

THE HILLSBORO ARGUS

SUPPLEMENT — THURSDAY, APRIL 19, 1906

THE DEMOCRATIC YAMHILL CHAMPION

Hon. Charles V. Galloway, of McMinnville

WILL BE SELECTED TOMORROW

As Congressional Candidate for the First District

Hon. Chas. V. Galloway, of Yamhill County, will no doubt be the Democratic nominee for Congress from this district. All democrats in this county who vote tomorrow will doubtless give this brilliant young statesman their vote.

Charles V. Galloway, candidate for the democratic nomination for representative in congress from the First district, was born on a farm near Bellevue, in Yamhill county, January 6, 1878. He is a member of one of the honored pioneer families of Oregon; his father, William Galloway, is at present circuit judge of the Third judicial district. In 1896, while a student of McMinnville college, he won the state contest in the Inter-Collegiate Oratorical association. He graduated with honors from the university of Oregon with the class of '99. During his university course he took a prominent part in student enterprise; was a member of the debating team, which in 1899 won the championship of the state. Upon leaving school Charles V. took up the management of the Galloway farm, near McMinnville. This has been his principal occupation since that time. In 1902 he was elected to the lower house of the Oregon legislature by a substantial plurality, leading the legislative ticket and being the first democrat elected to either branch of the legislature from Yamhill county during a period of ten years. In the session of 1903 his record was one of which any man might well be proud. Declining renomination in 1904, he accepted the position of superintendent of the Oregon horticultural exhibit at St. Louis; and during the constructive period of the Lewis and Clark exposition he was general superintendent of exhibits for the Oregon state commission. In experience and habits of thought Charlie Galloway is much older than his years indicate. Most of his life has been spent out of doors, on the farm; he is rugged in body and alert in mind. In disposition he is happy and genial; his view of men and affairs is broad and many sided. He is a student, not only of books, but of nature and humanity; and has an abiding faith in the gospel of hard honest work. He is simple and democratic in habits and thought, never afraid to speak out plainly and definitely. If nominated he may be depended upon to state his position fairly and positively on every question that may properly be considered an issue of the congressional campaign. If elected to congress he will, regardless of circumstances, keep and carry out every pledge and promise that he may make to the people of the First district. At the democratic rally and banquet in Salem on February 27th last, Charlie Galloway was one of the principal speakers, responding to the "Democracy of Jefferson." In its report of this meeting the Daily Oregon Statesman (republican) said:

"Mr. Galloway was warmly received and made a splendid oratorical effort, declaring Jefferson the grandest representative in history of government by the people. Political parties have arisen to harmonize and equalize the forces of government. Two great parties have always existed in opposition and these have been the respective parties of Jefferson and Alexander Hamilton, no matter by what names they have been known. He quoted from Jefferson and Hamilton to show that the spirit of the latter dominated the republican party of today and that Jefferson was today's democracy. He eulogized in eloquent terms the life, principles and teachings of Jefferson, whom he styled 'the patron saint of national democracy.' His address was probably the finest, most comprehensive and most complete exposition of democratic doctrines in their most acceptable forms of dress that has ever been presented in Salem, and was an exhibition of charming oratory that is rarely heard from any platform. Mr. Galloway certainly made a grand effort and an excellent impression on his hearers. The whole affair was a grand success and a social event, all the speeches were entertaining and instructive and were warmly applauded in each instance, Mr. Galloway receiving a perfect ovation."

The democrats of Yamhill county, in open mass assembly at McMinnville, on March 17, 1906, adopted this resolution: "We commend and unanimously endorse the candidacy of Yamhill's splendid young democrat, Charles V. Galloway, for representative in congress."

VALUABLE PERCHERON STALLION IS DEAD

Cedar Mill Horse, Young Cyrius, Recently Purchased

DIED AT MARTIN SMITH RANCH

Cost Stock Company Three Thousand Dollars

Young Cyrius, the valuable young Percheron stallion, died in the night at the Martin Smith ranch, near Lenox, Monday evening. He was found dead in his stall the next morning, and had the appearance of having been attacked with internal illness, possibly colic, or a derangement of long standing. The horse had been apparently well, and no one had noticed anything wrong with him.

This horse was bought by Herman Glaski, Andrew Eggiman, Stalder Brothers, Jacob Losli, Fred Peterson, Fred Lehman, Wm. Randall, and Gottlieb Zuercher all prominent farmers of near Cedar Mill and Bethany, and it is said the animal cost them $2,700. The company carries an insurance of $1,350. P. H. Vandehey, who has been managing the animal, says that there was nothing wrong with the animal in the evening when he left him at the barn. At first there was some idea that perhaps the horse had met with foul play, but later this theory was discarded.

The company will have another fine stallion in the stud in a few days.
