MUST BE TRIED HERE

Attorney S. B. Huston and District Attorney Harrison Allen yesterday forenoon argued the point as to whether or not the Juvenile Court statute applied to the case of Sydney Brugger, charged with murder. Young Brugger is but fifteen years of age and the defense argued that the law governing Juvenile court should apply. The Court held that the law applied to districts of over 100,000 population, and none other, and that Brugger would have to appear at bar in the usual manner. If Brugger should be convicted of murder in the first degree he must be sentenced to hang, the only relief being the fact that the governor could commute the sentence as he saw fit, and fix the number of years in the penitentiary. On the other hand, the law is such, for a lesser conviction, second degree, or manslaughter, the court cannot sentence, but must turn the boy over to the county court, for reformation, being that he was under 16 when the crime was committed.

C. E. Kindt, secretary of the Tualatin Valley Right of Way Club, writes the Argus as follows: "For the benefit of that portion of the public who are directly interested in the building of a railroad from Hillsboro to Oswego it may be stated that in an interview held in Portland last Monday with E. E. Lytle, President of the Pacific Railway & Navigation Company, I was positively assured by him that he will within thirty days put a surveying party in the field to fix definitely the location of the proposed road. It is supposed that the road will in the main follow the survey made by the Southern Pacific two years ago, but the object of the new survey will be to determine what changes, if any, are necessary, as Mr. Lytle is desirous of securing the shortest practicable route. Having for several years enjoyed a personal acquaintance with Mr. Lytle I know his unquestioned reliability and high standing in railroad and financial circles. When the line is officially located the people will be asked to give the right of way, with the written guarantee that the road will be completed in one year from its beginning."

SPEAKING OF EARLY DAYS

"Speaking of murder trials," said Judge McBride, the other day, "the first murder trial I witnessed was outside of the law and order element. It was in 1863, and at Auburn, an Eastern Oregon town, long since deserted, I suppose. Three Frenchmen had arrived in the district, and trouble ensued. It was a case of two against one. The solitary man went to the camp and bought some strychnine, returned, and the next morning the two companions were found dead. The camp was up in arms to lynch the survivor, but an old miner from Southern Oregon advised a trial, telling the crowd that if they were to try the man and execute sentence, it had better be done in an orderly manner. Accordingly the old man was chosen as the judge; a sheriff was appointed; a jury drawn and sworn; men were selected to prosecute and defend, and in an hour's time he was found guilty, and the next day hanged. It was proven that he had bought the strychnine for the alleged purpose of killing coyotes, and the motive for the double murder was proven by the trouble between the trio. Everything was carried on in a perfectly decorous manner, and, aside from the interposition of technicalities witnessed in courts in this age, one would have thought it a legally constituted court. The trial left a lasting impression in my mind and at the same time was an object lesson, showing how quickly men on the border of civilization can organize a police power and institute courts with only common judgment to guide them."

RAILROAD WORK IS PROGRESSING FINE

Tracklaying is Soon to Begin From Hillsboro

INTERSECTION ALREADY MADE

Section Foreman Seidler Has Put in Connection

Work on the Tillamook railroad is progressing finely. The road is now ready for the rails between this point and the first big bridge, and Section Foreman Seidler, in charge of the Southern Pacific section, has already put in the connection switch, and it is expected that Lytle will begin to lay steel by the first of the week.

Bridge men are working on the Woolly bridge, driving piles, and in a short time the bed will be ready for the steel as far out as Leisyville. After passing the two bridges the line for five miles out is almost "grade," and it will require very little labor to get ready for laying the ties.

The Japanese gang, working at the outskirts of town, became so imbued with the idea of shirking that Smith, in charge of construction, let out the entire band, Monday, taking back only a dozen or so who were doing good work. Quite a large force of white men are at work along the line, and the bad weather can not delay the work seriously.

George A. Morgan has a tie camp out near the Schieffelin place, and they will get out five thousand, heeled, for the new line. The first mile or so, however, will be laid with sawed ties.

THE LADIES' BAZAAR

The Ladies' Bazaar will be held at Wehrungs' Hall, Tuesday eve, Dec. 5, and Wednesday afternoon, and evening, Dec. 6. An entertaining program will be rendered by children Tuesday evening and Wednesday afternoon. Admission free. Refreshments consisting of sandwiches, coffee, chocolate and cake, tea and wafers, and ice cream, will be served to all at a trifling charge. A utility table will occupy a prominent space, and those who wish may provide toothsome preserves, pickles, mince-meats, brown bread, cakes, pies, etc., for the home tables at nominal cost. A booth for candies will attract lovers of confections. A great number of fancy and useful articles, besides dolls and handkerchiefs, will be on sale. There will be no auction of the remaining articles at the close.
