Washington County will develop wonderfully within the next five years. There is nothing that so helps a country as railroads where development of agricultural lands is concerned. The fact that the Tillamook road commences here will attract many people to this section. The road will open a district that must now go thirty miles to meet its nearest sales point. Thousands of thousands of dollars worth of timber will soon find a market. As it now stands the timber can not be utilized. A new era is coming to the outlying sections of Washington, and with railroad development we may reasonably expect agricultural development. The hills are especially fitted for the dairy business and with the timber in market acre after acre of land will be added to pasturage, and this will mean more and better homes.

The trial of Senator Mitchell will close this week, and with it will come the finale of public life of a man who has been honored many years by a sovereign state. Perhaps no one man has ever had the personal following that has been given John H. Mitchell. He knew hundreds of men by their given names; he was urbanly personified; he was acute and a good "log roller;" he knew how to do business for the state, and from the evidence he knew how to do business for himself, although his attorneys plead that he was careless. Whether he is convicted or not, he is a political past, and he will never again enter the political arena. His old friends still cling to him—a most potent factor in proving that he made and held friends while a citizen as well as while a senator.

The editor of the Forest Grove Times, for a mealy fee, less than a dollar—and he never specified the amount—published libellous matter and had to pay a neat little verdict. The Argus and News published the report of a school district committee, as news, and now Brother Hoge thinks the two publishers should go to the penitentiary. Never mind, Brother Hoge, the retractions of the News and the Argus will not add libel to libel. And the Argus will wager Brother Hoge that neither Woods nor Long will go to Salem unless they carry a different kind of a certificate of election than Brother Hoge would give them.

Judge Bennett, who is defending Senator Mitchell, is one of Oregon's ablest lawyers, and he is making the fight of his life to save the aged official from disgrace. Judging from the testimony it is necessary that the element of sympathy enter into Bennett's argument, and he is now using all the powers of his ability. Judge Bennett is fully equal to the occasion, and his argument is having a telling effect upon the jury. The case closes in a day or so and it would be no surprise if the jury disagreed.

Grover Cleveland is bound, after all, to be president of something—and a man who went into the presidency a poor man and came out with over four millions is eminently qualified to act as executive for a life insurance company. But unless he can handle bonds in better shape for the company than he did for the people he will certainly lose his official head in short order.

It is to be expected that the Panama canal will breed scandal, so fraught with graft is every move of government these days. It is just a question as to how much it can be kept down, and no one should criticize the president too severely, because he shows that he is doing all he can to get some honest results in this affair.

Give Hillsboro a big sawmill and she will expand; give the town a few more manufacturers. We need them. Local capital must get busy.

The McMinnville papers state that Albert Reutter, who formerly conducted the Centerville creamery, will start a creamery and cheese factory at the Yamhill county seat.

Speaking of grain aphid, there is no question but what they did great damage to crops during the few days of wet and cold weather that prevailed last week. Some fields were almost black with the little parasites, and but for the warm weather that is now prevailing, great injury might have resulted. Hops are doing fine, although the raw weather gave the lice a boost that is injuring some yards considerably.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Stewart, of Spokane, Wash., spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Riener, of North Hillsboro. Mrs. Stewart is an old school mate of Mrs. Riener, and the meeting was a pleasant one.

Our old friend, Dr. C. W. Lowe, of Eugene, has been appointed to the position of membership in the State Board of Optometry, and the Board has honored the Doctor by electing him president.
