We shall now have a dearth of the newspaper gush that has overwhelmed readers anent the Roosevelt-Longworth wedding. More newspaper men, in their desire to cater to snobbery, have made fools of themselves over this incident than would patch the hot place a mile. The insanity ran all the way from the man who wanted a ten cent dowry down to the man who called the girl loving notoriety a "princess." Thank God, there is an end to it.

Forest Grove will now have to wait until its charter is amended before it can license a saloon. Here we shall have a very pretty fight which might drag through several campaigns. Candidates for the legislature will have to meet this proposition face to face provided there is a strong sentiment in favor of license in the college city.

When its friends get through with the rate bill it will have lost its teeth. The House measure, in itself, was a frolic, and adds but little to the statistics as they now stand. There is but one way to handle the railroad question—let the government own the roads.

The Portland preacher who induced a 19-year old boy to go and drink with courtesans and fallen men in order to get evidence for the Anti-Saloon League is in a fair way to have his letters to the Lord returned unopened.

The Deacon Moralizes on Age

There ain't no use in sighin'
For the days 'at's past an' gone
An' there ain't no use in cryin'
'Cause ol' time is rollin' on—

Why spend your time lamentin'
That your head has turned so gray?
An' there ain't no use repentin'
For the worl' ain't allus gay!

Why don't you jes' remember
All the things that warm the heart,
An' be satisfied December
Comes, when Summer's played her part;

Jes' keep your heart a-warmin'
O'er the things you allus love,
An' you'll quit your hopeless stormin'
At the clouds that float above.

Jes' keep your heart strings jumpin'
Thinkin' of the times of ol'
When your heart was busy pumpin'
Joy into your youthful soul—

An' then you'll see the flowers,
As they bloomed when you was young,
An' you walked through shady bowers
While some ol' time song you sung;

Or see yourself a-walkin'
In some quiet woodlan' lane,
An' you'll hear yourself a-talkin'
To some girl you hoped to gain—

So, what's the use regrettin'
That ol' Age has made his call,
For ol' Time a-walkin' a-gettin'
What he gets from one as 'all.

So I'll jes' stop repinin'
An' hark back to fifty-two
When Life's sun was brightly shinin'
An' I first went courtin' Sue!

Sheriff Connell, Deputy Kane, and assistants J. Thorburgh and Ward Downs have been very busy this week, taking in taxes on the 1935 roll. While the collections are not quite as large as the first four days last year this was occasioned by the fact that today was a holiday, although the office was open, and the additional fact that the roll was opened so much earlier than in past years. The rebate time has heretofore been very short, but as collection commenced a week earlier than usual, the rush has not been so great. Anyone getting in before March 15 can get the usual 5 per cent. discount.

Jerry Binkley, of East Hillsboro, while making wood, had the misfortune, yesterday, to have a piece of steel from a wedge pass almost through the cartilage of one of his ears. Dr. S. T. Linklater attended the injured member. This is one way Jerry has of getting in shape to wear the old time ornament of an ear ring.

Attorney Bruce Huston is down in the Douglas county section this week, building political fences. He and Toose are each doing some lively work down south.

TELEGRAPHIC NOTES

The Idaho state officials have arrested the president and secretary of the Western Federation of Miners, and another officer of the institution, for the murder of a man. They were all in another state at the time of the crime, but the state claims that they were in the conspiracy. The federation says that Oakland's confusion, involving the fact of a man's hairdresser, and that of

A New Magazine for You

I am bringing out another new magazine that you will come pretty close to liking. I wouldn't be surprised if it hit you harder than anything in the shape of a magazine you have ever seen. There isn't much style to it, but it has the stuff in it that you and everybody else will want to read. It is called

Something New in Magazine Making

THE SCRAP BOOK is the most elastic thing that ever happened in the way of a magazine—elastic enough to carry anything from a tin whistle to a battleship. Everything that appeals to the human brain and human heart comes within its compass—fiction, which is the backbone of periodical circulation; biography, review, philosophy, science, art, poetry, wit, humor, pathos, satire, the weird, the mystical—everything that can be classified and everything that cannot be classified. A paragraph, a little bit, a saying, an editorial, a joke, a maxim, an epigram.

Nothing Like It in the World

There isn't anything in the world just like THE SCRAP BOOK. It is an idea on which we have been working for several years, and for which we have been gathering materials. We have bought hundreds and hundreds of scrap books from all over the country, some of them a century old, and are still buying them. From these books we are gathering and classifying an enormous number of gems, and facts and figures, and historical and personal bits that are of rare value. Furthermore, we have a corps of people ransacking libraries, reading all the current publications, the leading daily papers, and digging out curious and quaint facts and useful facts and figures from reference book, cyclopedia, etc., etc.

Don't fail to get a copy of this first issue of THE SCRAP BOOK. It sells at the price at which all our other magazines sell—Ten Cents a Copy and One Dollar by the Year.

How the Young Man Got His Revenge

"YOU owe $500." It was a gay scene at the house of Mrs. Plancher-Puncher. The guests were just about to disband as the young man, who had been playing bridge all the evening, with blanching face gazed at his hostess. "Five hundred dollars!" he repeated. "Why, I thought it was a friendly game of bridge. I didn't know it was for money."

"That is your own fault. I'll trouble you for a check, please." The guest hesitated. Apparently he was being held up. And yet he realized Mrs. Plancher-Puncher's power in the social world. She could ruin him. He saw there was nothing else to do. He drew a checkbook from his pocket and, accompanying her into the library, wrote out a check for the correct amount and passed it over.

"The next day the young man sat in the humble dwelling of one of the most skillful burglars in the country, with a letter of introduction from a politician. "What can I do for you, sir?" said the burglar.

"A simple thing. Last night I was held up and robbed of $500 by Mrs. Plancher-Puncher, one of our well known society women. I want you to call there this evening if possible and get my money back. Here's a plan of the house, and you can have all you make, less the $500."

Twenty-four hours later the burglar's card was sent up. "Well, what luck?" "Here is your $500 and $500 more." The young man smiled. "You must have made a good thing of it," he said. "When you are willing to pay me twice as much as I wanted."

"Yes, sir. But it wasn't so much the money I made as the satisfaction."
