The best debate ever held in the east end of the county was heard by a large audience at Beaverton, last Saturday evening, the subject being, "Resolved that the Government should own and operate the Railroads." The affirmative speakers were: F. H. Hocken, Chas. Meagher and E. S. Evenden, and the negative was handled by A. C. Allen, M. P. Cady, and W. B. Rasmussen. The affirmative was given the decision, although the speakers on both sides handled the question like veterans in the principle economic, all of them being good talkers, and splendid logicians. One who attended reports that all the addresses were academic, and compared more than favorably with college debates. All the speakers are college students or graduates, and the affair created a great deal of enthusiasm. A large party drove from Reedville to hear the forensic contest.

Manager G. A. Wehrung has succeeded in getting "The Two Little Waifs," one of Lincoln Carter's strongest plays, for the Opera House, February 2. Mr. Wehrung states that this is one of the best plays ever staged in Hillsboro, and it should have excellent patronage. The company played one week at Portland, at the Empire, where it had a crowded house every night. If the Hillsboro public will give companies like this a decent patronage there will be better attractions here. This is a first class attraction, and is worth anyone's money. The whole action of the play appeals to every man, woman and child and is full of action, and replete with comedy. The scenic effects are the best ever seen on the Hillsboro stage. Popular prices. Seats on sale at Wehrung's.

H. L. Russell was down from Gaston the first of the week, and identified the young lad held in the county jail for complicity in the Hibbs store robbery. When Sheriff Connell brought the boy out Mr. Russell said he was at Gaston shortly before the robbery, "but," he said, "You were a blue sweater, with a stripe in it." Sheriff Connell went back into the jail and brought out the sweater, which the boy had with him when placed under arrest. Sheriff Connell says the young lad is quite a sketch artist, and can draw like an old veteran.
