Old Ben Tillman, as he is irreverently called by the apologetic press, is helping Roosevelt out on a rate bill. Tillman knows that the measure is not what the people want; that it is bereft of its reviving force; and of its chief force, but he knows that a small step is better than none, and he, with other demerits in the Senate, will make it possible to become a law. Tillman, the "pirate," helping out Roosevelt is a spectacle for the Gods and a rebuke to the executive's conception of the old South Carolinian.

The United Railway success in getting a franchise will mean much for this county. With an electric line this county will have a wonderful growth. Just watch things move around Hillsboro and Forest Grove this season.

The Duncan and the East Wind

It aches makes me gosh-ding mad

When trees in the map,

To have the weather turn out bad

As' bring a week's cold snap!

Jer' when the race is buddin' fine

An' ev'rythin' seems gay,

While ev'ry bloom is sure a sign

That Spring has come to stay—

'Tis then the gosh-ding east wind cold

Comes o'er the ol' Cascades,

An' hits us in the face, so bold,

With one of his dander raids.

It plucks up the peach-bloom pink;

Won't leave a bud to shake;

An' makes a reg'lar skatin' rink

Down 'on ol' Jackson's Lake.

But, I have allus noticed, tho',

That Nature' fills her lap,

An' seems each Fall to yell an' crow—

"I beat the ol' cold snap!"

Tax payers will now have until April 5 to pay half of their tax, and if it is not paid by that time the owner becomes delinquent and is subject to a heavy penalty, one percent of the tax and one percent monthly, until paid. This means quite an expense and it is economy to "pungle up."

MISS LILLIAN LAWRENCE

AS GLORY QUAYLE

To see Miss Lawrence as Glory Quayle is to witness the perfection of art histrionic in the feminine. Her delineation of the Manx heroine is superb.

In Hall Caine's Christian—the greatest novel of the age, dramatized; tells a vivid, thrilling story of struggle between misconceived duty, and love.

JOHN SAINPOLIS

AS JOHN STORM

Mr. Sainpolis' conception of the character of John Storm, the hero, around whom the interest in the Christian centres, is accepted by critics as the best in the world of art.

Storm loves Glory, but renounces a life of love to take up religious work, becoming a dangerous fanatic. His attempt to kill the heroine is one of the strong situations.

Three men were dining at the Emerson restaurant, yesterday, and in some manner an altercation came about and the proprietor, Fred Emerson, struck Gus Larsen on the head inflicting quite a scalp wound, which was sewed up by Dr. F.
