses told him of her actions before death, he believed she had taken strychnine. Mrs. Southworth told how she had been called to the Ford home by Ford's little daughter, who said her mother was dying. She told of the woman's convulsions, and how her hands clenched.

Mrs. Kirkwood, once a professional nurse, also testified as to how the dead woman had drawn the muscles of her face, and had spasmodically moved her feet, and that her hands were tightly clenched. Miss Arah Hoyt, a sister of this witness, testified to about the same thing. The little step daughter testified that the dead woman had eaten but little breakfast, and had eaten no dinner; that she appeared to talk all right; that she did not stumble when she went to bed, and told the child she was going to die, and bade her good-bye. She said her mother and father had talked in the yard for a long time in the forenoon; that her father was not home when the wife died, but was sent for, afterward.

The jury brought in the following verdict:

"We, the undersigned jurors, called and duly sworn, to inquire when, where and by what means the said Mrs. Ford came to her death, and to give a true verdict thereon according to the evidence offered and after hearing the testimony introduced, and after due deliberation thereon find that the name of the deceased is Mrs. A. J. Ford; that she died at her residence at Hillsboro, Washington County, Oregon, on Sept. 14, 1904, about the hour of one o'clock p. m., from the effects of strychnine poisoning, said strychnine being administered by herself, with suicidal intent."

Deceased was a native of Maine, and came to Oregon in the early day, her first husband's name being Moore. In 1859 she was married to W. R. Jackson, a pioneer who was at one time worth thousands of dollars, but who lost his wealth through paying surety notes. Jackson died some time in 1903, and last winter the widow was married to A. J. Ford, who survives her.

The funeral will take place Friday afternoon, at 2:00 o'clock, from the Christian church, and interment will be in the Masonic cemetery.

Two big wagon loads of large filling passed through town Tuesday, for drainage purposes on the highway near the Alec Gordon farm, beyond Glencoe.

The drug store and house of Druggie's Men were burned at four o'clock Wednesday morning, in the little town of Gaston, the loss being in the neighborhood of about $1000, with an insurance that no where near covers the loss. Mr. Menefee thinks the fire was occasioned by a smoldering spark in one of the chimney flues. By the time the blaze was discovered the flames were out of control. This was the only drug store that Gaston has, and there are those who think that some one bitter toward the druggist might have set the buildings afire. Mr. Menefee is a young man and has a family, and was just getting a start in life, and the loss is keenly felt by him.

The Carstens Bros. sawmill of Manning, keeps constantly on hand a fine lot of lumber, cut from the finest of timber. Send them a list of your lumber if you are going to build, and get their figures on the estimate.—Carstens Bros., Manning, Ore. Both phones.

Mr. A. D. Dougan, and Mrs. Seth Noble, of Plankinton, South Dakota, were in Washington county, last week, guests of C. F. Jones, of near Banks. Mr. Jesse took them to many points of interest in this section, taking them to the big condensers, the hop ranches, and many of the fine farms, and they are delighted with this part of the west. They admired the fine farm buildings and the general appearance of thrift. They may later locate in Oregon. Mr. Noble is very wealthy, and has several fine farms in the Dakota country, besides being in the lumber and coal business.

GASTON BLACKSMITH AGAIN IN CUSTODY

Brought to County Jail by His Bondsman.

HAS A PLAINTIVE STORY TO TELL

Says That Rufians Held Him and Trimmed His Whiskers.

D. J. Porter, the Gaston blacksmith, was brought to town Tuesday evening by one of his bondsmen, who lives at the same town, and turned over to Sheriff Connell for safe keeping. Porter has had all kinds of trouble with his wife, who divorced him about a year ago, and several times he has been in jail, and on bond to keep the peace.

As the result of difficulties with the former Mrs. Porter. The last time that Porter had trouble, Justice Harding bound him over to keep the peace, and Porter has been stopping in Yamhill county a great portion of the time since his bond was executed. Of late the wife has been complaining about him bothering her again, and his bondsmen became alarmed, with the result that one brought him down to the county jail.

Porter tells quite a story. He says that some of the Gaston boys caught him and sheared his whiskers and made him submit to other physical indignities, and that he doesn't know but what the jail is a very good place to be in, after all.

Porter is a hard working man, but looks on the wine when it is red a little too often for his own good. Also, he is in love with his wife, and can't keep away from her Mrs. Porter has taken two or three shots at her former lord and master, and has otherwise caused him a great deal of heart sickness. The party who turned Porter over was A. Rogers.

Ben Hay has returned from an Alaskan trip, and is looking as hearty as ever.

Forest fires are raging in the northern and western boundaries of Washington county, and, near Cedar Canyon, the first of the week, Chas. Aydelott lost his house and barn by reason of the flames, and many hundreds of acres of good timber are being swept by the blaze. Between Manning and Buxton the fires are exceedingly fierce, and many homes are in danger from loss of fencing and outbuildings. A large tract of green timber on the Benton Killen place, has been partially burned. The Gales Peak fire is threatening farm property, and many fences have been reduced to ashes. The fires have made the smoke almost unbearable.

H. Wehrung & Sons carry the largest line of clothing for men and boys to be found in Washington county. Their manufacture is of the best and every suit is tailor cut. Come in and see them and you will buy.

The members of the Epworth League held a moonlight picnic at Crandall's Grove, in South Hillsboro, Monday evening, the young people meeting at Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Kendall's before going to the grounds. About 60 were present and an enjoyable time is reported. The grounds were beautifully lighted by Chinese lanterns and a huge bonfire served to lend light and beauty to the scene. The tables were lighted by lanterns, and were decorated with English ivy. Supper was served, after which the evening was spent in stories and song, until a late hour. Mesdames Max Crandall and E. H. Baird were the chaperones.

Now your appetite is coming back with the return of the Fall season. Get your groceries of H. Wehrung & Sons, and you will feel like taking hold of your work. Finest line of staples in the city.

M. Donhauser, who lives in East Hillsboro, complains that some parties either tried to raise his window, last night, or threw something against it, besides lurching heavily against the door. He jumped up from his reading and went to the door, firing two shots into the atmosphere, but could not hear anything moving about. Mr. Donhauser isn't sure whether the parties were robbers or some young fellows who are trying to annoy him. He says he will shoot any one who disturbs him hereafter if he can get a shot at them.

If you want an up-to-date hat, just call in and see H. Wehrung & Sons' complete stock. A fine lot of the latest styles and shapes at prices that make them sellers.
