LONG & MCKINNEY

A jury of twelve men found Senator John H. Mitchell guilty of receiving money for department work while he was at the same time receiving money as United States Senator. In the face of the evidence they could hardly have done differently, although one man was ready to hang the jury on the sympathetic plea, and would have done so but for the recommendation for mercy. Mitchell has been held up as a model statesman and his conviction is a severe blow to his wing in republican politics. While the aged senator has hopes of a reversal in the Supreme Court the evidence satisfies all people who have read it that he is guilty and as a force in state politics he is done forever. His was the voice that at a late hour took the stamp for the gold standard after he had for years advocated silver in the senate. His speeches threw the silver republicans to McKinley and saved the state on the ground that the republican party was the true friend of bimetallism; under his direction every man John was whipped into line and Bryan lost the state. Mitchell's name was the talisman that beat the Nebraskan in a close fight. Mitchell temporized with the money question, playing double, just as he has in office played for government, as well as anti-government, money. His is a sad fall, and one that should be a lesson to those in high places.

Brother Hoge seems to have a wholesome fear of Judge McBride. Nor is it any wonder.

Call for a Dairymen's Meeting

I will again call upon you to meet at Hillsboro, Oregon, on July 15, 1905, at 1:30 p. m., to complete the Dairymen's Association, and to transact such other business as may properly come before the meeting, and I again notify the Condensed milk companies of Forest Grove and Hillsboro, or their representatives, to meet with us. They are the manufacturers and we are the patrons. We are not afraid to meet them, and we hope they are not afraid to meet us face to face.

And if they can show to us that they are living in accordance with their promise and agreement to the dairymen, or doing as fairly by their patrons as may be reasonably expected, we shall certainly accept their statements. We admit that there are two sides to all questions. The dairymen are dissatisfied with the present profits in the dairy business. Are the condensed milk companies responsible, or is it the general surroundings in that line of business that is causing the unprofitable condition of the dairy business of this County? Let us meet as dairymen and organize a dairymen's association.

Wm. McQuillan.

W. Reiling and J. C. Smith, of Greenville, were in town this afternoon.

P. M. Jackson, J. W. Sewell and E. J. Lyons, are all building barns on their farms, east of town.

The city council meets again Friday evening to dedicate streets and incidentally to grant a franchise to the Hillsboro-Tillamook railway. The street fight episode

Bagley's court this week. P. B. Southworth was fined $15; Geo. Billings, $5, and Bruce Billings receives his sentence in a day or so. There was never any charge filed against Mr. Cawse, Sr.

Blooming held a Fourth of July celebration in C. Helmold's grove, writes G. F. C. Meyer. The meeting was a success, was well attended, and the day was spent in speech making and games. Rev. L. Stuebe gave a splendid address and in conclusion reminded the people that it was their duty to always stand by the flag of freedom and in case of danger to shed the last drop of blood for liberty and religious freedom.

Henry M. Ray, of this city, was yesterday adjudged insane, and conveyed to the asylum this evening. He is aged 39, and has suffered from imbecility since birth. The unfortunate man is a native of Nebraska. About nine years ago he was injured on the head as a result of a runaway.

Messrs. Reed and Poppleton, of Portland, came out the Fourth, and spent the day with Capt. and Mrs. Merryman, Miss Alice, and Dr. and Mrs. A. B. Bailey, Mrs. Pittenger, Will Pittenger, Mrs. May Eagleton and Miss Stella Boscow, at Meacham's Crossing.

Mr. Toni Sinay and Mrs. Augusta Schulenberg were united in marriage at Blooming, at the residence of the bride, June 28, 1905. Rev. L. Stuebe officiating. Mr. Sinay has been a resident of near Gaston for some time, and the bride lives on Iowa Hill.

Some men wish the surgeons would hurry up and discover a way to amputate consciences.

A man can seldom see the point of a joke when he feels it.

A man goes to the legislature when he wants to change his name, while a girl goes by invitation to the minister.

The Lesser Lights.
Some one must play the minor parts.
Some one must hold the spear.
And some one, when the music starts,
Must follow in the rear.
Not every one can be the star.
That shines with great white light.
But some must twinkle from afar
To harmonize the night.

Not every one can march ahead
And at the ladies smile.
For some, with sober, martial tread,
Must be the rank and file.
When war has raised its horrid front,
The fight could not be won
Without to bear the battle's brunt
The man behind the gun.

No play of politics or war
Or love could be the rage
If every one were fighting for
The center of the stage.
Some one must play the thinking parts,
Must one and close the gates.
Or say, when the procession starts,
"My lord, the lady waits."

And so we might philosophize
About the game of life,
For only one can win the prize.
Though fierce may be the strife.
And as we move the pawns about
To see where they will fit,
We're satisfied some should lose out
If we can just be it.

For the Coast.
"He burned his bridges behind him."
"He must have been in the pay of the bridge contractor."

Quite So.
"Our new neighbors are very aristocratic."
"Indeed! How does it appear?"
"The man shaves himself because barber shops are so common, don't you know, and the woman does her own cooking because it is so genteel and refined for a lady to wear a white apron and be compelled with household duties in the morning."

Reckless Bravery.
A pretty lady sang a song,
And the applause was loud and long.
Although she couldn't sing a bit.
She said she what I thought of it.
I told her it was quite no good.
She scorned me as I thought she would.
I wonder if Carnegie won't
Make me a hero for that stunt.

They Kept the Rest.
"I suppose he feels happy over winning his $50,000 damage suit."
"Yes, indeed. The lawyers allowed him $5 a day for his time while testifying, and he could only have made $3 at his trade."

Not So Far Out.
Mr. Ottin—I go out to my dinner every evening.
Cousin Wayback—Do you mean to say that you eat dinner in the back lot

Dear Sir:
Replying to your favor, will say the Cream Separator bought of you can not be beat. It is better than a Centrifugal, as it works while you rest. I can not see how anyone could do without one, as it is a great labor saver, and the price is within the reach of all.
